Mexico's Revolution
Practical British Hoover and Oil
Mr. Candler Knew

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

Those who say the Mexican people are not interested in this revolution are mistaken. Millions of Mexicans are intensely and passionately interested in what they consider an attack on the established religion of Mexico. It is a religious protest rather than a revolution in the usual sense.

Americans who bought shares in the British General Electric Company are told that new shares will be issued only to British subjects. Americans are told "United States capital is not wanted in England." American investors are not desired as purchasers of the new stock.

The new stock will be worth double its price or more, which may have something to do with a practical decision.

In any case it will teach Americans to invest their money in home enterprises, of which there are plenty.

Britain is to be congratulated on the fact that "United States capital is not wanted in England."

It is not so long since five billions of it was wanted there, in a hurry, and this country sent it.

And it isn't so long since this country consented to accept part payment in settlement of that debt.

Concerning Government oil lands, President Hoover says simply: "We are going to keep them, not lease them or sell them." That will suit the people.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, says Congress should decide such matters, but the country is content to have President Hoover decide them, since he decides the right way.

If the President can stop the criminal waste of national oil wealth he will render a service to many future generations of automobile owners. Fortunately he knows this, and probably he knows how to go about conservation, even of oil in private hands.

Asa G. Candler, Sr., who invented coca cola and made millions, is dead. His life proves that attention to detail is the foundation of success. After attention to detail comes capacity for SUPERVISION. "Organize, deputize, supervise."

Mr. Candler carried detail to the grave, giving minute directions as to his funeral rites, including the wording of an announcement for newspapers, and describing clothes that he was to wear in the coffin, a "dress suit." A good idea, if, indeed, we rise "in the flesh."

Mr. Candler set an example to his fellow citizens in liberality. He died in a hospital which he provided for the public at a cost of $1,500,000.

That somebody is making money may comfort you, if you are not making money.

The Michigan Central Railway, for instance, on March 28 will pay to stockholders a cash dividend of 100 per cent, which certainly is fair enough. Most of it goes to the New York Central Railroad, in control of Michigan.

And there is the Union Carbide Company, declaring a stock dividend of 400 per cent.

Wall Street was cheerful yesterday. No wonder.

And call money cost only 6 per cent. Just think of that.

Mrs. Blanche Whiffen, "Virginia's grand old lady of the stage," was 84 years old yesterday, well and happy, telling young people how frightened she was on the stage 67 years ago.

Good actresses, like Ellen Terry, Sarah Bernhardt and innumerable others, when they take care of their health, live to be old. Their brains remain active, and human beings, like trees, die at the top.

Consider Madame La Vergne of Dijon, France, who celebrated her 106th birthday yesterday. She has never called a doctor since at the age of 12 a wagon ran over her. Madame La Vergne has lived in France under three kings, two republics and one empire, and wouldn't live anywhere else. She can't read well, but thinks that being a good listener is better.

In southwest Africa a giant meteor, recently fallen, is said by scientists to be the world's largest. It weighs more than 50 tons.

Thousands of meteors bombard the earth every year, big enough to destroy any building. But a majority are melted by friction of the air and fall in harmless dust.

LINDY HOPS WITH 10 IN PLANE

Mexico City, March 14—Charles A. Lindbergh today ended his visit to his fiancee, Miss Anne Spencer Morrow, when he hopped off for Brownsville, Tex., in a tri-motored Ford plane carrying 10 passengers and [illegible] mail.

The colonel and pilot, R. U. Kent, expected to alternate at the controls. He reached Valbuena shortly after 8 o'clock and was ready to take off at the scheduled hour of 8:30, but it was necessary to spend an hour getting the engines in shape, some minor trouble in one motor having developed.

Finally when the engine was run-

9 Dead in Southern Tornado

Greenville, S. C., March 14 (AP)—Nine persons are dead, two are thought to be dying and five or ten others are injured, the victims of a tornado which bored swiftly last night into Six-Mile Community.

Although the community has a population of only 200, the tornado was confined to such a narrow zone and came and went so suddenly that nearby residents took the roar for thunder, and were not aware of its true nature until they heard the cries of the injured and dying.

Four homes, a cotton gin, a church and a building of Six-Mile Academy were in the zone of destruction.

All nine of the deaths were caused by the collapse of two of the four homes which were struck. An infant of the Tillman Garrett family

RING RULES, DOWLING CHARGES

Practically all qualified persons, unless "in right," are excluded from holding office in Suffolk County by the so-called county ring, John C. L. Dowling, chairman of the Boston Finance Commission, declared at the Twentieth Century Club today.

Speaking at the morning session of the School of Citizenship, sponsored by the Boston League of Women Voters, he [illegible] the county ring and its [illegible] to permit civil service to be extended to county offices.

Taking as his topic, "The Story of Suffolk County and the City of Boston," he said in part:

"While Suffolk county is not so 'county ridden' as other counties, it has two existing defects.

"First is the fee system in the sheriff's office. Second is the omis-

London, March 14 (AP)—Three new cruisers will be laid down in the coming financial year, W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons today, in introducing naval estimates. Two will be smaller type cruisers with six-inch guns, to replace others becoming obsolete. The design of the other has not been settled.

MORE U. S. TROOPS TO BORDER

Mexico City, March 14 (INS) — Eulalio Gutierrez, who rose from a workman's bench to the presidency of the Mexican republic, is expected to face a firing squad at sunset today because of his connection with the present revolution.

He was captured "in rebellion" at Concepcion del Oro, Coahuila, by the forces of Gen. [illegible], one of his old companions in arms in the revolutionary days of 1912-14.

Gutierrez was fleeing with the rebels that evacuated Saltillo, capital of Coahuila, on Tuesday night, said advices received here today.

He served as president late in 1914 and early in 1915.

Washington, March 14 (INS)—Additional American troops have been dispatched to the vicinity of Naco, Ariz., to reinforce those already there in guarding the city

SUMMONSES SERVED ON COUNCILLORS, BANKERS

Summonses were served on city councillors and about 20 other prominent Boston individuals today by the Finance Commission, which tomorrow begins public hearings on the $1,750,000 Exchange st. widening, one of the biggest projects it has ventured to investigate.

Although the names of the persons summoned have not been given out, the commission members believe the public is well acquainted with the fact that most of them are men of prominence in the financial world and the real estate field.

Among the important witnesses will be the real estate experts who were hired by the city as appraisers to fix a fair valuation on the property at Exchange and State sts., which the City Council, upon recommendation from the mayor, voted to purchase last fall.

HOOVER TO ACT ON ROOT'S COURT PLAN

Washington, March 14 (AP)—President Hoover soon will be called upon to pass judgment upon the latest effort to bring about American adherence to the World Court.

An agreement worked out by Elihu Root and foreign jurists at Geneva which would pave the way for adherence by this government is expected shortly in Washington.

The formula contrived by Root and associates permits an exchange of views between the United States and the League of Nations council both before and after the court has received a request for an advisory opinion affecting the interests of this country.

This is intended to take the place of the Senate reservation which stipulated that the court shall not entertain an opinion in any matter in which the United States has, or claims to have, an interest.

16 CHILDREN RESCUED IN 3-ALARM LYNN FIRE

Sixteen young children were carried out in thin attire, and adults of six families were forced to flee, early today, during a fire on Harbor st., Lynn, for which three alarms were sounded. Two policemen were heroes of the fire through their work in arousing the families.

Flames destroyed two structures one a two-story shed, filled with bales of waste paper, and the other an unoccupied two-story frame dwelling, on Harbor st., directly in front of the shed.

A six-family tenement house at 30 Alley st., the rear of which was but a dozen feet from the shed was slightly burned. Smoke entered the house and the tenants would have been in peril had it not been for Patrolmen John T. Wall and John E. Kane.

JACK DEMPSEY GOING INTO LOBBYING GAME

Detroit, March 14 (INS)—Jack Dempsey is going to take up lobbying in the Michigan Legislature.

This became known today upon the arrival here of the former world's heavyweight champion from New York to confer with Floyd Fitzsimmons and prominent Detroit business men in regard to forming a syndicate for the promotion of boxing.

Dempsey also admitted he had an eye on the racing situation, providing the proper bill goes through the State Legislature.

"I favor Detroit over New York, if I can get the proper connections here," Dempsey stated, "but, of course, the 15-round boxing and horse-racing measures now pending will have much to do with my plans."

Dempsey and Fitzsimmons planned a conference today regarding the possibilities of boosting the passage of these bills which are now before the Legislature in Lansing.

Bombing Planes Rush to Aid of 4 States in Flood

Chicago, March 14 (AP)—Two days of spring had created flood havoc in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska today.

Many hundred acres of farm land were flooded; streets and building in some places were filled with water; rail and highway traffic wa disrupted, and bridges were torn away.

Rain and rising temperatures, melting the winter's last snows and breaking up the ice, had turned the Mississippi's tributaries into ice-glutted torrents. The Mississippi itself was rising, but it gave no immediate cause for alarm.

A squadron of bombing planes was ordered from Fort Riley, Kas., to tour the Missouri River, which was also gorged with ice and threatening to overflow.

Life Lost, Traffic Paralyzed in Wyoming

Denver, March 14 (AP)—The snow storm which has claimed one life, paralyzed highway traffic and delayed trains and the airmail in the Rocky Mountain region, continued in Wyoming today, although it had subsided in Colorado and Montana.

A dozen towns in Wyoming, where the storm was most severe, were snowbound by the heaviest fall in several years. Sheridan, near the Wyoming-Montana boundary, reported that a three-day snowfall left a blanket 30 inches deep on level ground.

One fatality was reported in Wyoming. Henry Foister, 38, of Laramie, died of exposure on a passenger train, where he found refuge after struggling through the snow for about ten miles after he abandoned his stalled motor truck near Virginia Dale.

WHITE QUITS RACING GAME

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 14—Two men most prominent in high speed auto racing are out of the game for good as a result of the death of Lee Bible, driver of the ill-fated 36 cylindered Triplex here.

J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer and owner of the car, his nerves wrecked by the crash, announced he was "through forever."

Major Segrave also made it known today that he too was "all through" with high pressure auto racing.

"I've had enough and I am retiring," said Segrave. "I have ordered the Golden Arrow crated and shipped back to England at once."

Segrave said, however, that the accident would not prevent him from racing Gar Wood's speed boat, Miss America the 7th, at Miami, Florida, on March 20-21. Segrave has been trying out his boat here, Miss England, and has attained a speed in it of 83 miles an hour. The speed-boat record is 91 miles an hour.

White, however, believes that it was Bible, and not the car, that failed as it reached a speed of 200 miles per hour in a second attempt to beat the speed record set by Maj. H. O. D. Segrave in his Golden Arrow.

Charles Traub, a newsreel photographer, was also killed when the Triplex left the course.

The whole community here is in mourning over the tragedy. Mayor Armstrong has ordered the nine-mile stretch of beach track closed for the year. The American Auto Association has called off its annual speed trials.

Bible, incidentally, had not been approved by the association for the trials because of his inexperience and protecting the Bisbee water supply, Maj.-Gen William Lassiter advised the War Department today.

The second squadron of the 10th Cavalry and a detachment of the 36th Infantry, under command of Maj. Charles B. Hastins, comprised the new detachment, which is the second American troop maneuver on the border since the Mexican revolution broke out.

Rebels Battle Federals in Advance on Torreon

Juarez, March 14—The battle for Torreon practically began today when rebel forces engaged the advance ranks of Gen. Elias Calles' big army of 20,000 federals in the desert country about 70 miles south of the city.

Half a dozen or more skirmishes were reported as the federal forces continued to converge on the rebel stronghold ready for a struggle that may be the deciding battle of the revolution.

While these preliminary engagements outside the city being fought more rebel reinforcements were being rushed into Torreon by the trainload. These reinforcements included cavalry and infantry.

The dual attack on the city was expected to begin before nightfall. By that time Gen. Calles planned to have his entire force in action to deliver the blow he expects will end the revolt.

With the Torreon battle at hand rebel leaders were encouraged by reports of successes yesterday. According to reports several hundred federal soldiers were captured and many killed in a battle with revolutionists at Artega. The rebels were led by Gen. Marcello Caraveo of Chihuahua City.

Caraveo said the rebels met the 77th and 78th federal cavalry, a portion of the Calles command, moving toward Torreon.

Caraveo also reported a rebel force routed federal troops under Gen. Cararen Torres after heavy fighting at Caneros, during which Gen. Torres was killed.

REBELS ARE EXECUTED

Federal forces engaged in subjugation of Durango fought with a small rebel force about half-way between Canitas and Durango City yesterday and killed 14 rebels and wounded about 40 others, it is reported here today. 30 rebels were taken prisoners and executed.

Aviators scouting the advance of Calles main army at Saltillo to Torreon reported that rebels fleeing back to the Torreon city limits had abandoned their troop trains at the city of Naco in returning, turning over coaches and locomotive to block the track.

In some cases it was said the retreat had become most disorderly and unorganized.

The strategy of Gen. Calles in delaying his immediate attack upon Torreon is becoming evident as his campaign advances. By clearing up Durango and obtaining control of the rail head there, and by opening reinforcements, three rail lines between Saltillo, Monterey and Torreon, he has left the rebels but one direction of retreat is possible—northward to Chihuahua.

LEADERS FLEE TO U. S.

Even should they choose to defend Torreon and encircling movement would take this last avenue of retreat from them. Their position would then be that of a natural and artificial cul de sac from which extraction would be difficult.

Defection of rebel leaders in the north was revealed today when it became known that Presidente Municipale Rogerio Loreto of Agua Prieta, who has been considered one of the revolutionary heads in northern Sonora, and other Mexican rebel officers had sought refuge on the American side of the border.

This action was taken by the rebel leaders after a reported breach between rebel civil and military authorities at Agua Prieta. The breach was said to have placed that town in uncertain status in the rebel movement.

On reaching American soil at Douglas, Ariz., President Lorzo and his followers sent an emissary back to Agua Prieta to confer with Gen. Ramon Yucupicio, the rebel commander there.

Loreto said he sought "further assurances" from Yucupicio before venturing to return to Agua Prieta. Loreto and his party were said to have exhibited signs of "utter fear."

MAY BE INTERNED.

Gen. Yucupicio in a telephone conversation admitted he had broken with the civil government of Agua Prieta, but denied that he had severed all connection with the rebel cause. He said he was awaiting orders from Gen. Manzo at Nogales.

By entering American territory Loreto and his party became liable to internment, according to the position taken yesterday by the American government with relation to the Mexican insurrectionists.

Some additional worry to rebels in the north was caused by the possession of Naco by federal troops. Naco is an important point between the rebel strongholds in the states of Sonora and Chihuahua.

Gen. Obaches, with 1200 men, mostly Yaqui and Mayo Indians, is firmly entrenched at Naco, and has been in communication with Gen. Calles, chief of all the federal armies.

FIN. COM. HEAD HITS RING FOR COUNTY RULE

sion to extend civil service laws to county positions.

"Continuance of the fee system instead of fixed salary payments is an anacronism in a democracy.

"We still have two city departments in Boston which allow clerks to retain such fees, but efforts are being made to put an end to it. In the sheriff's office, however, all fees for the serving of warrants are pooled and divided among the sheriff and his deputies.

"No salary is paid to either the sheriff or his deputies, but all expenses of office are paid by the city. No reports of fees collected have ever been publicly made, but one sheriff told the Finance Commission $26,000 was yearly collected.

"When the civil service law was passed, it included within its provisions only the cities and towns. Counties were not within its provisions. This omission was due to the county rings of the State, which united then and always unite when county patronage is threatened.

"DEALS" ARE MADE

"Failure to apply civil service law to Suffolk County appointments has resulted in the exclusion of practically all qualified persons except friends and acquaintances of the appointing power, and the quality of these appointees depends entirely on him.

"In some cases where a contest for city offices looms or where a threat to run is made, bargains are arrived at, and the opposing candidate is 'taken care of.' The natural result is increased cost of administration and loss of efficiency."

Think Missing Man Victim of Amnesia

Portland, Me., March 14—William N. Harmon of Bangor, missing for nine days, since the burning of his summer home at Sunset, was found by his brother, Edward Z. Harmon of this city, to be a victim of amnesia, wandering aimlessly about New England.

The brother here points out that Harmon, who has conducted a store in Bangor, was about to embark on a new business venture and he believes the strain of preparation caused a breakdown and loss of memory. He has asked the governor of Maine and various official bodies of this State to aid in the search.

Newport, Ct., March 14 — To many benefactions which have come to Westport and Norwalk from Edward T. Bedford, multi-millionaire and former officer of the Standard Oil Co., is to be added a trust fund of more than a million dollars, for the benefit of Norwalk Hospital, Westport Y. M. S. A., and the Westport schools.

The establishment of the fund was confirmed by Bedford's representative, John Cavanaugh, who said that details would be made known when Mr. and Mrs Bedford return from their winter home at Lake Wales, Fla.

One of the largest consolidations in the history of the New England cotton industry was on record today. Six large cotton manufacturing companies merged into the Berkshire Fine Cotton Spinning Association, Inc. The committee in charge of the merger was headed by John E. Sullivan.

The merger brings 515,000 spindles under one management.

No Drunkenness in Great Army Led by Gen. Calles

Aguascallentes, Mexico, March 14 (AP)—A group of American correspondents proceeding to the front near Torreon, were guests here of the American consul, who said that of all the Government troops which have passed through here in the last few days he had seen not one drunk or disorderly.

The correspondents were assigned a car to leave today for the Calles headquarters in Northern Zacatecas. They traveled in the charge of Gen. Enrique Osornio, who amputated the left arm of Gen. Obregon after the battle of Celaya in 1915.

May Realize Hope on Anti-War Pact

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Hopes of Secretary Kellogg that the treaty to renounce war which bears his name might go into effect before he leaves office have received impetus with word that the Belgian Senate had ratified the pact.

In addition, the Cuban embassy has deposited at the department of Cuba's instrument of adherence to the treaty. With the signature of King Albert, Belgium's adherence will be complete, and only the adherence of Poland, France and Japan will then be necessary to put the pact into effect.

Revolt Soon to End in a 'Rebel Chase', Says Portes Gil

Mexico City, March 14 (INS)—"After the defeat of the rebels on the Torreon front it will merely be a matter of chase," declared President Emilio Portes Gil today. The president expects word within 24 hours that the battle has begun.

Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president, but now war minister, sent word to President Portes Gil that he would personally direct the Federal assault upon the rebel works in the hills of the Conhuilla-Durango frontier.

ning smoothly, the colonel made a long run down the field and took off perfectly at 9:37 o'clock. A second plane for Brownsville followed a few minutes later.

Anne Morrow was not at the field, nor was there any member of the Morrow family. The colonel's farewells were in the privacy of the embassy residence. Only a small group of the usual field force was on hand to witness the departure.

Another Travel-Air plane will meet Lindbergh at Brownsville. The plane in which he originally flew to Mexico City and in which he was injured when it somersaulted after a landing with one wheel missing, was left behind. It rested in a hangar at Valbuena Field, shattered almost beyond repair.

LINDY IS AFFABLE.

Although the Lone Eagle was in his usual taciturn mood when he first reached the flying field, he later thawed out and chatted with newspaper men and strangers. Just before he got into his plane he had become so affable that he was shaking hands. It was a different Lindbergh from the one most often seen at flying fields. Ordinarily he is silent and strictly unsociable, ignoring applause and remarks addressed to him by reporters and strangers.

Asked about plans for his wedding to Miss Morrow, Lindbergh replied:

"I cannot tell you anything about that now."

"When do you expect to come back?"

"I cannot say that either," Lindbergh answered, "but I would like to come as often as possible."

Lindbergh showed a keen interest in the development of the military campaign in the north and in the prospective battle on the Torreon line. In fact, he became so interested that he forgot aviation.

4 Gangsters Begin 100 Years, "In Solitary"

The four gangsters sentenced to an aggregate of about 100 years in state prison spent their first day today in solitary confinement. They were to be released from "solitary" shortly after dusk.

The four are Americo Tutella, sentenced to from 24 to 28 years; Pasquale Vallerelli, 21 to 24 years; Carmino Ventola, 21 to 24 years and Angelo Pelcart, 21 to 24 years.

Their entrance brought the number of prisoners at Charlestown to 900. The record number is 957, and this would have been exceeded except that 12 prisoners were sent yesterday to the prison camp at Norfolk and two were discharged.

"Radio Disturber" Bill Is Offered

Concord, N. H., March 14—Disturbance of radio reception would be a misdemeanor under a bill introduced in the State Senate. The bill provides that no person shall maintain or operate any machine that "unreasonably disturbs the reception of radio waves," under penalty of a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $50.

SUMMARY OF MEXICO WAR SITUATION

(By Associated Press)

Developments in the Mexican revolt today were as follows:

1—As powerful federal armies continued to close in on the rebel stronghold at Torreon the revolutionary ranks along the northern border today gave signs of beginning to falter.

2—Coming closely on the heels of the action of Naco in returning to Government allegiance, a breach between the authorities took place in Agues Prieta. It was uncertain whether the town had returned to the Government fold.

3—Gen Obaches, who took Naco in the name of the Government, with 1200 Mayo and Yaqui Indians, is firmly entrenched and has been in touch with Gen. Calles, the federal commander-in-chief. He is expecting reinforcements.

4—The rebels claimed the capture of 700 federal soldiers in an encounter at Artega yesterday, but this was offset by reports from Gen. Almazan, who is leading one of the main federal armies against Torreon, that he had captured 4000 revolutionists on four troop trains.

6—At the same time Gen. Calles is pressing northward through the State of Zacatecas and has shifted his headquarters from Rio Grande to Frio, bringing him more closely in touch with events in Durango.

7—Desultory fighting between federal and rebel outposts was reported, in one skirmish 14 rebels being reported killed, many wounded and some captured. Of these seven were court-martialed and executed.

8—The insurgents on the west coast were standing still. The Government reported them demoralized and ready to bolt northward at the first sign of collapse of the rebel movements.

...INKS FLO LEEDS TO STILLMAN IN SUIT

INDIAN GUIDE NAMES HER AS CO-DEFENDANT

New York, March 14—Frederick K. Beauvais, Indian guide, suing James A. Stillman for $500,000 on a slander charge, has asked that Florence H. Leeds, one-time affinity of Stillman's, be made a co-defendant in the suit.

Supreme Court Justice Dike of Brooklyn signed an order directing Stillman, Mrs. Leeds, "John Doe" and "Robert Roe" to show cause why supplemental complaints and summonses should not be served on them.

SUIT CHARGES RECALLED

When Stillman brought his divorce suit against Mrs. Stillman, naming the guide as father of the child Guy, she countered by charging him with having been intimate with Mrs. Leeds. A jury brought in a verdict in her favor and denied Stillman his divorce.

On what grounds it is desired to make Mrs. Leeds defendant in the slander suit against Stillman will be revealed next Monday when the order issued by Judge Dike is returnable.

CHARGES ADMITTED

Stillman admits that he charged Beauvais with the paternity of Guy Stillman. But in answer to the complaint he says:

"Upon appeal the Appellate Division struck out the findings that the defendant, Anne U. Stillman, was innocent of the charges made against her, and, as so modified, affirmed said judgment."

Further defense is that the suit is barred by the statute of limitations.

Stillman's motion for a change of venue from New York to Westchester County was argued today.

COURT TO RULE ON DIVORCE OF MRS. HOMER

The mystery of the Florida divorce obtained by the late Mrs. Bertha L. M. Homer of Egremont rd., Brighton, was equalled today by the confusion surrounding the whereabouts of her husband, George W. Homer, Wellesley jeweler.

At the Egremont rd. home it was said the Homer, who first learned of his wife's "quickie divorce" when her will was found, had gone to Florida to check up on the alleged decree.

In direct contradiction an employe of the Wellesley shop said his employer was in Boston.

Meantime the question of the legality of the divorce has been placed before Suffolk probate court. On its ruling depends the question of whether Homer will receive one-third of his wife's estate as her husband, or merely the $5000 she bequeathed to "my beloved friend," George W. Homer.

After his wife's death on January 23 last Homer discovered that without his knowledge she had journeyed to Miami, obtained a divorce and, keeping it a secret, had returned to live with him. Furthermore, while still in Miami, and on the date she drew up the will, Mrs. Homer wrote her husband, addressing him as "Darling," and signing herself "Love unending, Your Betty."

Because of the fact that Homer received no notification of the divorce, and his wife returned to live with him, it is believed the local court will rule that the Florida decree is not binding.

USE GAS MASKS TO SAVE AUTOS IN A FIRE

Firemen wearing gas masks saved five automobiles from destruction by flames today in the two and a half-story building occupied by the Myero brothers, used car dealers, on Berkeley st., near Tremont st.

Thick smoke from burning rubber filled the building, driving all the employes, eight in umber, to the street. The smoke also poured into a four-story apartment building next door and settled over other buildings like a heavy cloud.

The fire started from undetermined origin in the basement. The automobiles appeared to be doomed but firemen ran them from the basement into the yard and got the flames under control. Damage was estimated at $2,000. Three autos were damaged by the flames.

Windows were freely smashed to let out the smoke and in the apartment block occupants had to throw open all their windows to ventilate the rooms. The fire was opposite the old Scenic auditorium.

HUNT 'WINDOW SHADE' THIEF

Northampton, March 14—Local police today hunted a "window shade burglar" who entered three homes in the Bridge st. district of the city.

In each case the burglar pulled down the shades of all windows before ransacking the rooms. Police said he must have "done his job" in most leisurely fashion.

At the home of Norbert Allaire, 186 Bridge st., a rear window was forced, and though the house was ransacked only two gold rings are known to have been taken.

At the home of Joseph Szafer, 43 Orchard st., a silver watch, gold chain and a gold-handled knife were taken.

At the home of Philip A. Vickus, 47 Orchard st., entrance was gained by the back door with a skeleton key and though the thief went all over the house only two silver quarters were taken. A number of bank bills were overlooked.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News Service.)

Ormond Beach, Fla., March 14—John D. Rockefeller, once the wealthiest man in the world, said today he feels as young as he did 10 years ago and, at 89, he is getting as much happiness out of life as he ever did.

"My health is good," said Mr. Rockefeller. "My heart is all right, it gives me no trouble. I live moderately and I chew my food thoroughly.

"I have many friends. I have learned how to enjoy life and I am happy. I thank God for the blessings He has bestowed upon me. Sometimes I think we are ashamed to openly acknowledge His goodness.

SAYS HE'S HAPPY

"I am getting a great deal out of life. I love everybody, and I haven't an enemy in the world that I know of. I have all the blessings any person could ask."

Mr. Rockefeller was reminded that Thomas A. Edison, on the occasion of his birthday last month, told the press there was no such thing as a happy person.

"Why, I'm happy," exclaimed Mr. Rockefeller in all sincerity.

As he emerged from his car he was confronted by a dozen tourists, cameras in hand. He posed for a picture or two. He was attracted by the appearance of a golden-haired girl of about six, Lovice Stokes, of Ormond Beach.

"What pretty curls," he exclaimed, toying with them. He reached into his pocket and produced a dime for the blushing child.

BAY STATER IN PARTY

Then he saw a little boy. He trotted over to him, handed him a dime and then raised his leg over the boy's head, as if to show how fine he was feeling. Everybody laughed. He jollied with one or two other children.

In Mr. Rockefeller's foursome at golf were William T. Sheppard, an attorney of Lowell, Mass.; Miss Marie L. Callmeyer of Madison, N. J., and Mrs. L. De Ver Warner of Bridgeport, Ct., with four darkies as caddies.

"I believe in moderation," he said as he finished playing. "I could play a few more holes without tiring, but I don't believe it's the thing to do.

"What will you do with the rest of your day?" he was asked.

NO MIDNIGHT OIL

"Well," he smiled, "I'm going over to my home and take a shower and a rest before I have light luncheon. After luncheon I will take a nap and then go for a motor ride. I will rest again before dinner, and after dinner I will read before going to bed about 9 o'clock."

"What do you read, Mr. Rockefeller—the classics, detective stories or what?"

"Oh, most everything. But nothing trashy. I like the Bible as well as anything."

"What message would you give to other folks in the twilight of life?"

"I wouldn't give anybody else a message—I'd give it to myself," he replied. "I have ideals, but I don't know that I live up to them. Everybody should have ideals."

He seemed in high spirits and told a story.

"Once there was an Irishman, a good fellow, who wanted to join the Fr. Matthews Society," he related. "The society believed in temperance, and they asked him if he drank. He hesitated and stammered:

"'Well, I may take a drop or two unbeknown to myself.'"

1000-FOOT FALL KILLS MINER

Officials were unable to account for the accident, as the cage from which Chesney was pushing a mine car, covered the opening of the shaft in which he plunged to his death. It is believed that Chesney slipped and fell as he stepped from the cage.

The action was revealed today when Supreme Court Justice Townley signed an order permitting substituted service of the summons and complaint on Miss Meade. An investigator had reported Miss Meade evading service.

Mrs. Smith charges Miss Meade, who became acquainted with Smith in 1923 at Great Neck, induced him to leave her.

THIS IS YEARLY FIGURE, SAYS COL. NUTT

By KENNETH CLARK

Washington, March 14 — Drugs valued at not less than $300,000,000 in the underworld market is smuggled into the United States each year.

This staggering total is not a fanciful figure, but is based on the conservative calculations of Col. L. O. Nutt, chief of the federal narcotics bureau.

"Our surveys indicate that there are approximately 100,000 addicts in the United States," said Col. Nutt. "The addict uses an average of eight grains of morphine a day. He must have this dosage every day of the year.

CAUSE OF CRIMES

"Therefore, he would require 292,000,000 grains of morphine to supply these addicts. As the underworld price for morphine is between $1 and $1.50 a grain, the total value of the morphine in the bootleg market is at least $292,000,000."

The plethora of crimes committed by addicts is attributed mainly to their need for funds to buy the drugs. If purchased in small lots, as most drugs are, the addict would have to spend at least $2920 a year for dope.

RISK LIFE FOR SUPPLY

Few of the underworld addicts have incomes of $3000 a year, and thus it is that they resort to all manner of crime, robbery, assault, even murder, to obtain funds necessary to obtain the drugs.

"The total of smuggled morphine is about twice the amount which the government permits to be imported as raw opium to be manufactured into morphine for the legitimate medical and scientific use of the 120,000,000 people of the country."

HOOVER PLANS TO AID N. E. INDUSTRIES

Washington, March 14—Aiding in the prosperity of Boston and New England, through a constructive plan to be worked out later, is the purpose of President Hoover, following a conference Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, Mass., had with the Chief Executive.

The Hoover influence is expected to help Boston get fair ocean freight rates, fighting for which has been blocked for many months.

Also, Hoover is expected to aid New England industry in general, especially the textile industry.

Immediately after the conference, the Congresswoman left for New England, where she is to make a thorough business survey, preliminary to asking Hoover to authorize a department of Commerce survey.

Coincident with her visit to the White House it was made known that Hoover is to continue Mrs. Rogers as the personal representative of the President in respect to disabled veterans, a unique and highly desirable, though extremely burdensome appointment given her first by the late President Harding and continued by President Coolidge.

In the opinion of Mrs. Rogers equalized freight rates would be a great contribution to the betterment of New England.

WRECK BLOCKS RAILROAD

Woodsville, N. H., March 14—Railroad traffic north of this point was still tied up here today as a result of the wrecking of a freight train at Barretts. Twelve cars were derailed. Workmen rushed repairs to the tracks in the hope of opening up the line this afternoon.

The cars are turned over and twisted around and piled up in every direction.

Ten of the cars were loaded with paper pulpwood and merchandise, which is strewn in all directions, and the loss will be large, it is believed.

The cause has not yet been determined. There were no injuries to the crew.

TAKING DRUG IN JAIL GETS HIM 2-YEAR TERM

A sleep-producing drug consumed by James Francis McDonald of May pl., South End, after a meal has been sentenced to a year in Plymouth jail for purchasing narcotics, today resulted in his being given a stiffer sentence of two years in the Worcester house of correction when original sentence was revoked by Judge James M. Morton in Federal court, and new sentence passed, after McDonald told his story.

Last Friday, when he appeared for sentence, McDonald created a stir in court by charging that widespread traffic in drugs existed in Atlanta penitentiary, where he had just completed a term. He begged Judge Morton to send him anywhere but there, and Plymouth was selected.

After being taken to the cage in the marshal's office to await transportation to jail, McDonald collapsed and was taken in a cab to East Cambridge jail.

Today he told Judge Morton that for two weeks prior to Friday, while he was in East Cambridge jail lacking bail, he suffered torments through craving drugs. On Friday, when taken to the cage, a friend appeared and McDonald said he sent out for two bottles of the drug. The prisoner said he drank the contents of one bottle, being ignorant of its strength, and was rendered semi-conscious.

STAGE STARS JOIN SOCIETY TO AID CHARITY AT RITZ-CARLTON CABARET—BETTY ALDEN

Gilda Gray and Tom Mix Among the Entertainers

IF SO ULTRA AN ESTABLISHMENT as the Hotel Ritz-Carlton can be said to have rafters, then the rafters of its delicately tinted ballroom rang with applause last evening at Society's headline cabaret show. Headline in every way it was—with a galaxy of stage stars shedding a lustre on the occasion, a fashion show de luxe and the fashionable headliners out in force. It's not so very often, almost never, that local smartdom has served up to it, a la cabaret, a fashion show de luxe and stage celebrities whose names twinkling in electric radiance help to make the Great White Way a phenomenon to thrill even the most blase.

REALLY, SOCIETY DID NOT turn out so splendidly just to do a charitable good turn for Elizabeth Peabody House. It turned out, warmly appreciative, because it was promised a Gilda Gray, an Ed Wynn and a Tom Mix as prime attractions—and given these three no midnight show could be other than a topnotch success. Miss Gray, whose name is blazoned aloft in the electric signs on several continents, brought some of her dancers from the Big Time and with them staged an Oriental number, entrancingly the Gilda Gray sort, done to an accompaniment of rapid-fire applause.

OF COURSE THERE'S ONLY one Ed Wynn and there's only one Tom Mix—the latter helped the good work along by shedding the light of his countenance on the assemblage, and the former told a story or two, as only he can. And Boston's haute monde melts beneath the cabaret's midnight sun and all is merry. Parties in the electric signs on several continents, brought some of her dancers from the Big Time and with them staged an Oriental number, entrancingly the Gilda Gray sort, done to an accompaniment of rapid-fire applause.

Former U. S. Senator Scores Dry Law

"Merely to state the purpose and intent of the Eighteenth Amendment, supplemented by the Volstead Act, is to demonstrate its utter futility."

This was the indictment leveled at existing prohibition laws by former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York. The former senator continued:

"It is imperative that a determined and persistent effort be made by the patriotic people of the country to solve the prohibition problems, and I am glad that Mr. Hearst has made his splendid offer for the best solution. That offer as I understand it, emphasizes that temperance is what we all want.

"The offer will lead people to think more deeply on the fundamental issues, and unquestionably will bring out valuable suggestions. Present conditions are intolerable and there is no hope that they will grow better under existing laws.

HYPOCRISY IS HIT

"The Eighteenth Amendment can have but one meaning—that the 120,000,000 people in the United States shall be total abstainers under legal compulsion.

"Every observant person is well aware of what is going on in every city, village and hamlet in the United States, not excepting the Hawaiian Islands and our other territorial possessions.

"It is a spectacle of wholesale violation, indulged in by people in every walk of life. Corruption is widespread and winked at. Hypocrisy is the prevailing habit of mind and the Constitution is sinking into disrespect.

"We would better cure this situation ere the disease becomes incurable. We would do well to study the very interesting and successful systems now in operation in the Canadian provinces, Sweden, Norway, Great Britain, Holland and other countries."

Other expressions concerning the drawbacks of prohibition, and anent the Hearst $25,000 temperance prize contest to find a temperance substitute for it, follow:

JAMES B. FORGAN, Jr., vice-president of the First National Bank, and chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the American Red Cross—Prohibition is a distinct and miserable failure. The chaos attendant upon its ridiculous position in our nation fosters a disregard for the law that has swept every city in the country with devastating results.

STEP TO SANITY

I think Mr. Hearst's offer for the best temperance solution of our liquor problem, is an excellent step toward substituting sanity for prohibition.

It is high time for America to realize the utter failure of the dry laws and to replace them with intelligent legislation which would eliminate the saloon, and provide for regulating the sale of liquor under a plan similar to that now operated by the Canadian government.

I believe that with President Hoover's able leadership, a federal commission should get busy at once, consider all the various temperance plans such as those being submitted in the Hearst contest and select the one best designed to guide the nation out of the prohibition chaos in which it now finds itself.

ADELBERT MOOT, member of the New York State Board of Regents, Buffalo — Like countless other Americans, I am satisfied that statutes alone can never make prohibition effective. A law that would insure temperance, such as proposed by Mr. Hearst in his offer, would restore man's confidence in law and bring about a gradual abolition of unwarranted drinking now going on in the country.

OFFER PRAISED

It is perfectly apparent that people will drink in spite of the fact that it is prohibited, them and much more than if the legal access to liquors.

There are thousands of people drinking now who never tasted it before prohibition became effective. Had a suitable temperance law been instituted instead of prohibition, it is reasonable to believe that such conditions would have been averted.

Mr. Hearst is performing a public service if his generous offer brings about its intended results. His initiative is deserving of commendation.

LON T. JOHNSON, banker, Los Angeles Harbor, California—The $25,000 offered by William Randolph Hearst in his temperance prize contest will do more good than all of the money being appropriated for the enforcement of the prohibition law.

My recent tour of Europe has convinced me that our prohibition system is wrong, and that for the good of young and old alike we must find moderation and temperance. The Hearst contest is to my mind the ideal way to bring that about.

During the months I have spent in Europe, I saw only one intoxicated European. He was a man who had just lost a huge fortune in the stock market. That lack of excesses made me begin thinking whether or not our prohibition law was a success.

The people, who are being fully awakened by the $25,000 offer of Mr. Hearst, will surely meet this crisis in the correct way—probably the way which will be the winning plan in the temperance contest.

POVLA FRIJSH IN HUB CONCERT

By MOSES SMITH

Povla Frijsh, Danish soprano, made her only appearance of the season in a song recital at Jordan Hall last night. It was a remarkable performance, but so have been her previous efforts of recent years.

Mme. Frijsh is clearly of an artistic stature not ordinarily associated with vocal artists. A musical connoisseur is prone to speak of such-and-such a pianist as a, "great musician." Occasionally he will dignify a violinist, more rarely a 'cellist, with such praise. Few, indeed, are the singers in this select circle; Mme. Frijsh is one of them.

As an interpretative artist she has few peers among singers. In her program last night she was ever at pains to convey the emotional content of the text and music of the song, while carefully preserving the musical outline. Moreover, her interpretations were not purely intellectual, overstudied; they came apparently from within.

Her rendition of Debussy's "Colloque Sentimental" was a mountain peak of art. With the help of her excellent accompanist, Celius Dougherty, she made Arensky's poignant waltz-song, "A Memory," truly a memory—with no pun intended! Naturally the Scandinavian songs were done with consummate artistry. But her utmost skill could not make quite convincing Dvorak's two biblical songs, "By the Waters of Babylon" and "Sing Ye a Joyful Song."

The audience, which was large, applauded with almost tumultuous enthusiasm. Repetitions and extras added to the announced program.

GREAT "QUEST" BRINGS FLOOD OF LETTERS

A deluge of letters received by the Quest Editor was striking evidence of the great interest the New England public is taking in the selective search being made for the "Typical American Girl."

The same interest is shown everywhere in the country, for the Quest has quickly taken hold of public attention.

Many are entering the names of girl relatives or friends. Many girls also, who desire to enroll are writing, asking for information. They should read carefully what follows:

While the majority of nominations received for the "Typical American Girl" include photographs of the girls sponsored, the Quest Editor points out at this time that no nomination can receive fullest consideration unless ALL of the rules are followed.

This means that certain information is required with each nomination. A brief biography of the girl should be given; her age, weight, height, coloring—hair and complexion—education, social, business and athletic activities should be described.

MUST BE DONE

Unless this is done, of course, the committee of local judges is unable to fully evaluate the candidate in this quest.

When preparing the nomination of a girl for the title of the "Typical American Girl" and the award of $5000, read the rules of the contest thoroughly before sending in the nomination. It will make things easier for the Quest Editor and the judges, and better for your candidate.

Remember that a candidate must be proposed by another person, or by some club, sorority, society, or organization, but not by herself.

This Quest is a sincere effort on the part of Smart Set Magazine to find the American girl who best represents certain standards determined as those typical of the most popular girl in the world—the American miss.

GUESTS OF MAGAZINE

There are 17 newspapers throughout the country co-operating in this quest. Each will select from the nominations a regional candidate who will be sent to New York, with all expenses paid. From the 17 girls, so chosen, the "Typical American Girl" will be selected.

During the visit to New York, which will be for a week, the girls will be guests of the Smart Set Magazine. Of course, both on the trip to the city, and during the entire affair each girl will be properly chaperoned.

Northampton, March 14 (AP)—Six Smith College students, chosen because they best exemplify the college ideal of sportsmanship, were awarded "S" pins today by President William A. Neilson. Pins were awarded the following: Alice Easton, West Newton; Caroline Mowry, Englewood, N. J.; Margaret Palfrey, Brookline; Agnes Rogers, Buffalo, N. Y.; Janet Mahoney, Scarboro, N. Y., and Fanny Curtis, Boston.

Dandy Way to Tint Gray Hair

By MONA EVERS

I don't blame any woman for wanting to do something about gray, faded or streaked hair because there is nothing that makes one look older.

Whenever I am asked for a method of restoring gray hair I invariably recommend nothing more or less than a mixture of good sage tea and sulphur. Common garden sage, when properly brewed and mixed with sulphur and a little alcohol, makes a wonderful recipe for gray hair. You can either prepare the mixture at home yourself, or more conveniently, buy it already prepared and ready to use. All druggists carry it in the form of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, and since the cost is only 75c a bottle, there is really no need to prepare it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one strand at a time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your hair to its original color, so evenly, so naturally that no one can possibly tell you have used it. Everyone who tries Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur tells me he, or she, gets perfect results, so I don't hesitate to pass the secret on to others.

Foch, Dying, Fights Old Battles Again

Paris, March 14 (AP)—Idleness, mental and physical, is Marshal Foch's most dangerous enemy as he lies on the sick bed where, since January 14, the greatest military captain of the World's War has been fighting what many believe and fear will be his last battle.

Attacked by a coalition of diseases, in which heart, kidneys and lungs joined forces, any one of which separately has proven fatal to countless mortals, Foch has rebelled against only one general order, namely, the complete repose.

"Bring me that plan of the 20th Army Corps during the first battle of the Marne," Foch's voice rang out one day to nurses and doctors as if once more commanding the military staffs at Senlis.

"Napoleon's greatest stroke was at Rivoli," Foch laid down the law one day to Doctors Heitz-Boyer and Daveniere, after he had insisted that military strategy be discussed.

The medical men, perturbed about the marshal's blood pressure, high temperature and hectic pulse, dared not oppose the old soldier.

The doctors halted her and the painting dropped to the floor. It was the "Battle of Montmirail."

Foch, after kissing his granddaughter, gave one look to the canvas on the floor, then turning to the doctors, said: "I believe you are right, the campaign of France was Napoleon's best."

York, Duchess Go to Sweden for Wedding

London, March 14 (AP)—The Duke of York, second son of King George, and the Duchess of York left for Oslo, where they will attend the wedding of Prince Olav of Norway to Princess Martha of Sweden on March 21.

They will represent King George and Queen Mary. The Duke also will be the Prince's best man.

SHAW WON'T TIP HIS APPLE CART

London, March 14 (AP)—George Bernard Shaw has written another play, "The Apple Cart."

The famous Irish dramatist, sage, philosopher and prophet has peeped into the future and woven an ultra-modern political plot, as unlike "Saint Joan," his last play, as anything can be. That is about all the public will know about "The Apple Cart" until Sir Barry Jackson produces it in his theater in August.

The mere announcement of a new Shaw play caused renewed search for information about the foremost man of the English theater, who, living in the heart of London, overlooking the sweep of the Thames, buries himself on big tablets of green paper, writing meticulous, elementary shorthand notes, with all the vowels in place, that mean a new shaw book or a new Shaw drama.

Woman Plunges 10 Stories to Death

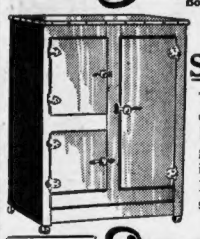

New York, March 14 (AP)—Claire Gessner, 27, of Williston Park, Long Island, jumped or fell from a 10th story window of the Colonial Hotel today, suffering fatal injuries.

A policeman picked her up, put her in a taxicab and took her to a hospital. She talked incoherently before dying. The hotel management said she registered yesterday.

There are no bargains in health

To safeguard precious health and preserve your teeth, avail yourself of the best skill and knowledge of dental science. It is necessary. It is the only reasonably sure means of preventing disease that attacks neglected gums, thus ravaging the system, robbing youth, and often causing loss of teeth. This disease is the more serious for only dental care can stem its advance once it is contacted.

See your dentist at least every six months.

Brush your teeth regularly. But don't forget that teeth are only as healthy as the gums. So brush gums vigorously, morning and night, with the dentifrice made for the purpose, Forhan's for the Gums. It helps to keep them firm and sound.

After you have used Forhan's for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel—firmer, sounder—thus strong enough to resist disease. Also you'll find that Forhan's cleans teeth and helps to protect them from decay.

There are no bargains in health. Get a tube of Forhan's from your druggist and start using it today.

Forhan's for the gums

Education Is Hurt by Income Tax

In advocating downward revision of federal taxation on earned income, Atty. Herbert A. Baker, a leading Boston lawyer, says the present federal income tax law does not encourage the higher education of children.

Atty. Baker believes the taxpayer requires relief in this direction. He feels that so long as parents are educating their children after 18 years of age they should be allowed reasonable deductions, based on estimated expense to the parent or of the actual amount expended.

This nationwide movement for a downward revision of taxation on earned income, being supported by Hearst newspapers throughout the country, it attracting the attention of physicians, lawyers, architects, journalists, college professors, teachers, labor leaders and others everywhere.

Here is what Atty. Baker says:

UNJUSTIFIABLE

"The Federal income tax seems to be based on a reasonable theory and it is, of course, fitting and proper that the individual should contribute something to the support of the government from the income which he receives, as contrasted with the direct tax on property which the individual owns. It does not seem, however, that the theory is well worked out in all its applications to specific cases.

"It does not seem that anything can be said in justification of the amounts set for various deductions. For instance, the deduction for dependent children under 18 of $400 is hardly more than a movement toward a proper sum. The actual expense to a taxpayer is on the average, double this amount and the age 18 is only the beginning of the expenses of educating children, at which time the taxpayer certainly requires more relief than before. This does little to encourage the higher education of children.

PENALIZES THRIFT

"It also seems an injustice to tax those persons, who, because of age or circumstance, are not employed, with a deduction from income of only $1500. If an aged person who has worked hard all his life to gain a competence receives an income from fixed interest he is allowed only a $1500 exemption, after which he must pay one and one-half per cent, which would seem to be wrong in principle and a penalty on thrift.

"Of course, any resident of Massachusetts who criticizes the federal income tax may well be met with a robert conference and the question why his own house is not put in order and the income tax laws of Massachusetts made at least as reasonable as the federal tax.

It is easy to compute that a man who lives in Boston, or its suburbs, owns a home valued at $10,000, and has an income of $5000 per year must work at least a month in order to pay his taxes. This will ordinarily be about $300 on his real estate, $45 income to the State and approximately an equal amount for a federal tax, a total of $390, which is almost one month's income.

Copper Wire Stolen

Springfield, March 14—The theft of copper trolley wire valued at about $3000 from the storage barns of the Springfield Street Railway Co. in West Springfield, worth.

JONES LAW IS AN EXCUSE TO LIFT BOOTLEG COST

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Many reports have reached the ears of prohibition enforcement officials that bootleggers were scurrying to cover since the enactment of the Jones bill to increase penalties for dry law violations, but there is no official confirmation of such stories at the Treasury Department.

Coincident with the report that bootleggers were becoming frightened, it was believed that the price of liquor was being doubled or tripled because of the added risks involved. These types of reports caused officials to smile, and they expressed the belief that the bootleggers were using a pretext to obtain from their customers a great deal more than the poor quality of liquor sold in this country was worth.

Sign This and Cut Your Taxes

To the Congress of the United States:

THE undersigned respectfully urges that Congress give immediate consideration to the proposition that there be a downward revision of all taxes on earned incomes.

This is urged because in many instances earners of salaries, wages, fees or commissions for personal services have only a few years of good incomes, and prior to and after that period have substantially smaller incomes.

Their period of better earnings, which might give them a chance to accumulate some savings, is heavily taxed. Labor in general, clerical workers, salesmen, lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects, journalists, accountants, actors, musicians, singers and members of all other professions are in the same plight in the matter of earned incomes, as compared with earnings on capital.

The use of my name on a petition to Congress is hereby granted.

Clubwomen Urged to Study Government

PRESIDENT HOOVER'S investigating committee should clean house in the department of the Secretary of State in the opinion of Mrs. Charles E. French of Lowell, State Federation chairman of international relations, addressing the Boston Woman's Civic Club at the Hotel Burnswick.

"One of the worst messes in the Government service has been caused by the inadequate salaries paid in this department," Mrs. French declared. She was introduced to the club by its international relations chairman, Mrs. William E. Birdsall.

"Higher paid men from the foreign bureau work in the department of the Secretary of State and this causes friction among a staff where none is paid more than $8000 a year. This department needs a thorough renovation, with more money," Mrs. French declared.

Mrs. Charles E. French

She expressed confidence in President Hoover as one "who will find a way to get out of trouble" and who is to be congratulated on his choice of a cabinet of self-made men. "Even if that cabinet is composed of all rich men, we can be sure they are working for national prosperity which touches all of us," she said. "It does not follow that a man is invulnerable if he is rich any more than if he is poor—and the high type selected should reassure everyone."

MUST STUDY ALL SIDES

"It is easy to get a particular slant on international questions and be unable to see any other side, but let clubs remember that propagandists talk but governments act. To properly understand actions of our own Government, we must study every side of each question."

People are inclined to trust each other more today than ever before in the world's history, the speaker said, and the interests of every nation are now so interwoven that international relations study is necessary to every well-informed person.

SEES U. S. IN WORLD COURT

"Our entrance into the World Court seems imminent," Mrs. French continued. "With Secretary Root's Geneva report accepted, it is only a matter of time until we shall be in that court and that means putting teeth into the Kellogg Pact, which all women are hoping for."

Mrs. French's final advice to clubs was to take a topic and study it, debating both sides, and deciding for themselves rather than listening to a lecturer who has dug out facts for them.

"After all, it is what you take home in your own brain that is of value to you," she counselled. "Read everything and study your government. Think for yourself."

Mahar Is Appointed Counsel for Cullen

John B. Mahar of Rockland was today appointed by Superior Court at Plymouth as counsel for Christopher E. Cullen, alleged wife slayer. Cullen, who is charged with the murder of his wife, Cora Jacques Cullen, in an East Hingham cornfield, probably will go on trial in the May session of Plymouth Superior Court. He was captured in Miami, Fla., after a police hunt following the murder.

SEN... ON RU... COUR...

By WILLIAM ...
International N...
Corre...

Washington, March 14—The old Senate irreconcilable groups, minus the inspired leadership of James A. Reed, of Missouri, will fight any modification of the American terms of adherence to the World Court.

The irreconcilables today served notice of war against the terms proposed by Elihu Root, at the Geneva conference. Root, however, stole a march on the irreconcilables, it was learned, by submitting his plan to the World Court leaders before going to Europe.

It met with their approval, then he showed it to Senator William E. Borah (R.), of Id... the Senate Foreig... mittee, but Borah ... occurred at the conference.

The other side was optimistic. Senators Swanson (D.), of Virginia, and Walsh (D.), of Montana, who led the League of Nations fight and supported the Coolidge administration in the World Court fight, predicted that the Senate would approve the new Root terms.

Miss Costello is one of Vitaphone's biggest boosters, and why [w]ouldn't she be? This happened in "Tender[loi]n," Miss Costello's first appearance in the talkers.

A tryout for talking pictures convinced Warner Bros. that she had an excellent speaking voice. The demand for Dolores was so great that while production was going on for "The Redeeming Sin," she was working in "Noah's Ark."

"Thanks For Bon-Tone—It Removed The Cause Of My Ankles Swelling," Says Miss Croteau.

Miss Hilda Croteau of 174 Brook St., Manchester, states. "My work requires me to be on my feet most all day and my ankles would swell up to twice their size and they would pain me terribly. Often I would have to rub them every night before I'd go to bed. This condition made me feel tired out all the time and I lacked pep and ambition. My stomach was also out of order and after eating I would bloat up and feel very distressed and then I would have severe headaches. I had read so much about Bon-Tone that I decided to see if it would help my stomach. I haven't had a headache since taking it and the bloating after eating has also gone, but best of all it has removed the cause of my ankles swelling and I now stand all day long without being fatigued. Not one of the many tonics I have taken can compare with Bon-Tone. I certainly feel fine. I had no idea it would help my ankles but I am told that this condition was due to a rheumatic condition in my system. I surely will say, Thanks to Bon-Tone."

Call or write to either of the Bon-Tone men who are meeting the public daily at Epstein Drug Co., Inc., Scollay Square only; Austin's Drug Store, 486 Broadway, Perkins Square, South Boston; Cole Drug Co., 636 Mass. Avenue, Central Square, Cambridge; or write to W. A. Rigney, 84 Academy Street, Newark, N. J., for a free booklet.

RUSH TO ENROLL CONTINUES IN GREAT FLAG CONTEST

TWO more days! Boys and girls of New England, you have just that time to enter the great, nationwide, patriotic Flag Contest now being conducted by the United States Flag Association, of which the Boston Evening American is the regional sponsoring newspaper.

No applications for permission to inaugurate the local contest units through which the individual participates will be approved after midnight on Friday, March 15.

If a contest unit is not already functioning in your home community, apply to your teacher, head of the local American Legion post, executives of Boy or Girl Scouts, or the head of some local patriotic or civic organization, and ask them to start such a unit.

But you will have to work fast, for such applications cannot be accepted after Friday.

Boys and girls of Suffolk County, remember that George L. McDermott, 109 Peterboro st., Boston, Mass., is conducting a Flag Board at Large.

ENROLL NOW

City Councilor Israel Ruby, 102 Talbot ave., Dorchester, who is sponsoring a Flag Board in Ward 14, Dorchester, urges all boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 to enroll with him. Those youths in that section of the City will find Councilor Ruby in a position to enroll you at once.

Also keep in mind that there are 37 American Legion Posts in Suffolk County that are actively engaged in conducting local flag units. If you are not enrolled with your school or other organizations, go to the nearest American Legion post in your home section and enroll with the commander, adjutant, or Americanism officer.

These local American Legion posts as well as the other posts in Massachusetts of the American Legion, have been authorized to conduct local flag units by State Commander William H. Griffin, Adjutant Dennis H. Haverty and Americanism Officer Jere J. Twomey.

SPLENDID AWARDS

The contestants have to do but two things—answer the series of 75 questions relating to the history of the American Flag and write a brief essay on "Old Glory's Greatest Glory." The awards for the winners include trips around the world for four of the champions, trips to historic and patriotic shrines of the Eastern States for 36 regional champions, 109 scholarships worth $200 each and good for any school or university, and a large number of medals and certificates of honorable mention for the runners-up.

HOW TO FORM CONTEST UNIT OR FLAG BOARD

Any responsible adult individual, individuals or organizations wishing to conduct a Flag Contest may do so, by organizing a Flag Board consisting of five or more persons which shall work as an organization and be charged with the management of the Contest.

1. Obtain the contestants.
2. Appoint a committee to mark the papers of the contestants and determine the awards.
3. Arrange for recitation of the essays which accompany the answers to the 75 questions which are a part of the contest, and arrange for the presentations of the awards.

For the contestants themselves they have only to answer 75 questions relating to the history and glory of the American Flag and the institutions for which it stands, and to write the brief accompanying essay on the subject of "Old Glory's Greatest Glory." The answers and essays go to a local committee of judges selected by the person sponsoring the local contest.

Today's Flagism

ON MARCH 14, 1765,

Eli Whitney, with typical American genius, invented the cotton gin, a machine which revolutionized the cotton manufacturing industry of the entire world. The cotton gin was one of the earliest of a long series of important inventions done by Americans and which to a greater or lesser extent influenced the whole civilized world. Nowhere else has creative genius been given the untrammeled opportunity which it now enjoys under the protecting folds of the Stars and Stripes.

Driver Hurt as Taxi Skids Under Bridge

John J. Barrett, 31, of Fairview st., Dorchester, was cut and bruised today when the taxi he was operating skidded on the wet pavement under the New Haven bridge at Forest Hills, striking a trolley pole and snapping it off at its base.

John J. Sweeney of Bussey st., Dedham, a passenger in the cab, which was inbound on Washington st., was uninjured.

HOOVER BARES TAX REFUNDS

Washington, March 14 (INS)—President Hoover today ordered that all future tax refunds from the Treasury in excess of $20,000 be thrown open to public inspection.

Thus, by a stroke of his pen, Mr. Hoover accomplished what a coalition of Democrats and insurgent Republicans in Congress have unsuccessfully fought for in recent sessions of Congress.

Announcement from the White House said the President's action was at the suggestion of Secretary Mellon, who had been accounted an opponent of publicity for refunds, and who had been a target for congressional sharpshooting.

The executive order specifically directs that the public be permitted to know reasons for "any refund, credit or abatement of income or profits, excess profits, estate or gift taxes in excess of $20,000.

Health Authorities Say Children Need Not Catch Cold

Modern Mothers Build Up Youngsters' Bodily Resistance. They Realize the Value of the Tonic That Is Rich in Carbohydrates.

Stop the cold before it comes. Don't wait for the first cough or sneeze. Old fashioned mothers used to think that children had to catch cold. They did not know that there was any way to avoid it. But health authorities declare that any child, or adult, in perfect health, should be able to resist cold germs, even though exposed to infection.

Armed with this knowledge, modern mothers build up their youngsters' bodily resistance. They realize also that the craving that growing children have for sugar and all sorts of sweets is natural. It shows that their little bodies need the special nourishment furnished by carbohydrates, the food element that furnishes bodily fuel and energy.

That is why Hoff's Malt Extract has proven to be such an ideal tonic for children—because it is rich—not in the ordinary carbohydrates found in all sweet foods, but in the readily assimilated carbohydrates of maltose and in diastase, which converts starch into sugar and thus assists the whole process of digestion.

Hoff's Malt Extract is not a medicine, but a liquid food. The ideal nutrient digestive that increases appetite and has none of the distasteful qualities of fatty or oily preparations which so often disturb sensitive stomachs. Do not confuse Hoff's with alcoholic preparations. They depend upon strong stimulants for their popularity instead of food elements, and are, at best, merely temporary measures that afford no permanent benefit.

A wineglassful of Hoff's Malt Extract mixed with milk, with each meal and at bedtime, will help to give growing children such robust health and strength that dangerous colds and similar disorders will have very little chance to make any headway against their well nourished systems.

At the same time, if a cold has already appeared, mothers do well to add the daily use of Hoff's Malt Extract is an important part of the treatment to get rid of colds. In this way, mothers are not merely treating symptoms, externally or internally, but they are reinforcing the whole bodily strength of their youngsters.

Policyholders Pay $80,000,000 ...in... Special Taxes

You Share in This Bill

THE users of insurance in the United States are indirectly but actually burdened with a vast sum—approximately $80,000,000.00 annually—by taxes additional to the regular taxes paid by insurance in common with other lines of industry. This money is a burden upon the premium of the policyholder, even though it is collected from the insurer.

The original purpose of these additional taxes upon insurance was to maintain state supervision of the business, but such supervision uses but four cents of each dollar, and the balance—about $77,000,000.00—is an additional burden upon you, Mr. Policyholder, that goes into the general state treasuries.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States has adopted the following resolution:

"...... Special State Taxes now levied on Policyholders through insurance companies should not be considered as a source of general revenue, but should be reduced to the total in each state which will adequately support such state's departmental supervision ...."

The Stock Fire Insurance Companies (which transact by far the greater portion of the fire insurance business of the country) want you to realize this condition and its effect upon the cost of your fire insurance.

MALMGREN CITED BY NOBILE AS AID TO DEFENSE

By GENERAL UMBERTO NOBILE

Commander of the Ill-Fated North Pole Expedition of the Italian Dirigible Italia

Copyright, 1929, in North and South America, by New York American, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction, either in whole or in part, prohibited. Copyright, 1929, in all other countries by Umberto Nobile.

It is not my intention to repeat here the vicissitudes of the third flight which ended so tragically. I only wish to give clear proof that—except for the scheduled descent on the ice at the Pole, which was rendered impossible by the terrible weather encountered—the entire program of geographical and scientific research was accomplished.

We passed over 700 kilometers (one kilometer is .621 of a mile—nearly two-thirds) from King's Bay to Cape Brögman, on the coast, north of Greenland, 700 kilometers from Cape Bridgman to the North Pole; 100 kilometers around the Pole, and then 1100 kilometers from the Pole to the point where we fell.

In total we cruised 2850 kilometers, without taking into account the inevitable deviation of route. Of these 2850 kilometers, 1250 were flown over unexplored regions.

On the whole, taking into account the conditions of visibility such as we had in various parts of the flight, it may be said that 73,000 square kilometers were explored.

RECORDS SAVED

The program of scientific measurements was accomplished.

The radio data, collected by Behounek, has been all saved.

Unfortunately, the observations lost are those on the state of the ice which I had noted in a book that remained on the dirigible after the fall. And up to today we have not yet had any news of the magnetic and wireless measurements executed by Pontremoli.

If the scientific preparations were accurate, no less care was given to the technical part of the flight.

We of the Italia can conclude legitimately that between the Pole and Alaska no continent exists, as was foreseen.

With the flight of the Italia we have seen that Gillis land does not exist, and have been able to draw a line of demarcation of the extreme western limits to which Nicholas II. land could be extended.

We have every right to affirm that the expedition of the Italia has been the first aerial Arctic expedition which has fulfilled an important scientific worok.

In this regard I wish to mention here that when I asked Malmgren if he would consent to take part in the expedition, the reply of that illustrious Swedish scientist was simple and prompt:

"I will come most willingly, if there is really scientific work to accomplish."

GOES TO BERLIN

I met Dr. Malmgren when I went to Berlin to examine with some German scientists certain particulars of our program of scientific research. I told him of our program and the preparations. Malmgren at once said he would come with us. This showed how much the Swedish scientist was convinced of the seriousness of our program.

He expressed the conviction that never had an expedition been prepared with such care as that of the Italia.

The decision of Malmgren, the companion in the Norge, with whom I had shared the anxieties and perils of the 190 hours of flight from Rome to Teller, is a tacit denial of all the small calumnies launched against me, after the success of that memorable undertaking.

The participation of Malmgren in the enterprise of the Italia, after the experience of the Norge, signified then full confidence in the scientific program of the expedition, and full confidence in the men and means chosen to actuate it.

His generous words to Behounek about me in those terrible days when there was so little hope that we would ever return to civilization have been compensation for all the unkind things said against me as head of the expedition by men who missed the catastrophe from amid the comforts and amusements of the city.

DEATH A BLOW

The death of Malmgren has been a serious loss to science, especially to the science of the Polar regions, but a still more serious loss to the expedition, which lost in him one of its best defenders.

But Malmgren, even though dead, vindicates the importance and the moral greatness of our undertaking. His declarations before leaving Europe, and his words on the pack, together with the scientific and geographical results of the expedition, constitute the best reply to men who have laughed at the Italian flag and the cross we religiously deposited at the Pole.

Our eyes in that solemn moment were dimmed with tears. We are not ashamed of them.

The remembrance of those tears and of the generous emotion which had provoked them, is today part of that treasure of memories, sensations and emotions of which no base spy, no human malignity can ever deprive us.

GOODWIN RAPS LIGGETT HAND IN INSURANCE

The "do nothing" policy of the legislative committee on insurance in recommending that a special committee study the compulsory automobile insurance law during the recess of the General Court today drew the fire of former Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin.

Rep. T. H. Carr

One of the score or more bills that the committee's action leaves at loose ends is that of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill for a State fund to handle the compulsory business.

"This decision of the committee to refer compulsory insurance to a commission for study followed closely after the visit of Louis K. Liggett to the State House," declared Goodwin in a statement issued.

"Mr. Liggett is the Republican leader of the State and is director and moving spirit in one of the companies writing a large amount of compulsory insurance. He is also director in one of the biggest life insurance companies in this State and the country.

"The plan of the committee if followed by the Legislature will befuddle the issue and permit the insurance companies to mulct the car owners out of $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 for another year or more.

Flier Black Party Stranded and Ill

Broken Hill, Northern Rhodesia, March 14 (AP)—The air touring party of Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, is stranded here. The two pilots and the mechanic are in the hospital with influenza and a torrential rain is falling on the unsheltered machine.

The three men staff of the plane became ill during a rough nine-hour flight from Pretoria, collapsing when they landed here. Mr. Black, his secretary and his valet are no. ill.

LONDON HAS BIGGEST FIRE

London, March 14 (AP)—Scattered flames and smouldering embers remained today of a fire which for heat and light and space covered was the largest London has seen in 20 years.

A strong easterly wind picked up the blaze on the outskirts of a factory district on the south bank of the Thames shortly after midnight and spread it quickly to neighboring factories. Police supervised evacuation of homes, their action preventing injury from flying embers. Efficient work of firemen, however, kept the flames from spreading to residential sections.

Hundreds of firemen laid 20 miles of hose to fight the blaze but in some places the wind drove it into their faces so that there was nothing to do but let it burn.

No estimates of damage was possible early today.

85 RICH POLICE BRANDED AS 'UNFIT'

Philadelphia, March 14 (AP)—Eighty-five additional names were today added to the long list of high police officials, politicians, detectives and patrolmen, branded by the grand jury as unfit to hold public office.

Within a half-hour after the grand jury had made its presentment to Judge Edwin O. Lewis all those named in the report had been suspended and ordered to appear before the civil service commission for trial.

Two police captains, John J. Kerns, and John P. McPoyle; nine sergeants, 14 detectives and 60 policemen were named in the latest presentment and their dismissal recommended by the jury.

The report alleged that the jury had uncovered wealth in excess of $1,000,000 owned by those named as unfit. In addition, it was said, real estate holdings and stocks were not valued and "may run into many more thousands."

The wealth of some of those classed as unfit was obtained, the report charged, when they were members of a liquor raiding squad or in districts where underworld activities flourished.

BUY BONDS NOW SAYS MELLON

Washington, March 14 (INS)—Andrew W. Mellon gave the American investing public some advice today.

"Because of the comparatively low price of bonds, due to interest rates remaining relatively high, now is the time for ——ent investors to buy bonds," said the Secretary.

"Some stocks are good investments, but the quotations on others are too high. These good stocks are all right. But bonds are better at the present time for the average investor."

Very rarely does a Secretary of the Treasury volunteer such advice to the investing public in such an off-hand way, particularly during market hours.

It was interpreted as a part of the general effort of the Federal Reserve Board to decrease the enormous amount of public money now flowing into stock market speculation.

Ex-U. S. Marshal Dead

Providence, R. I., March 14—William Robert Rodman, who served as United States marshal in Rhode Island from Feb. 20, 1922, until Sept. 30, 1928, died at his home here of tuberculosis.

PICK JURORS IN THAW SUIT

New York, March 14—A bespectacled wisp of a man was escorted by blue-coated officialdom through the crowd jamming the entrance to a certain courtroom today.

The scene was the threshold to where the "humiliation" suit for $100,000 brought by Marcia Estardus (Mae O'Neil) against Harry Thomas of Pittsburgh, Broadway and Matteawan, is being heard.

The unostentatious citizen was a juror in the case.

Four jurors already have been chosen.

When the jury box is filled, the plaintiff will attempt to show that she had been humiliated by Thaw because he bit her and spanked her with a hairbrush. All of which is said to have occurred at a New Year's Eve party in Thaw's New York Apartment.

Thaw, denying the charges, declares he wasn't even at any such party. He plans to call Texas Guinan to prove that he was at her club on the evening in question.

West End Man Held In Death of Woman

Patrick Hogan, 36, of Parkman st., West End, was held in $2000 for the grand jury today after testimony in municipal court had involved him in the death of Mrs. Mabel Dunham. Hogan is charged with manslaughter. Medical experts told the court that Mrs. Dunham's body was bruised and showed signs of a beating that might have killed her.

N. Y. SHIPPING TIED UP BY FOG

New York, March 14 (AP)—New York harbor was fog-bound this morning, causing a general delay in shipping. Visibility was only one-eighth of a mile. Numerous incoming craft dropped anchor.

The captain of the Fall River liner decided to dock at Whitestone, Queens, where the 200 passengers debarked and took a Long Island Railroad train.

The West Shore Road's ferry discontinued the run from Cortlandt st. to Weehawken. Only one boat at a time each way ran between 42d st. and Weehawken. The Weehawken ferryhouse was crowded with waiting commuters.

TRUCKS BARRED ON 2 STREETS

South st., West Roxbury, and Auckland st., Dorchester, are to be closed to heavy trucks, as a result of complaints of residents that such vehicles had cracked walls and ceilings of residences, and were a peril to school children.

Appearing before the Boston street commission, Councilman Peter A. Murray and Rep. Joseph White led the fight for the South st. residents, and Councilmen Frank B. Sullivan and Thomas W. McMahon led the Auckland st. contingent.

When representatives of the trucking concerns using the streets failed to put in an appearance, Chairman Thomas J. Hurley issued the order barring the trucks from the two residential streets. Commercial vehicles equipped with pneumatic tires, with a load capacity of not over two and one-half tons, without trailers, will not come under the ban. The new regulation will be put into effect as soon as advertised and the rules shall be effective day and night.

The OLD ROAD TO EN-DOR

A NOVEL COMPLETE IN SIX DAYS

by LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

CHAPTER 4

A COMPLICATION grew out of Dal's work with Pentecost. It came when his father found out that he loved Shirley Hawthorne.

"But this is madness," Streator declared, his voice ringing with pain and conviction that made Dal fall silent in amazement. "This is impossible! Dal, poor boy!"—a hand of compassion rested strongly on Dal's shoulder. "You will have to forgo this dream. You can't marry Shirley — you haven't the right—"

"Why not, if she loves me? Why not, when I love her? What do you mean?"

"I mean," Streator replied with a halting tongue . . . "I had intended never to tell you, never to let your mother know I knew. . . . But there's bad blood in you, Dal, a wild, wicked taint that, soon or late, would break the heart of a girl like Shirley. That at any cost must be prevented. If you love her sincerely as you tell me you do, you must tell her about yourself or . . . give her up and let her forget you."

"I don't understand," the boy faltered. "If there's bad blood in me I come by it honestly—don't I?—I get it from you—"

"No," Streator sadly broke in, shaking his head. "It is not my blood, Dal—you're not my son."

"Not—!" Dal seemed for the moment unable to go on. He flung in a stride to confront his father. "What are you saying? I'm not your son?"

"The man you were named after was your father, Dal," the minister replied. "All your life I've kept the secret . . . now, it seems, you've got to know it."

"Dal!" Streator cried as one who would beg pity—"Dal, I'm a murderer. I killed your father the night I learned the truth."

Dal had heard his father out with the bearing of one who believes he listens to a madman's ravings.

Now the boy lost control altogether. Frantically shaking Streator's arms, he protested in a sort of hollow scream: "Do you know what you're saying? You lie! Oh, you lie. A blow on the mouth sent the minister reeling with lips bruised and broken.

Before he could recover, Dal had vanished.

He had a few hundred dol-

VATICAN STAYS OUT OF LEAGUE--IL DUCE

MUSSOLINI IN TREATY PLEA

Rome, March 14 (AP)—Political, religious and moral aspects of the Lateran treaty of February 11 between the Italian Government and the Vatican were set forth at length by Premier Mussolini in a report published today.

The report will be presented the new Parliament April 20, when it convenes to deliberate ratification.

One of the most striking points in the report is the veiled hint that the new Vatican City state will not apply for membership in theLeague of Nations since, the premier takes pains to point out, the Vatican City is recognized as a neutral. This, he says, involved inviolability and remaining aloof from "temporal competitions" among states.

The treaty recognized religious marriages as having equal force with civil marriages now, he says, and he acknowledges ecclesiastical jurisdiction in divorces and annulments when marriage was by religious ceremony.

The Premier says that the rigid principle of separation of church and state has undergone numerous temperings and exceptions.

The Premier denied the treaty seeks to revive institutions of other times incompatible with modern civilization.

He decides also there will be any suppression of other sects or of the religious liberties of Protestants or agnostics.

Blizzard Traps 300 Ranchers Hunting for Lost Boy

Gordon, Nebr., March 14 (INS)—Three hundred ranchers who went out to search for six-year-old William Reeves, trapped in a blinding blizzard on the plains near here, were themselves marooned by the storm today.

Futile efforts have been made to get food to them. Trucks that started out for their relief were blocked by six-foot drifts.

Attempts to get into communication with the trucks also failed.

JAIL FOR 'DEATH AUTO' DRIVER

After sentencing an alleged hit-and-run truck driver to six months in jail, Judge Day of South Boston court today extended formal congratulations to Ballard Chase of Roxbury, who, having seen the fatal accident in which the truck was involved, ran after the fleeing machine and took its number.

Judge Fay also thanked Police Sergt. Frederick Brauer, who traced the truck and apprehended its operator.

The defendant, William Maglio, 26, of Dacia st., Roxbury, testified that he thought the man his machine hit and killed as "just a bundle of rags." He appealed the jail sentence, and was held in $2000. His wife collapsed in court.

Airmen Back From 'Flight of Mercy'

Edmonton, Alta, March 14 (AP)—Wop" May and Vic Horner, Edmonton aviators, have returned from a round trip of 900 miles on an errand of mercy which they completed in six hours and 46 minutes.

They rushed a tank of oxygen and administering apparatus in their monoplane to Fairview, 450 miles northwest to save a man dying of pneumonia. The tank was dropped from the plane.

SEES CITY OF MANY MILLIONS

Metropolitan New York will be a city of 30,000,000 inhabitants in 1960, and Boston and other American business centers will have grown proportionately, Chamber of Commerce members here were told today at the weekly luncheon by Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad

The speaker painted a vivid picture of the United States 20 years hence, a nation of mammoth industrial communities, linked together by transportation lines utilizing, as co-operative units, steam and electric trains, gasoline trucks and buses and freight and passenger airplanes.

To insure their very existence, modern railroads, he said, have found themselves obliged to plan at least a decade ahead of the general industrial situation of the moment.

In illustration of such necessary foresightedness, Gen. Atterbury cited the Pennsylvania railroad's announced electrification of its entire road service between New York and Wilmington, Del., including 325 miles of line and 1200 miles of track.

The cost of the project will be $100,000,000, said the speaker, but the railriad has authorized the tremendous outlay because of its conviction that the growth of the municipalities which it serves will be sufficiently huge to justify the improved equipment.

Co-ordination of rail, highway and air transport will be greatly expanded within the next decade, he added

Woburn Man Found With Gash in Head

Stanley P. Sawyer, 25, of Elm st., Woburn, was found unconscious today in a Federal st. doorway, near Franklin st. He was taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where a gash was discovered in the back of his head.

After recovering consciousness, he told doctors he fell down.

REFERENDUM ON DEATH PENALTY PREDICTED

A referendum by the people was the next step in the move to abolish capital punishment in Massachusetts, according to proponents of the plan after all hope of legislative action was lost on Beacon Hill.

Following in the footsteps of the Senate, the House, after protracted debate, rejected the bill to abolish capital punishment in the State. The vote came on a motion to substitute the bill for an adverse committee report. Thirty-one members stood for the bill and 108 were recorded against the measure

Reps. Abraham B Casson of Boston, C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus, Arnold Leonard of Watertown, Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton, George E. Briggs of Lexington, Roland D. Sawyer of Ware and B Farnham Smith of Concord were the speakers for repeal of the capital punishment law.

FAILS TO DETER

Rep. Carson claimed that the fundamental theory of capital punishment is based on reformation and deterrent. Once a man is electrocuted he is beyond reformation, he pointed out. The law is also not a deterrent, he added, because 75 per cent of the murders are committed in great anger, passion or some other violent emotion.

Rep. Pratt said he preferred to abide by the Lord's Commandment, which says, "Thou shalt not kill." Clarence Darrow, nationally known lawyer, he said, has warned the country that a state that takes life itself cannot expect to have its citizens respect life.

"It is the certainty rather than the severity of punishment that acts as a deterrent," he held.

URGES REFERENDUM

Rep. William H. Hearn of East Boston said the only proper solution of the question of retaining or abolishing the extreme penalty was through the initiative and referendum. He declared that there is no appreciable sentiment in the district for the change.

Reps. Thomas H. Bateman of Winchester and Isadore H. Fox of Boston spoke in opposition. Bateman made the point that no district attorney or other prosecuting official had come forward to favor the bill. Fox contended that in the hearings before the committee on judiciary no one said one word in sympathy for the families of the murdered. All were concerned about the murderer's relations.

Slayer Bows to Judge Who Sentences Him

New York, March 14—Frederick W. Edel, ex-convict and convicted murderer, bowed today to the judge who pronounced his death sentence

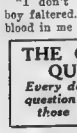

Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., in the court of general session, sentenced him to die in the electric chair in the week of April 22, for the murder of Mrs. Emilie O. Harrington, an actress. He was arrested in St. Paul, Minn. Attorney plans to appeal the case, which will stay the execution.

THE CURIOUS QUIZZER

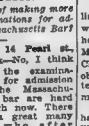

Every day he asks a question and pictures those questioned.

THE QUESTION

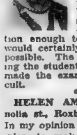

Are you in favor of making more difficult the examinations for admission to the Massachusetts Bar?

MAY MOONEY, 14 Pearl st., Malden, filing clerk—No, I think that the examinations for admission to the Massachusetts bar are hard enough now. There are a great many men who after studying at some law school for four or five years fail to pass the examinations. This cannot be from lack of study because anyone who has ambition enough to go to law school would certainly study as much as possible. The State would be doing the student an injustice if they made the examination more difficult.

HELEN AMBROSE, 231 Magnolia st., Roxbury, stenographer—In my opinion it would be a good plan to make this examination more difficult. There are too many shyster lawyers now operating in the courts. By making the examination more difficult only men of intelligence and good character would be admitted to the bar. Justice would be speeded up and some of the criminals who are free now when they should be in jail would get their just deserts.

CARL A. SARGENT, 14 High st., pl., West Medford, clerk—If the State of Massachusetts made the examination for admittance to the bar more difficult we would have more lawyers who are better qualified to practice their trade. There are a great many lawyers in this State who will take a case for the money that they can get and with no regard to whether the client is right or wrong. Justice will soon become a joke to the people unless something is done to check the lawyer who is helping the guilty people to escape the law.

JOSEPH PETERS, 14 O st., So. Boston, broker—Certainly, the State should make the examination for admission to the bar more difficult. The people of the State must turn to the lawyers for counsel and advice, and unless we have men of high morals practicing in this State many of these people will be wrongfully injured. The doctors in this State have always had to prove themselves competent before they were allowed to practice their profession, and our lawyers should be made to pass examinations that will leave no doubt as to their ability.

BAD CHECK GIRL SENT TO JAIL

The police of Needham, Brookline, Revere and Somerville, all of whom have been anxious for a heart-to-heart talk with attractive Miss Ethel Colson, 30, check-writing Chelsea stenographer, will now be obliged to postpone their respective tete-a-tetes for at least three months.

Judge Connelly of Brighton court had first chance to interview the young woman, thanks to prompt action by special officers of his district. He sentenced Miss Colson today to three jail terms of one month each, having found her guilty on charges of forging checks, uttering worthless checks and committing larceny. She did not appeal.

Soft Hearted Man Excused From Jury

Bayonne, N. J., March 14 (INS)—Because he said it would break his heart and make him cry to hear how Jeremiah Carroll lost a leg, became deaf, got a fractured skull and other injuries, Harry Kalisch was excused from jury duty in Carroll's suit for $150,000 against the Barber Asphalt Company today.

Germany Improves Its Credit and Trade Deficit Decreases

By W. H. GLENN
In The Magazine of Wall Street

IN any discussion of Germany's economic strength the question of her colossal war debt immediately challenges consideration. Does an indemnity obligation of 33 billion dollars to be paid off in less than 60 years create such a strain on her resources as to retard and embarrass her progress to economic health? According to the majority of the experts, the answer is now definitely—no! So delicately has the Dawes plan adjusted the machinery of reparations to the economic organism of the land, that during the past four years, the German people were able to achieve industrial and financial stability quite unconscious of any excess burden except when reminded thereof by speechmakers who liked to make political capital of the "rapacity" of the allies and the "shrecklichkeit" of the reparations account.

In the aforementioned four-year period, not only has Germany met in full and without difficulty the payments called for by the Dawes plan, but she has balanced her budget, rationalized her industry, developed her resources and strengthened her credit reserves. From the standpoint of economics, her position, therefore, is technically as sound as it was before the war.

* * *

Even as the Dawes plan reaches the "standard" year and fixes the annuity due under the head of reparations at 2½ billion gold marks, it imposes upon the German people no greater burden than they were accustomed to bear in maintaining the lavish military and naval apparatus of the Kaiser's regime. Representing less than 5 per cent of the nation's annual income, the "standard" annuity subjects the taxpayers of the Reich to a load even less than that which the British and French taxpayers are compelled to bear in order to liquidate the cost of the war.

What takes place in Germany, through the application of the Dawes plan is, in effect, the substitution of one obligation for another without an appreciable increase in cost. And just as the old armament burden did not prevent Germany from being an economically healthy state, so the reparations payments under the Dawes plan has created to date no condition which the economic system of the Reich could not absorb without shock.

True enough, whether Germany can bear up under the full effect of the Dawes plan will not become clearly evident until September of this year when the first "standard" annuity of 2½ billion marks will have been turned into the reparations account. When the Committee of Experts on Reparations convened in Paris on February 7 last, there was no doubt in the mind of the committee that Germany could raise the money without hardship. How to accomplish the transfer of such an annuity without weakening the exchange position of the Reich and causing a harmful dislocation of industry, remained, however, a question. Even though half of the payments could be made in deliveries in kind, the remaining half still created a problem for which the committee had to find a solution either by some alteration in the plan of payment itself, or by arranging for the further absorption of German exports in new developments abroad.

* * *

In any case, by reason of the consideration and readjustment which the Reich can obtain from its creditors at any crucial moment, the point to remember is that the indemnity obligation loses most of its sting and constitutes no such obstructive influence to Germany's economic development as the mere fact of its presence would imply. But what of the unfavorable trade balance? To be sure, the year 1928 closed with a deficit in foreign trade amounting to 2½ billion marks, precisely the value of the "standard" annuity. Can Germany sustain payments under those considerations?

From 1925 to 1927, therefore, Germany laid and perfected the foundation of her post-war economic structure. The salient lines were firm and proved their strength in the ability of the Reich to maintain a balanced budget, a stable currency, an increased development in trade and industry, accompanied by better working and wage conditions. And in addition to achieving prosperity within the country, Germany was able to meet her indemnity obligations.

The year 1928, with its somewhat unfavorable labor and business complications, tested the solidity of the structure, but Germany met the test and suffered no decline in her general trading and credit position.

Within her own sinews Germany undoubtedly possessed the strength to recover at some time or other, but it cannot be denied that the rapidity of her recovery and the completeness with which it was accomplished within the last four years, were due largely, if not entirely, to the aid and co-operation of the very governments that had assembled in 1918 to destroy her.

EMPLOYMENT STABILITY IS STUDIED

"The Use of Research in Employment Stabilization," a report on the application of scientific fact-finding to personnel problems, was issued today by the New England Council.

This report is the last in a series on "Better Business Through Research in New England Industry," prepared for the research committee of the council by the Policyholders Service Bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. of New York.

The report describes in detail New England instances in which fact-finding and interpretation have been used to stabilize working forces and employment programs. The examples studied cover a wide range of New England industry, including shoes, textiles, machinery, toys, paper and silverware.

The Dennison Manufacturing Co. of Framingham made a research survey designed to overcome as far as possible the then intensely seasonal character of the company's business, the report points out. The employment situation also was studied. As a result of the research studies made by the company, six ways of reducing employment irregularity were worked out.

The Crompton & Knowles Loom Works of Worcester also has used research investigations to improve employment conditions.

The Strathmore Paper Company of Mittineague, Cheney Brothers, silk manufactures, South Manchester, Ct.; Carter's Ink Company, Boston; The Graton & Knight Company, Worcester, and the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston, are other New England firms whose experiences in applying the principles of research to their employment problems are cited in the report.

Bridgeport Brass Company of Bridgeport, Ct., has a policy of keeping employes informed of the operation of the business through the operation of a joint plant committee. The Crocker-McElwain Company, paper manufacturers of Holyoke, realizing the necessity of maintaining intact a skilled personnel, instituted two years of intensive research activities, at the end of which time a modified, full-time employment guarantee was made by the company, the report declares.

Cotton Consuming Figures Published

Washington, March 14 (AP)—The Census Bureau announced today that cotton consumed during February totaled 598,098 bales of lint and 68,060 bales of linters compared with 668,389 bales of lint and 68,552 bales of linters in January this year, and 572,875 bales of lint and 57,798 bales of linters in February last year.

DEVELOPMENT OF CANADA IS SHOWN

An interesting cross section of development throughout the Dominion of Canada is shown in the annual report of the industrial department of the Canadian National Railways, made public over the signature of William Phillips, manager. In summarizing the work done during 1928, Mr. Phillips states that a total of 342 concerns located on, or near, lines of the National System, representing an investment in plant of $77,409,800.

In comparison, the report shows that in 1927 the number of concerns locating along the lines of the Canadian National System was 456, but while this total was larger the amount invested in plant was not as large, being $44,213,050.

The report also shows that during 1928 concerns located along the lines of the Canadian National System made additions to plant to the number of 145, entailing an investment of $24,568,800.

The activities of the department covered Canada from the Atlantic to the Pacific and dealt with new plants in the Maritimes, the great industrial areas of Quebec and Ontario and the growing sections of the West. It is of particular interest to note that a number of plants of various character were erected along the line of the former Transcontinental in northern Quebec and northern Ontario.

Considerable extension of elevator space in the Prairie provinces is shown, and additions to power plants are noted. Oil plants, steel works and foundries, and structures for the manufacture of airplanes suggest the modern trend of industrial expansion.

BROKERS WANT RATE RAISE

New York, March 14 (AP)—Wall Street again awaited with uneasiness the weekly meeting of the directors of the Federal Reserve Baank of New York this afternoon, and the hope that they would raise the rediscount rate and end the tension which has become a regular Thursday fixture was expressed in several quarters.

The opinion prevailed, however, that an increased rate would be unlikely this week, with several foreign exchange rates near the incoming gold points

From Europe came news that the Bank of England made no change in its rate, but that the Bank of Italy stepped up its rate from 6 to 7 per cent.

Sales of copper in the domestic market in the past week were slightly less than average, but with the statistical position exceedingly strong buying was sufficient to bring an advance of one-half a cent a pound, says Engineering and Mining Journal

Export business continues excellent. Export sales in the first half of March approximated 27,000 long tons.

The New York Stock Exchange will be closed on Good Friday, March 29. A petition to close the exchange on the Saturday following Good Friday will be voted on later.

The New York Cocoa Exchange also has decided to close on Good Friday, as well as the following Saturday and Monday. This will permit completion of renovations on the exchange floor.

Stocks of refined lead increased in February to 44,589 tons in hands of United States and Mexican smelters on March 1 compared with 43,658 tons on February 1 and 44,541 tons on January 1.

A. STEIN & Co. declared initial quarterly dividend of $1.62½ on 6½ per cent lumulative preferred stock, payable April 1.

STANDARDS FOR COTTON TO BE DISCUSSED

The third international biennial Universal Cotton Standards conference, for the purpose of approving copies of the Universal Cotton Standards for use by the United States Department of Agriculture and the arbitration committees of the European cotton associations during the two-year period beginning August 1, 1929, was called to order in the conference room of the bureau of Agricultural economics, and was adjourned immediately by Nils A. Olsen, chief of the bureau, until 10 a. m. March 16, as the foreign delegates will not reach Washington until that date.

The conference Saturday will be attended by representatives of the nine leading cotton associations and exchanges of Europe and representatives of the Department of Agriculture and the American cotton industry. The meeting is provided for by agreements between the Secretary of Agriculture and the European associations, under which the latter have adopted the official cotton standards of the United States for American upland cotton, known as the "Universal Standard," as the basis of all their contracts in which grades are specified for the purchase and sale of American cotton.

The Department of Agriculture will represent the American interests in the conference by reason of the department's administrative responsibilities under the United States Cotton Standards act and the Universal Standards agreements, but as in past conferences, the representatives of the American groups will advise with department officials and will participate in the meetings.

WIGGIN MUM ON MERGER OF BANKS

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Chairman Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank, former Boston banker, is naturally mum when questioned about the possibilities of a merger of his institution with the Bank of America. If plans are in the making, as reported, it is unlikely they are in the stage when a definite announcement might be made.

• • •

Other officials of Chase qualified their statements that nothing was to be said by adding "at present." The declaration that A. P. Giannini interests control 70 per cent of the stock of the Bank of America would not prevent a change of ownership at any time when agreement might be reached on a sale.

President Andrew M. Chaffey of the California Bank of Los Angeles supplies me with interesting figures regarding the size of the world's largest banking institutions, as measured by dollar deposits. The five largest, in order named, are all of London, the Midland Bank, Ltd., Lloyd's Bank, Ltd., Barclay's Bank, Ltd., Westminster Bank, Ltd., and the National Provincial Bank, Ltd.

• • •

The next five, all of New York, are the National City Bank, Chase National Bank, Federal Reserve Bank, Guaranty Trust Co. and the American Exchange Irving Trust Co. Then come the Bank of Montreal and the Royal Bank of Canada, the Bank of England and the Bank of Italy National Trust & Savings Association of San Francisco. The First National Bank of Boston is the 27th in the list of 150 given.

Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles for the Bay State, proposes eye tests for automobile drivers, as noted last week in this column. Many believe eye tests to be as necessary for automobile drivers as for those who operate the "iron horse," which runs only on laid rails. The move is for the safety of automobilists as well as pedestrians. Safe roads are needed for smooth transportation, essential to continuance and growth of our present prosperity.

• • •

There is probably altogether too much distinction made between automobilists and pedestrians, now that such a large proportion of our population are either driving or riding in cars. Your automobilist becomes a pedestrian merely by stepping out of his car, and your pedestrian becomes an automobilist by the simple act of stepping inside a car. Most of us are both automobilists and pedestrians.

• • •

There has been much interest displayed in financial and business circles regarding the eye tests. On the Boston & Maine railroad we find tests conducted not only for vision but also for color sense and hearing. Some workers are required to take annual examinations, such as Capt. Parker proposes, others are re-examined every three years.

• • •

The B & M requires that examinations should not be hurried. Some workers are not allowed to wear glasses when taking the vision tests.

• • •

All B & M. employes who are required to pass an examination for vision, color-sense or hearing must be re-examined as follows: "At the end of three years from the date of last examination; or, yearly (for vision) in the case of enginemen and firemen having less than 20/40 vision in either eye, and other employes who have less than 20/70 in either eye without glasses must be re-examined yearly. After any accident which might be caused defective vision, color-sense or hearing. After recovery from any severe illness, or after severe inflammation of the eyes or eye-lids. Before promotion, except when an examination within the previous year reached the standard required for the desired promotion, in which case the last examination may be applied and the candidate need not be re-examined."

• • •

We recently pointed out the fallacy of attempting to reckon automotive production for the year as a whole simply by multiplying that for any single month. We did not then have official automotive figures on the subject before us, but now have them, and they sustain our contention. Benjamin H. Cram, president of Cram's Automotive Reports, Inc., authority on the industry, says of the last month subjected to complete analysis: "In the past January as a rule has averaged aproximately 6 per cent of the total year's production. Based on this relationship, 1929 production would be somewhat in excess of 6,500,000 units. However, it is our opinion that January production for this year was not in line with what has been true generally in the past. If the actual figures reported for January are compared with the estimate which we have worked out for the entire year, we find that January production would be equal to 8.5 per cent of the entire year's production, compared with January, 1928, which was 5.3 per cent of the entire year's production, as well as the customary average for January of 6 per cent."

• • •

Automotive Industries this week will say, "Automobile factories have swung into greater volume production this month with the prospect of turning out more cars and trucks than ever have been rolled off the assembly lines in any March. Their anticipation of a record showing seems only logical in the light of the January and February turnouts, which exceeded those of the corresponding months in any previous year. Increases in the production rate at a number of the plants range from 5 to 15 per cent and it appears certain that maximum capacity will be reached in several instances.

• • •

"A conservative estimate of 500,000 vehicles for March has appeared previously in these columns. This, added to the 423,655 cars and trucks manufactured in January and the 468,328 announced as the figures for February output, brings an estimate for production in the first quarter of 1929 of 1,391,983 vehicles.

Rail Mergers to Progress? Tells Status and Outlook

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, March 14—Will the Hoover Administration clear the tracks for railway consolidations? Will Congress, at its special session, take occasion to indicate disappointment that its recommendations of 1920, embodied in the Transportation Act, have not been acted upon favorably by the Interstate Commerce Commission? Will the commission, knowing the Chief Executive's approval of all legitimate means to eliminate waste and to increase efficiency modify its heretofore obstructive stand?

B. C. Forbes

The financial world is hopeful that events will bring favorable answers to these questions.

The effect of favorable answers doubtless would be felt in the stock market.

When Wall Street is in cheerful mood few things are more conducive to fresh outbursts of bullishness than well-authenticated reports of impending mergers. Although one and one make two, and two and two make only four, speculators are governed by no such prosaic logic; when one corporation is added to another, or when several corporations are lumped together, stock market operators usually act on the theory that the total will be much greater than the sum of the individual parts. Only sometimes does it work out in accordance with that reasoning. Not all consolidations have proved particularly profitable to the stockholders.

However, it can be rather safely assumed that, should gigantic railway consolidations come definitely within sight, the stock market would celebrate more or less enthusiastically.

• • •

It is interesting to consider what has happened in Great Britain. Several years ago Britain acted almost exactly along the lines recommended in our own Transportation Act. The score or so of railway lines there were harmoniously consolidated into groups, each to serve a particular section.

What has been the result? The sober truth is that the British railroads have not made great progress since consolidation. This is attributed, however, to increased outside competition on the highway rather than to lack of benefit arising from the consolidations effected.

An authority on railway conditions and developments in Europe and South America as well as here, Frederick M. Halsey, New York investment banker, discussing the present status in this country made these observations to the writer.

"The plans to consolidate into a great system the Northern Pacific, the Great Northern, the Burlington and one or two other lines is strongly opposed by the St. Paul system. The Loree schemes to consolidate lines in the South west did not work out as planned. And although four or five years have elapsed since the Van Sweringens first announced their Nickel Plate grouping of lines, no final adjustment has been made, and only within the past few days has another plan been suggested, calling for a great system embracing 14,000 miles of railway.

• • •

"The Baltimore & Ohio plan, as announced a few days ago, is objected to in part. The Southern and the Louisville & Nashville have called attention to the Interstate Commerce Commission that they jointly control the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, and that they are not desirous of having it turned over to the Baltimore & Ohio system, or to anyone else. Probably the Pennsylvania R. R. will likewise have something to say about this plan, which includes the Wabash Railway, a large block of whose shares are now in its treasury. The Chicago & Eastern Railway, which has been included in the Van Sweringen group is, it is understood, desired by the Pennsylvania R. R., as a part of its enlarged system, the plans of which have not yet been announced.

"The positions of the securities of short-line independent and semi-independent railroads might well be studied by the discriminating investor, as many of them have very attractive possibilities.

"It is certain that in 1929 greater consolidation progress will be made than at any time heretofore. We can already visualize that the Middle Atlantic States will in future have four systems to the West; Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, New York Central and Pennsylvania."

Declares Utilities Exempt From the Price of Progress

IN an analysis of water works as a field of investment, L. Edgar Detwiler, president of Detwiler & Co., in the current issue of United States Banker, points out the price of progress which investors in almost every industry except utilities and especially water works have paid. He says:

"Investments do not affect an industry so much as the industry affects the investments. Not so many years ago the fashion of the day made possible a flourishing dress braid business. The advent of the short dress completely stopped all sales and the several large firms in this business, finding themselves without customers, were either forced to quit business or manufacture new products.

"Similarly, lower Fifth ave. was at one time the greatest lace center in the country with wholesale lace firms doing a tremendous business. The passing of the many flounced petticoats and the new dress styles hurt this so badly that a great many of the firms have since gone out of business.

• • •

"The radio brought with it a period of sharp depression in the phonograph business with resulting drastic losses for many thousands of investors. And, in turn, countless radio investors have been obliged to write off losses that are staggering in the aggregate, as the price they paid for the progress in this industry in which now they may have no financial interest whatsoever. Innumerable other examples can be found in every field of endeavor. I have used a very few examples and ones which are easily understood.

"Therefore, one readily understands the necessary conservatism with respect to industrial investments of bankers familiar with industrial history. Also, the need of great care on the part of investors as to the price they may have to pay in capital loss for developments in industries affected by factors quite beyond control of the industry itself. These factors may be new inventions, fashion, fluctuating raw material prices, overproduction, or uncertainties in the net profit margin due to competition and the wasteful cost of retail distribution.

"The price of progress has been paid in almost every industry. Investors, then should welcome an industry in which progress does not exact a drastic penalty in return in which progress does not leave on the scrape pile obsolete machinery, rejected raw material, unsalable finished goods—gravestones of personal investments.

• • •

"Public utility investments are least subject to these influences, and as a group have proven the most satisfactory investments. A recent statistical compilation published in the financial columns of the New York Times shows that more than 25 per cent of the enormous investments of the American public over the five-year period, 1923-1927, inclusive, went into the purchase of stocks and bonds of American public utilities.

"In this period more money was invested in public utilities than in any other type of security, including all industrial corporations municipal bonds, foreign corporate and government bonds, railroad securities, real estate securities or farm loan bonds. It is estimated that our total investment in public service enterprises now amounts to about fifty billions of dollars.

"The only industry immune from all these influences—water works—is being taken out of the localized investment class (in which it has existed for a century) through consolidation of the many single plants into strong centralized groups. Billions of dollars invested in this industry are now being placed on a nationalized investment basis.

"Capital naturally gravitates toward safety. Of all branches of the public service industry, water works holds the premier position in age, safety and in the indispensability of its service. In its own right it is the aristocrat of the utilities.

"This major industry, water works, probably the least in the public mind as a field for investment, today present one of the most striking combinations of investment features that may be found in the entire range of our business activities—for it is a business."

No Need of Raising St. Louis Bank Rate

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis has found no necessity for an upward adjustment of the rediscount rate, according to John G. Lonsdale, a director of that bank. He reports conditions in the eighth Federal Reserve district entirely satisfactory, despite the attention given the large volume of speculative credit. He finds legitimate business requirements in his district are being provided at reasonable rates well under 6 per cent. Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis has a 5 per cent rediscount rate.

HIRST IS SORRY HE'S PIONEER AGAINST U. S.

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service Special Cable.

London, March 14—A declaration of war against America was signed, sealed and delivered in a big room six floors above King's Way. It is not a war involving battleships, poison gas and trenches, but is more subtle and no less real—a warfare of the British pound sterling against American dollars, in which the stock exchanges of London and New York are the scenes of the campaign.

The war "declared" yesterday was started when more than 300 hands were raised against a scant dozen in support of the General Electric directors determination to exclude American investors from participation in the issue of $1,600,000 "British ordinary shares."

PIONEER IS SORRY.

Sir Hugo Hirst himself, who speaks with a slightly German accent, hurled the final defi in a speech just before the vote was taken. He said:

"I am sorry I have to be the pioneer in this movement, but I am certain that I shall have imitators in the near future, either or their own volition or by legislation."

His speech may be taken as a warning to all American investors in British corporations that the example set is to be followed by other powerful companies.

When asked after the meeting adjourned whether this statment had been inspired, Sir Hugo said:

"I made the statement on by own responsibility."

Just two representatives of American investors now holding 60 per cent of the common stock of the company were in the audience, and the more than 300 others were for the most part vociferously hostile. Noel Berridge, lawyer for a group of protesting Americans, and E. G. Humphreys, representing American holders of depositary receipts from the Guaranty Trust, each had a hearing and each read a prepared protest.

AUDIENCE HOSTILE.

Humphreys is an American. His hands shook so that he could hardly hold his manuscript when he faced the hostile audience, to say:

"When the company's articles were altered last September with the view of depriving foreign holders of voting rights, the holders of depositary receipts were asked if they desired to record their votes attached to their shares against the resolutions, but not a single holder asked to have such vote recorded, thus indicating that the American holders had entire confidence in the efficiency and integrity of the management.

"They now feel that this confidence was misplaced. From an international standpoint I think the board should fully apreciate the effect this will have on the shares in the markets of the world."

Before the vote was taken Berridge served formal notice that "my clients inform you they will take whatever steps they deem necessary to protect their property interests."

Asked what these steps may be, he said: "I am here only to report back to Chadbourne, Stanchfield and Levy, counsel."

From other sources it is learned that the State Department will likely be appealed to to intervene.

But the Americans had defenders among the British, notably Sir William Butler, managing director of the wholesale wine merchants, who declared:

"This is not a true British act. I cannot be a party to depriving any shareholder of his rights."

J. J. Barnard, a stock broker, urging an amendment which would limit the participation of existing stockholders irrespective of nationality, said:

"It is not only robbing Americans, but all stockholders. Justice is being flaunted. It is not playing the game. When you rob the Americans of their rights, you are abusing your trust."

PLENTY OF GOLD IN WORLD, SAYS PROF. YOUNG

Prof. Allyn A. Young of the University of London writes in the Analist that "there is plenty of gold. Production and trade can grow without there being a general fall of prices, if only the central banks of the world will permit it. Just now, however, they appear to be afraid of prosperity. So long as they are, they will exert a retarding influence upon the growth of production. A few years ago, the Federal Reserve banks were accused of sterilizing gold, to the alleged detriment of the economic interests of Europe. From the subsequent course of events one might infer that the European banks merely preferred to do the sterilizing themselves.

"The present situation is inexplicable on any rational grounds. If the fear of another war is in any degree responsible, what the experience of the late war taught about the futility of accumulating large hoards of idle gold has been forgotten. If the European banks are merely trying to make their own solvency secure, they forget that gold is not the only liquid asset for which there is an elastic international market. If they are purchasing confidence and prestige, they are paying a high price.

"If the Bank of England is attempting to regain a larger portion of its pre-war 'supremacy,' those directing its policies have forgotten how before the war the gold reserves of London were smaller than those of any other large central money market.

"To attempt under present conditions to build up a large idle hoard of gold, whether in London or elsewhere, is generally only an expression of financial nationalism and financial nationalism is an expensive luxury. It should really make very little difference to any country just where the bulk of the world's gold reserves are kept, provided that there can be complete assurance that claims upon those reserves will be honored without difficulty.

"No thinking person wants another period of inflation. But the high-gold-reserve-ratio fetish ought not to have the influence which it now has upon banking policies. A gradual downward trend of prices is probable, not because the supply of gold is or will soon become inadequate, but merely because the central banks of different countries will probably try to maintain their separate hoards of gold."

Traffic Gains

CARL GRAY
President of Union Pacific says February revenue increased 4 per cent over a year ago.

DEPARTMENT STORES GAIN BY AIR MAIL

Air mail, and the higher speed of express, parcel post, and freight shipments, are contributing to the increasingly prosperous operations of the more alert department stores in medium-sized cities, according to L. L. Jay, president of the American Department Stores Corporation.

"The store in a small inland city," Mr. Jay points out, "can now get its samples of merchandise for display and advertising almost as quickly as the metropolitan store. Its quantity shipments follow promptly—far more quickly than a decade or two ago.

"That condition helps the store to hold down inventory; to be caught with unsalable merchandise less often; to stimulate the buying of new styles by the individual customer more times per year; and to satisfy the existing demand for more frequent style changes.

"Considering the important field of women's apparel, we have only to look back a few years to the time when the woman from the big city was a marked character. She dressed in sharp contrast to the woman in the small city unless the latter had sufficient means to make a shopping pilgrimage to the large center once or twice a year. The small city woman in those days simply could not find, in her local stores, apparel in keeping with the latest styles.

"Today notice a group of women in a theatre, club or store, and you can't tell by their dress whether they live in a style center or in a small city.

"Many great national apparel houses and chain stores now release their styles throughout the country simultaneously. Efficient development of modern transport has made this possible, and has aided in the general movement whereby retail trade is being placed on a nation-wide scientific basis."

Nationalism Abroad Halts Advance by U. S. Investors

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, March 14—The spirit of nationalism obtains in the world of finance and trade.

Foreign business men resent the loss of control of their own enterprises to American or other alien investors. There have recently been several specific manifestations of this acute feeling. In order to prevent further diffusion of ownership shares in the General Electric Co., Ltd., a British concern, it has been proposed instead of alloting the 1,600,000 new shares of the company to present stockholders that the new stock be offered exclusively to British citizens. An official protest will be registered against this plan in London today.

The key to the policy may be found in an address made by Sir Hugo Hirst, chairman of the company, at a recent annual meeting, at which he said:

"It might cause great embarrassment some day if it were found that too big a proportion of the shares are held in non-British hands. I am speaking not from the personal but from the national point of view. We, therefore, propose to watch, so far as we can, the progress of this movement, and should we find that an undue proportion of our shares wanders into foreign possession, it may be necessary to introduce measures by which to keep that movement in check within certain proportions, so that the control at all times should remain with British shareholders residing within the empire."

• • •

Even in nearby Canada there appears to be some apprehension concerning the peaceful penetration of American capital into industries of the dominion. T. B. Macauley, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company, recently told the banking and commerce committee of the Canadian House of Commons that, unless capital stock of the company was increased, control would pass into the hands of United States interests. A bill which would authorize an increase in the capital stock from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 was under consideration by the committee. Mr. Macauley was of the opinion that a recapitalization with a lower price per share of the new stock, would encourage Canadian investment in the shares of the company. He said that 38 per cent of the stockholders now reside in the United States.

These incidents in Anglo-Saxon countries, which have been singularly hospitable to foreign capital, reveal the perils of being a creditor nation. There is something ironic in the current British attitude, for in pre-war times, as the leading creditor nation, England sent its capital into enterprises in all parts of the world. In human affairs it all depends on whose ox is being gored.

PHELPS DODGE SHARES TO BE OFFERED

By JULIUS G. BEREN[illegible]

New York, March 14—Stock of Phelps Dodge corporation, one of the largest enterprises in the copper industry and for virtually a century a "closed corporation," will become available to the general public as a result of the purchase by an American banking group of 200,000 shares of its stock.

This stock, which represents no new financing by the company, has been acquired from British stockholders by a syndicate comprising Hornblower & Weeks, Redmond & Company, Dominick & Dominick, J. K. Rice Jr. & Co., Cassatt & Company, Paine Webber & Co., W. E. Hutton & Co. and E. A. Pierce & Co. It represents 10 per cent of the company's total capitalization which will amount to 2,000,000 shares upon completion of the four-for-one split-up. The bankers will offer the shares later this week.

Besides representing the first large block of Phelps Dodge stock ever offered publicly, the financing will also mark the first time in over 18 years that a sizable issue of copper stock has been sold.

For practically 100 years Phelps Dodge has been owned by three generations of the same families, principally Arthur Curtis James, various members of the Dodge family, the Douglass family, the Cleveland H. Dodge Foundation, the McLean family, the Osborns, the Van Vlecks, the Agnews, the Ferrys and the Bliss family.

The 200,000 shares involved in the present transaction were acquired by the bankers in London from British interests who had originally developed mines in Arizona and who, many years ago, turned these mines over to the Phelps Dodge Corporation in return for shares which have now been purchased.

INLAND WIRE IS SOLD TO ANACONDA

Stockholders of the Inland Wire and Cable Company have accepted the offer of the Anaconda Wire and Cable Company, the recently organized subsidiary of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company. They have voted to transfer all the property and assets of the Inland company to the Anaconda Wire and Cable Company in exchange for 102,800 shares of the capital stock of the latter company.

The Anaconda Wire and Cable Company has an authorized issue of 1,000,000 shares of stock of no stated par value.

Upon this basis the stockholders of the Inland company will receive one share of the Anaconda stock for each share of Inland stock.

Upon the completion of the transaction there will be a total of 223,478 shares outstanding, which was announced at the time of the organization of the company which now owns the rod and wire mill formerly owned by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company at Great Falls, Mont., the wire mill formerly owned by the American Brass Company at Kenosha, Wis., and the insulating plants of the Inland company at Sycamore, Ill.

Following are officers of the new company: H. Donn Keresey, president; Harold V. Engh, vice-president, and W. K. Daly, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors is composed of Cornelius F. Kelley, Benjamin B. Thayer, H. Donn Keresey, Harold V. Engh and W. H. Mitchell.

Demand for Copper Exceeds the Supply

The copper industry passed through February with a greater demand for finished copper than refineries were able to supply. Consequently surplus stocks of finished metal at North and South American refineries were again drawn upon.

The smaller shipments during February as compared with January were undoubtedly due to the fact that the former contained three fewer business days than the latter. However, total domestic shipments aggregating 197,542,000 pounds in February represented a larger daily average than in January, based on 27 working days for January as against only 24 for February. Average daily domestic shipments in January were 7,417,407 pounds against 8,230,917 pounds in the following month.

Exports showed a rather sharp drop during February to 100,300,000 pounds from 114,108,000 pounds in January. Foreign takings of refined metal after reaching the high total of 129,978,000 pounds in April, 1928, have at no time since approached this figure, the best subsequent monthly total being for August, 1928, at 120,480,000 pounds.

Supplies of finished metal at refineries in North and South America at the end of February of 110,426,000 pounds were sufficient to cover only 10 days' shipments at the February rate. At this level stocks are half way between the low point of 91,296,000 pounds as of October 31, 1928, and the high since that date made on December 31 at 130,932,000 pounds.

Handicapped by the loss of Capt. Eddie Oatman, the Tigers tackle the Springfield Indians tonight at the Boston Arena. This game is of great importance to both teams and should be one of the hardest fought of the season.

The Tigers are leading in the race for the Canadian American League championship but they are being pressed by the Rhode Island Reds and cannot afford to slip as the Providence team has one game more to play than the Bengals.

Bill Grimes

The Springfield Indians are fighting to get into third place. The Indians banked on defeating Newark but much to their surprise the Bulldogs came through with a victory. The Indians are in a savage mood, for due to the Newark victory, their chances of making the playoffs were handed a rude jolt.

This is the first time in the history of Canadian-American League pennant races that the Springfield Indians have been out of first place at this stage of the fight.

LOSS OF STARS HURT

The City of Homes is not represented by as strong an aggregation as in former years. The loss of such stars as Frank Waite, Art Chapman, Clucker Whyte and Sparky Vail is the reason for the Indians battling to make the playoffs instead of being the pacemakers.

Capt. Eddie Oatman will be on the sidelines tonight. He came out of the New Haven game last Sunday night with a bad side and will be out of the lineup until the Newark game in Springfield on Saturday.

Ludger Desmarais will start on the defense in place of Captain Oatman and, as the big Frenchman always goes well against his old teammates, he is expected to hold up his end.

GREAT FRONT LINE

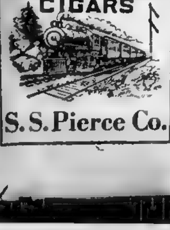

Manager Eddie Powers will open with a front line composed of Frank Waite at center and Johnny Loucks and Bob Taylor on the wings. This trio has been traveling at a fast and effective clip for the past month.

Waite, Loucks and Taylor have developed a brand of combination play which excels any ever produced by former Tiger clubs.

Eddie Burke will work at center on the second line and he will be teamed with Sonny Manning and Clark Heyd. Like the first line members, Burke, Manning and Heyd are playing great hockey.

The Indians will start Boyd, Carrigan and Scott and will have Chief Maracle, Goldsworthy and Cawkell for replacements. Patsey Callighen and Yip Foster will be on the defense, with Aitkenhead in the nets.

The Tiger game will be followed by the first playoff in the Bay State Amateur League, with Employers' Liability meeting Crescent A. C. The victor will play Cantab Cubs next week for the league championship and the James Michael Curley cup.

150 BOXERS IN N. E. TITLE BOUTS

With indications pointing to the most successful championship boxing tournament ever held in this city, it is expected there will be close to 150 amateur fighters ready to step into the ring in quest of titles in eight classes at the New England championships to be staged at the Boston Arena next Monday and Tuesday night.

It is expected at the same time that more than 30 boxers will not be permitted to compete in the tournament on account of filing their entries late as post entries will be barred this year on account of the extraordinary list already received.

These amateur championships, which have been annually looked forward to in this city for many years, will extend over a period of two nights again this year in order that the boxers may be given sufficient time for sleeping. The committee frowned on any attempt to run off the tournament in one night.

Douglas McKinnon, the Quincy boy, who has turned a deaf ear to all offers to turn pro no doubt will enter the tournament as the favorite to cop this title although he is sure to meet some formidable contenders for the crown. Henry Landis of Worcester is regarded as a heavyweight who is sure to force the Quincy boy to the limit to win. Many simon pure boxers, who have not appeared in a local ring before, will make their bow in this tournament.

40 Report for Green Baseball Team

Hanover, N. H., March 14—Coach Jeff Tesreau's first call for outfield and infield candidates for the Dartmouth baseball team brought 40 men to the baseball cage in the gymnasium.

The Green coach was much concerned at the lack of outfield candidates, with only two candidates of known ability, Parker and French, reporting.

Coach Tesreau has only three pitchers, Hollstrom, Marsh and Hausman. Lawson Van Riper, who was lost to the team by graduation, will be missed badly on the mound as will Bill Breckenridge, now with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Dugan to Report To Braves Camp

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14—The last Brave holdout has surrendered. Joe Dugan, former Yank third baseman, has wired that he is headed for camp. Judge Fuchs issued the following statement today: Joe Dugan will report here Monday morning ready and willing to help the Braves and we believe that he can and will do it.

Baldwin, Finlay Hit 325 Yard Drives

By BILL GRIMES

During the past few seasons, columns have been written on the prowess of Phillips Finlay of Harvard as a swatter.

He has delivered some of the longest drives ever recorded

But never did he get more distance than on the 5th hole at Wollaston recently, and at that he was about five yards back of Jim Baldwin.

Playing with Jim Baldwin and Bill Arnold, Finlay got in his second practice round of the season. Although it was only his second outdoor appearance since he played at Pinehurst during the Christmas holidays, Finlay was hitting everything right on the nose.

He bent into tee shots off the 1st, 2d and 4th tee for tremendous distances. He was at the foot of the hill in front of the 1st and 2d green from the tees and after playing a beautiful No. 7 iron to the 3d green, drove into the trap guarding the 4th green.

But it was off the 5th tee that he let out a couple of notches and then walked more than 300 yards to play his second shot. Finlay sent a screeching drive off this tee, which landed on the road and bounced toward the green.

After Arnold had pushed his drive over by the fence, Jimmy Baldwin stepped up and duplicated Finlay's feat of hitting to the road and running to the fairway, about five yards out in front of the long hitting Californian.

Finlay and Baldwin were both at least 125 yards out beyond the 200-yard stake, and they both admitted that they had never in their wildest moments ever believed a golf ball could travel such a distance.

The Harvard trio did not make any serious attempts to score. They were out to get in some driving and long iron shot practice.

Together with Eddie Murphy, Phillips Finlay, Bill Arnold and Jim Baldwin are going to Pinehurst for the North and South championship which will be played during the Easter vacation.

If this sophomore quartet can get in a couple of weeks of practice before they start South, they will make things interesting for the other North and South contestants.

DUFFY TO KEEP BATTERIES AT B. C. INTACT

Coach Hugh Duffy plans at present to have alternating batteries working on his Boston College baseball nine this spring. He inaugurated this system at the Heights a year ago, and now that he has the catching material, will continue it.

It seems that Bob Smith and Hugh McNulty will be the first battery doing the work in the major games, and that George Colbert and Jim O'Connor will be the second pair, for action against the lesser opposition.

When Duffy started B. C. on its 1928 campaign there were two catchers of almost equal ability in Capt. Fred McMenimen and Tom O'Brien. So Duffy, in order to get the best out of each boy and to give each a chance, teamed McMenimen with McNulty and O'Brien with John Shea.

MEN TEAMED UP

All through the spring practice McMenimen and McNulty teamed up, and the same with O'Brien and Shea. The result was that the boys became well acquainted with each other's style and two first class batteries were produced.

When McNulty was yanked McMenimen went with him and this was true of the O'Brien-Shea duo. In other years one catcher did the job the full nine innings of every game without relief.

Duffy has been using Bob Smith and Hugh McNulty and George Colbert and Jim O'Connor at the Armory. And chances of a third pair in Pete Herman, pitcher, and Eddie Gibbons, catcher, are highly possible. These three catchers are almost on a par although Smith is the only experienced one.

Women Advance in Longwood Tennis

Three players advanced to the semifinal round of the women's national indoor singles on the Longwood covered courts, Chestnut Hill. Mrs. Charles J. Hubbard, Jr., top-seeded player, narrowly staved off defeat from the racquet of Miss Marjorie Sachs in the feature match.

Miss Sachs, a hard-driving left-handed player, had set-point five times during the match, but could not put it across.

In the first set Miss Sachs was leading, 5—2, with set-point on her racquet and a net saved Mrs. Hubbard.

Mrs. Hubbard, finding herself outplayed at the net, went back to the base line and her steady deep shots forced her opponent into errors.

New $200,000 Red Top Crew Quarters

A group of modern buildings, up to date in every respect and costing approximately $200,000, is to be erected at the Harvard crew training quarters at Red Top, Ct., on the banks of the Thames, it was announced at Harvard.

Work on the construction of the buildings will begin right away, and the new buildings are to take the place of the rather primitive and dilapidated buildings that have housed Harvard crews during their campaigns of the past.

TECH COURT TOURNEY ON TODAY

By DICK McSWEENEY

The Tech basketball tourney opens in the Hangar gym, Cambridge, today, when the strong Brockton five takes the floor against New Bedford Vocational.

The Red and Black is a decided favorite to win the tourney this year, although Arlington high, winner of last year's tournament, put a strong team on the floor.

Brockton has a great forward in Almquist, and its brace of guards, Semino and Smolensky, have demonstrated their ability time and time again this season.

Cosmos, Vocational forward, will be watched closely by the Red and Black hoopsters. His play has permitted the Whaling City five to chalk up many victories.

BROCKTON FAVORED

Brockton will enter this game a favorite, but the odds on the Red and Black will be very slim. Coach Staff will breathe easier if the New Bedford obstacle is put safely out of the way.

The second tussle of the afternoon brings Haverhill and Chelsea together. Haverhill went through the first part of the season, setting up a noteworthy record of wins, only to fall before Salem. Chelsea has met many stubborn opponents this year and feels that it can emulate Salem's feat in turning back the Haverhill team.

Coach Kennelly of Chelsea feels that he has his team in the right frame of mind. French and Cohen have been making court fans take an active interest in Chelsea's doings on the court. McVey is anxious to show that he can cage the sphere with the best of the schoolboy shooters.

EVENING GAMES AT 7 30

There will be a lull in activities after the Brockton-New Bedford Vocational and Haverhill Chelsea contests, lasting until 7:30 in the evening, at which time, Arlington and Franklin will line up against each other.

At 8:30 Lynn English will battle Cambridge Latin and the completion of this game marks the closing of the preliminary round.

Sometime between the close of the Haverhill-Chelsea struggle and 7:30 tonight Director McCarthy of the Tech tourney will tender a banquet to the headmasters and coaches from the schools participating in the basket event.

Miss Wethered To Play In British Open

London, March 14 (AP)—Miss Joyce Wethered will compete in the British women's golf championship at St. Andrews, beginning May 13, it was announced today.

After several years out of bid competitions because she disliked the crowds and excitement of championship meetings, Miss Wethered, who is considered Britain's best woman player of all time, will form an unexpected obstacle to Miss Glenna Collet, Miss Maureen Orcutt and other American girls invading Britain this year with hopes of capturing the only British golf title which has not at some time gone to the United States.

Yale Beats Harvard in Final Ice Game

New Haven, March 14—A fighting Yale sextet tore a 3 to 2 win from Harvard here in the third and final game of the annual ice series, after three regular and three overtime periods of tight play.

Harvard's scoring hero was Albert Bigelow, one of the twin defense men, for he nudged in the initial Crimson goal in the first period, and rammed home the equalizer in the second stanza.

Crimson Ball Squad Developing Rapidly

With the Harvard baseball squad now in its third week of practice, Coach Fred Mitchell is putting his prospective players through longer and harder workouts each day at the Briggs cage in preparation for the first game of the season with Boston University on April 6.

The pitchers are o. k., and are commencing to practice curves and slow balls, and as soon as possible Mitch will line up teams of infields and batteries for practice games inside the cage.

Bill Fownes Leads in Pinehurst Play

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

FRANK MARLOW, who has proved equally successful in handling star boxers and thoroughbred race horses, called Mr. Boston on the telephone.

"I came to Boston for the purpose of establishing Riccarso Bertazolo, latest Italian heavyweight sensation, at Phil Boccola's training camp at Sharon Gardens," said Marlow.

"Better than Roberto Roberti," was the quick reply. "With experience, he'll be the sensation of the heavyweight division. He is a 100 per cent Italian and has plenty of size, weighing 215 pounds and standing 6 feet 2 inches. And how he can sock! I want you to come up to Sharon Gardens some day and take a peek at my new find."

"My European agents have already tipped me on Bertazolo," declared Mr. Boston. "They told me he was a much better looking prospect than Roberti. They all said the boy can punch in Dempsey fashion. It looks as though he's going some place, Frank."

"I'VE been trying to get a line on a first class heavyweight for quite a few years. At one time I thought I had the right man in Jack Delaney. I picked up Delaney at the time I was managing Johnny Wilson who was then world's middleweight champion.

"I liked Delaney because he could hit. I tried every way possible to build up his weight, but I couldn't get him above 175 pounds. He could knock out fellows like Berlenbach and Flowers, but he had to spot the heavyweights too much poundage. If Delaney had been 15 pounds heavier, he would have been a riot among the big fellows.

"This fellow Bertazolo has the size and the punch. He is going somewhere."

MR. BOSTON was shocked at the news from Daytona, Fla., telling of the tragic death of Lee Bible, auto racer, and a Pathe News cameraman who was hit by the speeding machine.

"Bible, a former mechanic, had just qualified as a speed driver," said Mr. Boston. "Bible was married and the father of two children. He wanted to gain riches and fame so that his family could have all of the comforts possible.

"In his first start as a speed racer, Bible made a try to shatter the world's record of 231 miles an hour. One must give him credit for attempting such a tremendous task, especially as he was lacking in experience.

"Bible had done considerable driving on dirt tracks, but the sand tracks of Florida were new to him. He did not know the ways of the treacherous sand dunes and when he crashed into one of them he lost his own life and also caused the death of a Pathe News cameraman by the name of Traub.

"TRAUB, like Bible, was at all times willing to take the risks that went with his game, which was to get the action picture of what happened. I have often seen newspaper photographers and movie cameramen laugh at death so that they could show a picture which would be of news interest.

"IN the auto race game the drivers jokingly declare they will eventually all get killed if they stick at the racket long enough. I cannot quite understand why so many courageous young men should each year offer up their lives on the Altar of SPEED. The world would get along just as well without new auto speed records.

"THE crowds which attend auto race meetings are usually attracted by the anticipation of seeing an accident. They don't exactly want to see an accident, but they are disappointed if they miss a race meeting at which a fatality occurs. The same morbid streak in human nature causes people to use all possible political influence to secure passes which will permit them to attend an official killing by the state after a murder conviction."

Training Camp Flashes

Winter Haven, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Manager Shotton announced that he would bank on right-handed pitchers today when the Philadelphia Nationals journey to Fort Myers to meet the Athletics in the first of a two-game Florida series.

Shotton gave the squad an afternoon off yesterday, but held a long workout in the forenoon. Willoughby, Roy and Beach drew the pitching assignment against the Mackmen and Virgil Davis was named to do all the catching, as Lerian too lame to work.

Ft. Myers, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Nick Borrelli, former Muhlenberg College star, drew the assignment at third base in the Athletics exhibition tilt with the Philadelphia Nationals today. The Athletics went through a fast drill in the forenoon yesterday and spent the afternoon on the golf course. Mack said the players were "coming along nicely."

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14 (AP)—The New York Yankees haven't made any changes since last season in the strategy they use to win ball games. In their exhibition game against the Boston Braves yesterday they used the same system that won the final game of the World's Series last fall—to hit hard and often. In the eighth inning, with a tied score, Lou Gehrig blasted out a triple and Byrd, Lazzeri and Lary followed with singles for three runs and a 6-to-3 victory.

San Antonio, Tex., March 14 (AP)—John McGraw has seen enough of the training activities of the New York Giants to start deciding how they will bat during the regular season. Although a large part of the batting order still is undecided, Mac has assigned Fred Leach, his new outfielder from the Phillies, to the sixth position with Fred Lindstrom and Bill Terry just ahead of him. McGraw believes that Leach will hit around the .300 mark this season. Yesterday's game with San Antonio was called off on account of rain.

Clearwater, Fla., March 14 (AP)—Dazzy Vance and Glenn Wright are still causing most of the grief in the camp of the Brooklyn Robins. There has been a lot of talk about Wright's injury, but it is the Dazzler's determination to hold out that is bothering Manager Wilbert Robinson. Bobbie readily accepts the statement of Dr. Ferguson that Wright will be able to get into action in a few weeks but he is opposed to the club officials' stand on not giving Vance more than $22,500.

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., March 14 (AP)—Manager Joe McCarthy and his ambitious Cubs packed their war clubs and prepared to leave today for their long exhibition tour of the mainland. A series with Los Angeles will open their exhibition program tomorrow.

Avon Park, Fla., March 14 (AP)—The management of the St. Louis Cardinals announced the signing of Fred Haney, third sacker obtained from Indianapolis and formerly with the Boston and Detroit Americans. Haney's signature leaves only Ernie Orsatti on the holdout list.

Offer Walker $7500 to Fight De Vos

Los Angeles, March 14 (AP)—Jimmy Bronson, active manager of Rene De Vos, announced here that he has been authorized by Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., wealthy New York sportsman and owner of the Belgian boxer's contract, to offer Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, $75,000 for a title match with De Vos.

Bronson said the offer would be good for any part of the country, De Vos being willing to fight Walker "wherever we could find a promoter to stage the match."

Malcewicz Has Defense for Gus' Flying Tackle

PANTHER IN BID FOR TITLE

Betting Odds Tighten Up as Rival Matmen Await Clash at Garden

By JACK CONWAY

JOE MALCEWICZ, the Panther of the Mat, isn't greatly worried about Gus Sonnenberg's famous flying tackle judging by the way he has been handling five sturdy training partners at Jim Toland's gym.

The five men who have been working with Malcewicz were under orders to use the flying tackle, but him in the stomach or engage in any other rough house form of grappling.

Jack Conway

The Panther knocked off flying tackles with ease, while he stood up under fierce body attacks. As a result, Joe and his followers are of the opinion there will be a new world's heavyweight wrestling champion after the title battle at the Boston Garden tomorrow night.

Malcewicz is a much more finished wrestler than Sonnenberg. There are some of the boys in the racket who will even say Joe has forgotten more about the mat game than Dynamite knows.

The only fear the Malcewicz backers had in regard to the outcome of tomorrow night's tussle was that Sonny would prove too tough for his rival. But after watching Malcewicz make his training mates look ridiculous when attempting to apply flying tackles, the Panther's supporters have become very confident.

Malcewicz's work in the gym has also caused the betting odds to tighten up. Most wagers are being made at even money.

PAUL BOWSER announces that the tremendous seating capacity of the Boston Garden will enable him to care for all those who may wish to attend the battle. Bowser is entrenched at his new office at Room 203, 115 Chauncy st., where there is a steady demand for reservations.

The feature bout will get under way at 10 o'clock.

Governor and Mrs. Frank Allen and a large party of friends will be among those who will witness the tussle.

THE Garden will step back into the boxing racket a week from tomorrow night when Ernie Schaaf and Al Friedman will clash in a 10-round bout. When these boys recently collided at the Arena, the decision in favor of Schaaf didn't meet with popular approval.

Phil Scholsberg says Schaaf will be in the best condition of his career when he meets Friedman next week.

"I don't do a great deal of predicting," said Phil, "but I'm certain Ernie will lick Friedman by such a wide margin this time that even Al will have to admit defeat."

B. U. NEEDS ONE GOOD PITCHER

The biggest problem confronting Dave Morey, B. U. baseball coach, is to develop a real pitcher before the Pioneers take the field against Harvard at Cambridge on April 6.

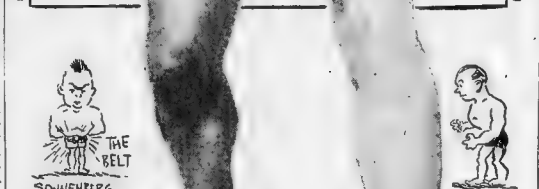

Prospects for the best team in years at B. U. received a severe blow when it was learned that Bill Meader, veteran twirler, has withdrawn from college and will be unable to represent B. U. on the diamond this spring. Meader has been out of college for the past month as he had not as yet been admitted to the day division since the mid-year examinations early in February.

This leaves the team in a bad hole as not a single veteran twirler is available. Arthur Murphy, a big right hander from Abbott school in Farmington, Me., worked out with the squad a year ago but was on probation at the time so did not get in any games but he showed lots of stuff and may prove O. K. during the coming campaign.

PANTHER SET TO SPRING AT GUS

AFTER MAT CROWN

Malcewicz is one of the cleverest wrestlers in the game. And the heavy champion, Gus Sonnenberg, must be at his best to hold the title at the Garden tomorrow. Sonny probably is somewhat stronger. But Joe feels that he has an efficient defense against the flying tackle which won the crown for Dynamite Gus.

St. Pete Chatter

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14—Eddie Farrell tried to spear a base hit with his finger and will have to nurse the digest for a few days. Eddie has been hitting well, but his fielding has been a bit shaky.

The Rabbit will steady things down in the infield.

Freddy Maguire is the only Brave who looks as if he meant it at the bat. The boys will have plenty of morning batting and base running practice for the rest of their stay here.

Babe Ruth is hitting in his regular spring form. He saves his homers for the season. He looks better this spring than he has for years. The old contract runs out and he wants to have a good argument for a bigger one.

An expert in the press coop remarked that Lary, the new Yank shortstop, had a wonderful pair of hands. Then the youngster proceeded to make three juicy errors. The experts can call them in the South just the same as elsewhere.

Young Rhodes, from Hollywood, looks like a fine pitcher. Just wild enough to keep the batters worried and gifted with plenty of stuff. The Yanks have a gift at picking them up.

Lou Gehrig is in shape. He let a run gambol across the saucer while he argued with Umpire Van Grafiin over a close one at first. But Lou smacks in enough counters to make the boys overlook his occasional lapses.

One for Girls' Five

Swampscott high girls' basketball team closed its season by defeating Winchester high girls, 36 to 32, at the former's court.

Braves Need Punch to Win Exhibitions

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14—Babe Ruth and Yankees assault the Braves again this afternoon at Water Front Park.

World Champs are slapping the apple viciously, while the Fuchs pupils have been very gentle and non-aggressive with their clubs since the opening game.

These games mean nothing, of course, but the boys like to win 'em. It was two years ago that the Yankees lost fourteen out of sixteen down here in the circus belt, and then went on to win the flag. But the Yanks are champions. Constant beating is likely to kill the spirit in a weak team, before the athletes really find them selves.

Pitching must save the Wigwamers in this series, if they are to be saved. No team in the game can come close to the American League kings in the matter of hitting.

Thus far the Tribal pitching has been good, very good. The runs of the opponents have come over generally after errors or mental lapses.

Percy Jones in his first real tryout, undid four bang up innings. There's nothing wrong with his arm, and it's a cinch he will win a lot of ball games for the club.

Percy is ready now and will just hold himself in trim until the gang gets North. It is quite likely that he will draw the opening game assignment.

HOMER BEATS PERCY

He was nicked for two runs in the opening Yank affair, but that was hardly his fault. Young Mister Byrd, quite a ball player, hit a homer that might well have been held to a double, or even a single.

But George Harper, out in left, was not in shape. He couldn't get down to the ball and it rolled to the fence.

Nick Flatley

Which reminds us that Judge Fuchs has turned very strongly against the practice of late reporting. Several of his best men are not ready and consequently it is impossible to get team play speeded up, or to furnish the best contention against invaders.

"We have two or three good examples," the judge states, "of the disadvantage of having players come to camp late. Harper and Mueller are not ready to play, and Farrell isn't in trim yet. The late reporters force themselves to catch up with the rest and as a result they get sore and lame, and have to go easy.

"Another year I will have some method, so that the tardy ones will suffer. I don't know just what, but there ll be some rule. The players don't get paid during training, but their salaries really depend on their physical condition, and they owe it to their club and themselves to be around on time."

JUDGE SATISFIED

Apart from that, the judge is pleased with the way things are going and is convinced that his managing, with Johnny Evers doing the heavy and intricate work will be a success.

Art Delaney and Harry Selbold were down to do the chucking against the A. L. clouters today. These two young men have been working regularly and doing very well, thank you. It will be Selbold's first appearance, and the strategists are anxious to see him per form.

He is an experienced, smart tosser. Johnny Evers says he reminds him more of Dick Rudolph than any pitcher he has seen in years. A second Rudolph would be a great help to any ball club.

The Braves appear to have plenty of pitching for a good campaign and baseball men who have been looking things over here are inclined to rate the Tribe much better than they figured in what might be called the winter books.

Sox Go After Reds in Bradenton Camp

By JOE CASHMAN

Bradenton, Fla., March 14—Red Sox were not a bit discouraged over their one-sided defeat at the hands of the St. Louis Cardinals.

They went out today determined to take the Cincinnati Reds into camp.

The boys felt confident that with big Ed Morris, Jack Russell and Charlie Ruffing doing the twirling, they would score their first win of the season over a big league rival.

Manager Bill Carrigan will start his second string lineup 'n the field and will send in the regulars, who started against the Cards, to play the last four innings.

While he didn't like to see his charges lose, 13 to 3, to the Cards, Carrigan was perfectly satisfied with their showing.

He got a line on most of his players in action and saw them display enough good baseball to make him optimistic over the future of the club.

As we pointed out before the Sox didn't figure to beat the Cards. The National League champions have been in training much longer than the Fenway flock and played several exhibition games before coming here.

Yet, except in the sixth inning, when the Cards scored ten runs, the Sox looked just as good as the enemy from start to finish.

COULD HAVE WON

And had Carrigan been making any attempt to win, the big surge of the opposition in the sixth could have been stopped.

It was a one-sided defeat but it sounds much worse than it really was.

Durham and Carroll, the two rookies who pitched, showed a lot of class. Durham twirled the first three innings, when the Cards had all their stars playing, and shaped up like a real big leaguer. He tired a bit toward the end, which was natural, and the Cards scored two runs on a walk and two singles in the third. Up to that time he had them well in check.

He showed some real pitching in the second frame, when Bottomley opened with a single. He forced Hafey and Roettger, both hard hitters, to pop out, and then, after Gelbert singled to send Bottomley to third, he caused Oil Smith to fly out to right.

Carroll finally stopped the uprising in the sixth and finished up the game, allowing but three hits and one run.

CARDS GET TO BAYNE

Billy Bayne was the victim of the Cards in the sixth, but it was not all his fault. He didn't allow a run in the fourth or the fifth, while he had Charlie Berry receiving his southpaw slants, but in the sixth he had to throw to young Bob Ashjornson, and just seemed to toss him off his stride.

That regular lineup with a veteran battery ought to be able to hold its own with anybody.

Gerber was playing second, a position new to him, while Stardaert, who was on first, still has a lot to learn about playing the bag, so it wasn't surprising that the subs failed to shine. Narlesky at short and Barrett at third went well.

The Cards have a lot of promising looking youngsters in addition to most of the regulars who carried the team to the championship last year. Bell, Elliott and Haid twirled for them. All three having been in training over three weeks, had a lot of stuff on the ball.

Charlie Goldert, rookie shortstop, who is expected to burn up the league, looks good but he is not quite finished and the Cards may yet be sorry that they sold Maranville and Thevenow.

Taylor and Singer Meet Again Friday

New York, March 14 (AP)—New York's fight fans, who are famous for never getting enough, should come near to having their appetite for battles satisfied with the second big show of the week at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. While the memory of the struggle between James J. Braddock and Jimmy Slattery Monday night is still fresh in their minds, the fans can see the return bout between Bud Taylor, the "Terror" of Terre Haute, Ind., and Al Singer, flashy Bronx youngster. The pair of scrappy featherweights started their argument several weeks ago, but it ended in the fourth round when Taylor was disqualified for a disputed foul.

Plenty of Offers For Von Porat

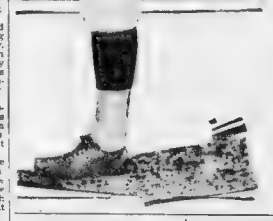

Chicago, March 14 (AP)—Otto von Porat, angular Norwegian heavyweight, who handed Tom Heeney a terrific lacing Tuesday night, has under consideration offers to meet Johnny Risko and Paulino Uzcudun.

The Boston Garden wants him to meet Risko, while Promoter Jim Mullen of Chicago has offered him an engagement with Uzcudun here April 30.

Lowell Man Downs Irish in Billiard Go

Arthur Ireland of Lowell, playing in great form, gave Young Irish of the West End a decisive beating in the New England pool championship at the State parlors, when he defeated him, 100 to 37.

Ireland has a chance for the championship, as he has now won four games and lost two. He has yet to play the leaders, and By winning both of his remaining games he will go into a tie for first place.

Tonight Brooks Carpenter of Somerville will play George Gould of Roxbury. Carpenter has a record of four wins and one defeat.

Nurmi Will Try For Five World's Records

New York, March 14 (AP)—Paavo Nurmi announced that he will try to break five world's records in his race at the Knights of Columbus meet here Saturday. He will shoot at the marks for three miles, 5000 meters, 3¼ miles, 3¾ miles and 4 miles.

Martha Lee Tells of Peas Porridge

IN ONE household the universal answer to the question, "What do you want to eat tonight?" is "Peas porridge [illegible]." And what a natural answer it is, for peas add a piquant flavor to any vegetable combination, while their bright color gives pleasure to the eye and the food value of peas is higher than that of many of the vegetables.

While peas are favored for their qualities [illegible] in another [illegible] as part of a baked dish [illegible] of tomatoes [illegible] any vegetable [illegible] dish which [illegible] easy to prepare.

For dishes of this type [illegible] medium-sized peas should be used, for they are tender and sweet and yet full of flavor. The largest peas are best adapted for use in soup, while the tiny peas are primarily intended for salads and more decorative uses. There is also an unsifted pea, which is packed just as the peas come from the garden, large ones and small ones. These are excellent to serve as a vegetable with butter sauce.

So [illegible] peas according to their purpose, just as you would choose [illegible] for its use. Some careful housewives keep three sizes of peas, as well as the unsifted pea, on the shelf all the time in order to [illegible], always use the type which [illegible] to the type of food they are to [illegible].

It's very economical to make, for it takes only 3⅛ yards of 40-inch material with ⅜ yard of 36-inch contrasting as sketched in the 36-inch size and designed in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. VEGETABLE SHEPHERD PIE

Put ½ c. diced, cooked turnips, 1 c. diced carrots, 2-3 c. cooked sliced celery, ½ c. mushrooms, ½ of a No. 2 can (unsifted peas) in layers in a buttered casserole. Pour over them 1 c. of brown sauce highly seasoned with ⅛ tsp. kitchen bouquet. Spread mashed potatoes roughly over the top. Brown in a hot oven 400 degrees F. for 15 to 20 minutes.

PEAS AND FRESH TOMATOES

Scoop the inside out of 3 or 4 tomatoes. Saute the pulp and the peas from a No. 1 can in 3 tbsp. of butter until heated. Season with salt and pepper. Then fill the tomatoes with the mixture, cover the top with buttered crumbs, and heat in a hot oven until the crumbs are browned. Stick a sprig of parsley in each and serve. Tiny peas are delicious for this purpose.

PEA AND WALNUT ROAST

Mix the following: 1½ c. pea pulp, 1 c. soft bread crumbs, ⅛ c. chopped walnuts, ¼ c. butter, 2-3 c. canned tomato soup, 1 slightly beaten egg, salt, pepper and onion juice. Put into a buttered baking dish or loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees F. for 30 to 45 minutes or until set and brown. Serve with hot canned tomato soup, undiluted. Use the unsifted peas for this roast.

MEXICAN PEAS

Saute 1 medium-sized chopped onion in 2 tbsp. butter until golden brown, add 1 tbsp. flour and stir smooth. Add 2 c. stewed tomatoes, 2 c. peas, 2 pimentos, 1 tsp. salt and ⅛ tsp. pepper. Pour into a buttered baking dish, cover thickly with buttered crumbs and brown in a hot oven. Medium-sized peas or the unsifted peas are better for this dish.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

TURN IN THE ROAD

THEY walked arm in arm together toward the pier. It would be their last time together—perhaps.

"Mary," he said, his eyes growing moist, "will you wait for me?"

"Yes, John," she said, "to the end of time."

"We'll be married when I come back," he said, as the girl nervously toyed with the buttons on the sleeve of his khaki uniform.

They finally arrived at the pier where an enormous number of women, children and old men were bidding the young men in khaki goodbye. The wide street, usually crowded with wagons filled with merchandise, was now swarming with soldiers hurrying to embark.

The huge steamship puffing alongside, which years before had carried the parents of many of these uniformed boys to this country, was now to carry their sons to Europe to fight for democracy.

Mary Johnson and John Wentworth faced each other, strangely silent for the moment. Only now they began to realize the tragedy of war.

The quiet was broken by a loud blast from the ship, already filled with soldiers crowding the decks, waving handkerchiefs to families and sweethearts.

"Mary, do you realize the sacrifice you're making when you say you'll wait for me?" John said, as he took the girl in his arms.

"Yes, John dear," she said. "When you come back we'll rent that cute little bungalow in Yonkers with the rose bushes on the front lawn. You'll get your job back at the garage and we'll get along swimmingly."

"Mary, darling, I'd win a dozen old wars for a girl like you," John answered as the whistle gave two short blasts.

Mary watched the boat until it was a mere speck and then slowly turned homeward.

* * *

After the World War had ended there were many who failed to return from the battlegrounds of Europe. Some were listed by the War Department as "killed in action," others as missing.

Mary Johnson was among the unfortunates whose fiance failed to come back. She hopefully waited for him, always tracing some new theory that she thought would give some clue to his whereabouts.

To relieve her mind of the tragedy that had entered her life, she returned to the stage, a former profession, and in a short while had gained a name for herself in the theatrical world.

Her beauty had won attention on the "Gay White Way," and many men of wealth had tried to come into her life. She disregarded their attentions and lived alone with a crippled mother.

She still held a secret hope that "her John," as she called him, would come back despite the fact that it had been over four years since he disappeared.

It was a bright Easter Sunday when she was invited to entertain at a veteran hospital benefit. She drove for the first time a new roadster.

The day was warm, soft winds fanned her cheeks, and the sun cast a golden color about the newly grown grass.

For a moment she forgot the bleak realities of existence, forgot the tragedy that had so marred her life. Only for a moment, however, for the road took a sharp turn and the car bore down upon a man evidently paralyzed with fear.

Mary, her face white with fright, swerved in a frantic effort to avoid the man. She was a little too late, however, for the right fender of the auto struck the man's head, knocking him to the ground unconscious.

The car crashed into a tree, turned over and pinned Mary to the ground.

A month passed before she was dismissed from the hospital, glad she had escaped being maimed for life.

Shortly after she went to the veterans' hospital to see the man she had injured. She was met at the hospital by a middle-aged nurse who chatted with her as they passed through the corridors.

"You have done that man more good than harm," the nurse said; "the sudden shock restored his memory, lost since the World War. He is very anxious to see you, and has asked for you a number of times."

They paused at a door and stepped in the room.

"This is the lady who ran you down," the nurse said to a man propped up in bed, his face toward the window. He turned, and his eyes met Mary's.

"John," she cried, and ran toward the bed.

"God works in a mysterious way," her John said, as they embraced.

CHAPTER 21.

UNLIKE Felicia, the dark-eyed girl staying alone at the hotel by Lake Tahoe, seemed to think Brett interesting. She had seen the diplomat several times in New York, and had reminded him of that fact when they met in the lobby. She was young and pretty.

Brett, returning from his enforced spying on the lawn, strode angrily up the veranda steps, and Miss Zelda O'Day called out a languid good evening.

"Good evening," said Brett curtly, took another step, and paused. Why not test his idea? Why not find out the truth, find out if his attitude on love-making was hypocrisy? "Good evening, my dear!"

"So lovely a woman as you shouldn't be alone!" he told her, gallantly.

"I'm not—now," said Miss O'Day, smiling.

Brett was pleased. This business seemed to go off rather well, at that. "So you're not, my dear—so you're not!"

He sat down beside her. Too old was he, for this sort of thing?

"I wonder—" he glanced at his watch, and she watched him closely. "Would you join me in having a little wine? We could have it out right out here."

"That would be lovely!" Miss O'Day rewarded him with a soft flash of black eyes. One year in the chorus of a Broadway revue.... Zelda O'Day could have told him then and there, everything he would say and do in the next 24 hours, and the order of his saying and doing it!

"To you, my dear!" He lifted his glass, fingering the long stem a little nervously.

"Thank you."

They talked idly.

"—when I was with Ziegfeld—" Miss O'Day slipped in, carelessly, and Brett's eyes glistened.

"Oh, you were in the Follies?"

She nodded. "He told me . . . her voice went on, soothingly.

It was midnight when Brett suggested a stroll by the lake. Leaning back against a tree-trunk, her black gown mysteriously melting into the night, Miss O'Day sang softly.

"Lovely!" said Brett. "Won't you sing something for me?"

Her dark eyes flashed; her throat was a curve of white, descending to the soft black of her gown. Then she sang.

"Delightful," he paused. "Any more?"

"You little devil!" he said.

She laughed lazily.

"It's just the song, Mr. Brett!"

"Won't you call me Alex?"

"Um-m-m," said Miss O'Day. "I must go back to the hotel. It's getting late—Alex!"

He followed her excitedly. Was this really Alexander Brett?

"Goodnight," she told him, firmly, putting a soft white hand into his. "Thank you for such a pleasant evening."

"Let's have more of them!" he begged her. "Could you dine with me tomorrow night?"

"Why—ye-e-es, I guess so. Goodnight!" She smiled as she ascended in the elevator. "Why, the poor old what-not!" she said to herself, and the dark eyes were shining more brightly than ever as she closed herself in her room.

Brett didn't feel a day over 21 the next night as he escorted Zelda O'Day into the dining room of a roadhouse—and what was better, Miss O'Day didn't seem to find him any older. She laughed and chattered and listened intently when he spoke. "How mar-r-velous!" her soft voice would say, and, "Really, Alex? Isn't that interesting?"

Five miles before they reached the hotel on the return trip, he stopped his car. Her eyes were questioning, challenging.

"You lovely thing!" he said, fervor doing duty for technique.

"Why, Alex!"

"Sing that song again—the one you sang last night!"

Miss O'Day drew her brows together. "What song was that?" she asked him.

Brett flushed. "Oh, I don't know what it was called. Something daring."

"Oh, that!" Her laughter rang out, clear. "Why, you naughty boy—you seem to like that song!"

Naughty boy! Brett's heart turned clear over.

She became contrary, delightfully feminine. "I don't feel like singing."

He was leaning close to her, breathing heavily. "Perhaps—perhaps you feel very gay?" he whispered.

"Why, Alexander!" But—

Her lips were soft to his kiss.

Old! Alexander Brett could have laughed in any young man's face. Old—when he held this lovely woman in his arms, this Follies girl, who knew a thing or two!

A young man, though, wise in these things, would have known better than to park his machine on the outside of curve. As Brett embraced Miss O'Day, an auto swept suddenly up and over the little rise behind their car and powerful headlights poured down upon them.

They sprang apart, Miss O'Day with the composure of one accustomed to bright lights. Brett cursing beneath his breath waiting for the intruders to pass.

But the car did not go on. It stopped, abruptly, just back of them, and the two turned to see what had happened.

"I should say," murmured Zelda O'Day, calmly, "that it was the whole damned family! Do they belong to you?"

Elinor Glyn Says:

By ELINOR GLYN

BEWARE OF SPRING!

SPRING will soon be here, girls, and the impulse to be especially kind to boy friends will surge up in female humanity.

So be particularly careful, Maud and Laura, that you keep your heads. Try to discover which one among your admirers you really want, and why you want him.

Is it just because of propinquity and the springtime? Or is it for his mind and companionship—or his soul and his ideals—or for no definite reason at all but just that you are "crazy" about him?

Whichever reason it is, it is wiser to be aware of it. Then you can act in the way which will be best—for your own aims.

For if the truth is that it is simply propinquity and the springtime, there is no use in talking highbrow mind and soul poetry—and vice versa. Unless your deliberate intention is to have an experience, never mind the cost, just for the sake of a new thrill, it is more prudent to consider a little what may be the eventuality!

Drifting aimlessly, even in love affairs, is not a successful method!

So this is a word of warning before the Spring flowers bloom, to review the possibilities of the coming Summer—to say nothing of the next long Winter—before you become engaged to Charlie or Bob, merely play about with George, the boy friend! Or above all, marry Fred!

Soyez perspicace! Which, translated, means, "be cute!"

GOOD LUCK DESSERTS

GOOD TO EAT—EASY TO MAKE

Look Younger Tonight

Bright, clear skin always looks young

Creamed magnesia beautifies the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach

Five Minutes Works Wonders!

Dull, lifeless, off-color skin becomes bright, healthy, true-color — radiantly clear — five years younger in five minutes! Enlarged pores are refined to the smoothest, finest texture; oily skin is corrected; blackheads are dissolved; persistent skin eruptions are banished and the tell-tale signs of age vanish as if by magic; poor skins become beautiful as if complexion faults were wiped away with a sponge. You will really marvel at the lovely face you see in your mirror tonight.

It's no fairy wand that gives a new skin so quickly. It's simply due to the amazing, rejuvenating properties of creamed milk of magnesia, which rehabilitates the skin in the same easy way that plain milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And, now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face!

Accidental Discovery

Until recently, creamed magnesia was the secret formula of a very successful New York skin specialist. He prescribed it as a sure, quick remedy to heal unsightly skin eruptions. But women soon discovered it also refines enlarged pores, changes sallow, off-color skin to true-color clearness and makes the face look years younger. They also found it cleanses perfectly. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than any soap or cleansing creams. Scientific tests proved these women had made a wonderful discovery. So, thanks to this accidental discovery, science now offers you a priceless skin beautifier, better for your complexion than anything ever before discovered. It takes the place of soap, cleansing cream, massage cream, astringent, skin tonic and face bleach. It gives the skin a radiant clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Yet, it is so mild that doctors tell mothers to use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing to fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair.

No More Ugly Nose Pores

Doctors Recommend It

Thousands of doctors now insist that their wives, patients and nurses use nothing but creamed magnesia on their faces. They say it keeps fine skin fine and makes poor skin lovely. And, it's pure enough to drink.

Don't Hesitate

Do not hesitate to use this marvelous skin treatment at once. Thousands of delighted women have written they could not at first believe anything so simple could be so wonderful. But, they were convinced when they saw so many friends suddenly get lovely complexions. Because it gives such amazing results so quickly, even the largest druggists everywhere are finding it hard to keep enough in stock to supply the tremendous demand.

To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try.

The Return of Old King Brady

The Adventures of Great Detective Recounted

CHAPTER 4

The Bradys meet George Woo and are conducted through the underground passage to the secret joss house. Here they are trapped. Woo escapes and brings the police. He than tells them Alice has been kidnaped by Ah Sam's agent.

OLD King Brady was greatly disturbed when Harry informed him next morning of Alice's disappearance.

The Bradys decided to get down to the Bowery and see what they could do to locate her. They went directly to the old building and inquired about the meeting rooms upstairs. The storekeeper allowed the Bradys to look into the yard, but as they started for the back hall door they noticed a young Chinaman, in American dress, watching them. As they stepped into the yard he advanced toward them and spoke in good English, "Excuse me, but aren't you Old King Brady?"

"That's right," said the old detective. "What about it?"

"I thought perhaps you were looking for a fellow I saw pulled in here last night," said the Chinaman, lowering his voice. "You see," he added, "I've done some detective work for Mr. Gallagher. It was he pointed you out to me." He displayed a special badge which some of the Chinese detectives were allowed to wear. He added that his name was George Woo.

"About 10:30 last night," he said "I was watching this place when two Chinamen came through this door dragging a third. They carried him down into the cellar and that's the last I saw of him. I thought you might be interested."

"You lead the way, Woo; let's have a look at the cellar," and Old King Brady got out his flashlight. They paused at the bottom of the steps. The place was littered with trash. Old King Brady poked around and found what he was looking for. "Here's a secret door. Look, Harry, these barrels are fastened together and fastened to the wall."

Harry took hold of the barrels and gave a pull. They yielded and as they swung them out into the cellar a low, narrow passage extending through the foundation wall was revealed

Old King Brady made a careful search for a spring or latch, but failed to find any. He pushed the barrels into place again, when he pulled them out again they came readily. "Very mysterious," he muttered. "They were firm enough when I first took hold of them."

"Let's push ahead," urged Harry. "We will be very careful"

They crawled through into the next cellar, where George Woo stood flashing his light about. The cellar was empty. In the center of the floor was a flagstone. Woo caught and pulled up on it. It yielded and disclosed another passage.

They descended into a sub-cellar, at one end of which was a wooden door about four feet high. They advanced towards it. Harry stooped suddenly and picked up a long slender stick of highly polished wood. "I wonder what this is?" he questioned. One end was shaped like a spear. Old King Brady caught hold of the door and it swung open, revealing a small room in which a light was burning. All hands peered through the door.

It was a wooden idol all right, but not the one that the Bradys were seeking. This was a half-length figure of the sitting Buddha that rested on a table in a niche in the wall. There was no window and no other door. Up near the ceiling was an iron pipe about four inches in diameter, which the Bradys took to be a ventilator. They went all over the room but were unable to discover anything of the least interest. At last they gave up and Old King Brady announced they would return.

"All right," said Woo, who was standing nearest the opening, and he nimbly sprang through before Old King Brady had time to order him to the rear as he had intended. The door slammed in his face. He seized it and pulled it on. The door was as firm as a rock.

"Trapped!" cried Harry.

"Serves us right," said Old King Brady, bitterly. "Well, we are in a fix, so we must make the best of it. I wonder what will happen next."

"We must get out of this at once," said the old detective. "I don't like the looks of that pipe up there. It may be intended for ventilation, but it is just as likely to be a pipe to carry water to drown the victims of the Highbinders.

Woman Sleuth Plays Big Part in the Story

They failed to find any means of exit. Fifteen minutes found them at the end of their rope. After what his chief had suggested, Harry kept an eye on the pipe. They were not kept in suspense very long.

Suddenly there was a rush of air and then the water descended in a stream the full size of the pipe

"There you are!" exclaimed Old King Brady. "Now you see I was right. They mean to drown us out."

"Yes, and I don't see how we are going to stop it," cried Harry in despair.

The water spread rapidly over the floor and then began to rise Once more they renewed their attack on the door. It resisted every effort. Every instant the peril was increasing. The water was now up to their knees. Suddenly the panel flew open and three Chinamen appeared armed with clubs. Old King Brady made a grab at one. Old King Brady got the club he grabbed for. Harry jabbed one of them with the spear end of this club and sent him reeling backward. Just then loud shouts were heard in the distance.

"Bad luck!" growled Harry. "If I had only thought to use my revolver instead of this ridiculous club, we could have got the best of them."

"Don't blame yourself," panted Old King Brady. I wonder what the racket was about? If I had only—Hark! They are coming again."

Somebody was fumbling with the fastenings of the panel. Harry whipped out his revolver and Old King Brady followed his example

They had no idea other than that the Chinamen had returned. But when the panel opened there were George Woo and Wardman Gallagher.

"Thank Heaven, we are in time!" the young Chinaman exclaimed.

"Did you have to fight your way in?" demanded Harry.

"We didn't see anyone but a couple of Chinks in the cellar above," replied the policeman. "They vanished into some rat hole You may thank Woo here for your rescue. He came after me hotfoot."

They now climbed out and left by the way they had come. As they passed out on to Pell st., they asked Gallagher if George Woo was working for the police.

"No, but for me privately," was the reply "Woo had all he could do to give those Chinks the slip. They locked the door and set upon him, but he got away."

They pushed on to Chatham sq., where they took a hack. As soon as they were alone Harry said: "What do you think of it, Governor? Woo claims he had nothing to do with our imprisonment."

"I don't know what to believe, Harry. I must confess that door shut a little too quick, but I think it was a bluff leading up to something else."

"Exactly what I think," agreed Harry.

The Bradys went home and changed into dry clothes. They returned to Chinatown and spent the remainder of the day in a vain search for Alice. Twice during the day they dropped into the postoffice hoping for an answer to Old King Brady's advertisement, but there was none.

"Oh, you did? Well, what's become of her?"

"She was turned over to Ah Sam, the man who has been helping old man Jenkins in his smuggling business. Wee Yup told me that she was taken aboard a tug where Ah Sam and his wife were—he's married Jenkins' daughter, Yup says."

"But where was she to be taken in the tug?" asked Old King Brady.

"That Yup didn't know. But I thought I'd come and tell you. I want you to believe in me. You may need a fellow to help you in your Chinese cases some time and I'd like the job—see?"

Old King Brady did not know what to make of Woo, but at all events his information regarding Alice was correct.

"Telephone for a cab, Harry, and we'll pay Mr. Jenkins a visit." So they started up to 66th st.

lars in the bank. He got $50 and then made his way to Shirley's gate.

The boy unlatched the gate and slung it open, and the girl went home to his bosom. "I'm so happy, dearest. How does it happen? You know, I was thinking about you and wanting you so—dear, it's like answer to prayer!"

How was he to tell her? But tell her he must. Haltingly he detailed the conversation with his father

"If I had any right to tell you everything, if I could possibly make you understand the wicked thing my father threatens—truly as you love me, and I know you do, you would be the first to say it's my duty to give you up, give back your heart, and go away and never let you hear of me again, so you may forget me."

When she saw that no protests could shake him a long shudder shook her. One hand tarried in his "Good-bye, Dal. God take care of you and—and send you back to me."

"Good-bye," Dal hoarsely uttered. "God bless you, dear, and—and send you another to love you as I do."

"He will never come. I wouldn't know him if he did. When you come back, you'll find me waiting."

"You mustn't wait. I'll never—"

"You will—some day, you will come back—and when you do, you'll find me waiting."

Those were the last words of hers Dal heard.

Dawn found Shirley still wakeful; she slipped on a rain coat and hurried to the parsonage, sought out Mrs. Streator and inquired of her where Dal was

A hasty investigation proved that his bed had not been slept in. Mary Streator took Shirley by a shoulder, eyes as pitying as piteous seeking those of the woman equally bereaved. "My dear, my poor, dear Shirley! you loved him, too . . ."

From such manifest strength and self-forgetfulness the girl drew new stores of strength for her own sustaining. "With all my heart," she replied with grave simplicity, "with all my heart."

"As he loved you—as he loved us both, I know." Mary Streator turned her face away; her gaze grew distant and questioning, her lips tremulous. "He loved us, and he left us—left me, his mother, without a word to say why he felt he had to break his promise to me."

Streator came in and the girl faced him with head high, eyes dangerous, color to spare in the cheeks lately so pallid. "I came to find out about Dal."

"I guessed as much." Streator's mouth tightened. "Dal has voluntarily ceased to be a member of my household, and there is reason to believe he has left Gosport for good."

"You drove him away," the girl hotly charged—"and you don't care what becomes of him!"

Streator kept himself in hand by a titanic effort and proceeded to relate that Cora and Dal had boarded the Boston express together.

He finished on a note of profound depression. He saw Shirley, convulsed with sobs, turn to his wife and cling to her, crying out again and again from a heart in agony.

"Shirley, my poor child," he said

"I am sorry" he said.

"I believe you are," she replied. "Almost," she deliberately amended, "I believe you are." Slowly her color deepened, her eyes took fire: "But does your remorse give Shirley back her lover? Does it give me back my boy? the boy whose love and trust I had to compensate me for the love you denied me? the boy who was all I had to live for when the loss of your love left me no life with you worth living!"

"Mary!" the minister remonstrated in all sincerity—"I have never ceased to love you—"

"Were you jealous of Dal, then?"—for once the woman's voice rode over his—"jealous of the mother love I gave him? Was that why you treated him with such harshness that he ran wild 'just to get even?' My love was all he ever had before he met Shirley—you never loved him, or, if you did, you took a strange way to show it.

"It was something serious drove him to leave Gosport—and Shirley—and me! What was it! You know. What was it you threatened him with if he went on with Shirley, planning to marry her as soon as he could make a fair living?

Streator made a pause and his gaze steadied. "The secret of a great wrong and a crime," he declared, "is locked in my breast—and, since last night, in Dal's. Only to prevent a greater wrong being done will I ever reveal it. And Dal will keep the secret even as I have kept it."

"Then," Mary sharply inferred—"if he can be found, Dal is free to marry Shirley as soon as he can give her a home?"

"That," he declared, "would be the greater wrong."

Abruptly his wife released him, moved away, halted. "I think," she informed him, with that fell look he had first witnessed on her face within the hour—"I think you must be out of your mind. I—I have just learned from your own lips that for more than twenty years I have been the wife of a madman . . . or a monster!"

In consideration he relented a little even to trying to find Dal but other news shook him to the soul He tried to read it casually to Mary—that war had blazed out in Europe—that the nations were marching on to Armageddon.

His wife was on her feet but clutching the back of the chair to keep from falling—the eyes of blue abnormally dilate in a face bleached by panic. "Why, Mary!" Streator expostulated—"what is the matter?"

"Don't you know?" she cried as if unable to credit such denseness—"don't you know it will take Dal?"

"Nonsense!" Streator went to her, captured her weaving hands, held them—seeing that she suffered his—in a grasp whose firmness was calculated to help her find self-control again. "Why should it? America isn't concerned, in no contingency imaginable can be drawn into this quarrel."

"Ah! but can't you understand Dal won't wait for that?—this war—it is the very chance he wants. Trust him to find his way to an honorable death since you have robbed his life of all its sweetness. For God's sake! don't stop here, thinking how to calm me. Go—go at once to Boston."

* * *

He was gone for three days, but sent back no word. Toward the close of the third day a taxi-automobile brought him to the gate. He got down worn and hollow-eyed.

"No news," he said gloomily.

It was late in January, 1915, when Dal first wrote his mother. The letter carried no address and was postmarked Montreal. He explained that he was being secretive lest efforts be made through the United States Government to secure his discharge from the Canadian Expeditionary Forces because he was under age and had enlisted without his parents' consent. His enlistment dated from the first weeks of the war. He was in good health, had "never felt better"; military service suited him "down to the ground."

Finally, on the evening of the last day of December, 1915, a telegram . . .

Shirley brought it to the parsonage, fighting her way up the hill in the teeth of a gale that followed a very heavy snowfall.

Both Streator and Mary had risen from their chairs by the fireplace, and one look into the mother's face was enough to tell the girl that already Mary knew . . . Streator took the envelope proffered by a shaking hand.

"'It is regretted to report,'" he read, "'that your son, Corporal Dalzell Streator has been killed in action.' Signed: 'Military Secretary'."

The mother gave a moaning cry. Shirley stilled hers with painful knuckles pressed against her lips. The yellow paper fluttered from Streator's fingers. He raised both arms in imploration.

"God, forgive me!" he cried—"I have killed him.

MARGURETTE CAMERON

Mass. Girl is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give her a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs James Cameron, 4 Vernon Place, Boston, says: "My daughter, Margurette, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with her before we found her trouble was constipation and began giving her California Fig Syrup. It fixed her up quick, gave her a good appetite, made her sleep fine and she's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days taking it."

Fads and Fashions

A powerful alliance is that of chiffon and taffeta in the evening mode. A frock of green and yellow figured chiffon is worn over a bouffant black taffeta slip, the taffeta showing at the uneven hemline, and at the shoulders. A huge bow of taffeta placed at the knees, and a little short coat of taffeta are the finishing touches.

A basketful of jeweled flowers is a chic as well as an exquisite ornament for the cloche. The baskets themselves are of gold, either plain or encrusted with diamonds. The flowers that fill it may be of almost any kind of semi-precious stones, such as coral, moonstone or turquoise.

Every why has a wherefore, but we're not asking any questions about the rage for black ninon underwear. Embellished with deep ecru lace black ninon is converted into enticing nightgowns, pajamas, bandeau sets and slips. The shoulder straps are of tan moire ribbon which matches the lace and the ribbon around the waistline.

Middle Age Can Be Happy

NO woman need fear middle age if her health is good. Hundreds of active, contented middle-aged women tell their friends that they owe their health and vigor to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a wonderful medicine at the Change of Life. I would get blue spells and just walk the floor. I was nervous and did not care for anything, could not sleep at night and was not able to do my work. I know if it had not been for your medicine I would have been in bed most of this time and had a big doctor's bill. If women would only take your medicine they would be better. I eat and sleep as I should and can do lots of work now."—Mrs. Anna Weaver.

"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at this time (Change of Life), also Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash, which I think is wonderful, and the Pills for Constipation. I recommend this full treatment whenever I can and I am perfectly willing to tell anyone what I know about it. I am in better health than I ever was and I am often told that I look more like a sister to my daughter than her mother. I am a hotel cook and have been at one place for six years."—Mrs. Minnie Sheridan.

"I am taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the Change of Life and it certainly has done wonders for me. I highly recommend it to all women who are having troubles like mine. It has helped my nerves and my appetite and I sleep well. I feel much better and am gaining in flesh. I am able to do my housework for my husband and little boy and am always busy sewing or crocheting. I am willing to tell other women what the medicine has done for me if they care to write to me."—Mrs. Merton Secor.

Climbing

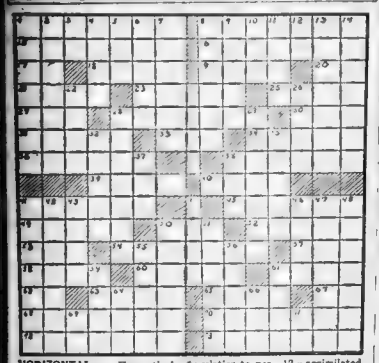

First, Ziegfeld picked her for his "Follies." Next, she was chosen for "Rio Rita" and now Warner Brothers will present her in the movies. Dainty Agnes Franey is climbing; helped by clever dancing and seldom equalled beauty.

Miss Franey says: "I don't believe in overlooking anything which helps add to your attractiveness. I am most particular about my hair and so many friends compliment me on its softness and lustre that I am sure my method of caring for it is right. Nearly all the girls I know here in New York are using it, now. It is so easy. All we do is put a little Danderine on our brushes each time we dress our hair. It makes my hair easy to dress and holds it in place wonderfully. It has gotten rid of my dandruff. It keeps my hair and scalp so comfortable, that I don't shampoo half as often as I did before. And best of all, it gives my hair a softer, more silky and lustrous appearance than anything I've ever found."

Danderine quickly removes that oily film from your hair; brings out its natural color, makes it fairly sparkle! Dandruff usually disappears when you use Danderine. Waves, "set" with it, stay in longer. It's delicately fragranced; isn't oily; doesn't show. It's economical. The 35c bottles will last several weeks. All drug stores recommend and guarantee it.

NO TRUMP AT CONTRACT; HEARTS AT AUCTION

AUCTION BIDDING

CONTRACT BIDDING

South opens the bidding by the forcing bid of two Diamonds, thus showing at least seven probable tricks either at his own bid or in support of partner's bid; and, in addition, showing distributed high-card values in three or four suits amounting at least to 2½ to 6 quick tricks.

This bid is an imperative demand for an assist or take-out by partner, unless holding a worthless hand.

West passing, North responds with two Hearts, holding in reserve his possible Diamond assist, since an original two-bid of a Minor suit requests a betterment bid if possible rather than an assist.

East passing, South, holding eight probable tricks in support of Hearts, and figuring North's forced bid of Hearts to show the minimum of but two tricks, bids four Hearts and secures the contract.

Tomorrow's article will describe the play of the hand at the Auction bid of one No Trump and at the Contract bid of four Hearts. Three-odd was made at No Trump, five-odd at Hearts.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your bridge problems. Write on one side of the paper enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

URGES WIFE LET HUBBY PAY

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

I AM a young married woman with a very young baby. My husband has a very hot temper and goes into a tantrum every time I pay a bill. What can I do? I am at my wits end with it. What is wrong?

LENORE, Dorchester.

I am a young married woman with a very young baby. My husband has a very hot temper and goes into a tantrum every time I pay a bill.

One thing is very wrong, my dear little young mother, and that is the man. I do not know the circumstances of your life, but going into a tantrum with a young girl whose first child is still a baby is something that any distinguished nurse would see was stopped if she happened to have your household on her list.

I am not declaring you entirely in the right, dear girl, for your handwriting shows that you are a person who has not a very good sense of values and I do not believe that you have ever been trained to handle money well.

You cannot be quite twenty and that is pretty young for you to have the care of a child and a household.

The thing to do is to have a straight talk with your husband about this. Tell him that for the time being he had better pay the bills himself and that you positively cannot afford to have your mind disturbed as it is now, with a little child to look after and with the fact—well known to everyone of sense—that little children very quickly take on the emotional disturbances of their mothers, especially when they are still being nursed.

I am sure that if you put it to him in that way you will have peace for a time, anyway.

When the child is older, either you ought to be able to handle the situation so that your husband will not quarrel, or you had better make up your mind to go to work and contribute toward the work of the house, which you would otherwise do, and allow him to see what he can do with it!

NOTE: Send sample of your handwriting to Miss Louise Rice for analysis. To cover clerical costs enclose 10 cents in silver or stamps. Also enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The individual analysis will be returned to you within a period of one or two weeks. Letters will not be published if sender so requests.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The historic clock made by Thomas Tompion, the father of English watchmaking, acquired by the British Museum, was made to the order of Sir Jonas Moore for John Flamsteed, the first English Astronomer Royal, and a close friend of Sir Isaac Newton, whom he aided in many of his experiments. The clock is so divided that the twelve hours marked on the dial actually represent twenty-four.

Several of the masterpieces in the world-famous Wetherfield collection of clocks, recently sold in London for $150,000, were made by Tompion.

The chief trophy in the Wetherfield collection was a grandfather clock made by Tompion for William III. in 1695. It goes for three months without re-winding, and has a perpetual calendar on its face, having an allowance for leap years.

13—Feels lonely. Remembers that there is an old Colonial building in town whose corner-stone has never been dedicated.

14—Suddenly laughs when he remembers that he doesn't have to smile any more for the weekly news-reel.

How to Entertain Parlor Guests

Today we print the first installment of "True Courage," a dramatic dialogue from "The Home Speaker and Elocutionist," by Lemma Griffith Lurran.

This vehicle, it seems to us, is just the thing for parlor, or intimate, drama—blending, as it does, clean fun and a vital moral message.

TRUE COURAGE
Act 1

RALPH—Cousin Laura! I have a word to say to you.

LAURA—Only a word?

R.—I saw you yesterday speaking to that fellow Sterling—Frank Sterling.

L.—Indeed! On what compulsion must I?

R.—If you do not wish to be cut by all the boys of the academy, you must cut Frank Sterling.

L. (Tartly)—So I must either give up the acquaintance of my friend Frank, or submit to the terrible mortification of being cut by Mr. Ralph Burton and his companions?

EXCLUSIVE!

Herewith is presented the first comprehensive, detailed announcement by Capt. Sir Hubert Wilkins of his plans for continuing the conquest of the Antarctic regions this year. In the second instalment of the now historic adventures of Capt. Wilkins and his valiant companions, the expedition returned to Deception Island and the explorers came back to civilization. Stimulated and encouraged by the success of the venture, Capt. Wilkins looks forward to the future confident that discoveries of even greater importance await him in the ice-bound Antarctic and is eager to encounter the higher hazards which will confront him.

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Commander of the Hearst-Wilkins Antarctic Expedition

Copyright, 1929, by Boston Evening American, and Universal Service, Inc. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.

New York, March 14—Here among the comforts and conveniences of civilization, as we find them in New York city, one may experience difficulty in imagining why we should want to return to the frozen wastes of the Antarctic. But it is only from civilization that those of us who have been privileged to gain a scientific meteorological education and polar experience realize to the fullest extent the advantage of the work to be done in the polar regions.

This work really concerns conditions in civilization. The ultimate value of our work will be found in the influence it will have on the prices of all civilized necessities, particularly food and clothing. It is from the polar regions that we must collect information that will enable us to forecast seasonal conditions and to provide the farmer with facts enabling him to plant the proper sorts of crops at the right time of year.

This is work that cannot be done by an expedition covering only a few months. It will mean years of study at stations actually in the Arctic and Antarctic regions and the results of these studies will have to be correlated with observations taken in the temperate latitudes. It is expected that the establishment of stations in the Arctic will be undertaken by the Aero-Arctic Society with headquarters in Berlin.

Six Observation Stations Are Soon to Be Set Up

The Aero Arctic Society expects to establish six stations with the aid of giant Zeppelins. But when the time comes to establish points of observation in the Antarctic, it will be the airplane and not the airship that we will have to depend on for means of communication.

The flights carried out by our expedition and by Comdr. Byrd in the Antarctic this year proved beyond doubt the feasibility of using airplanes in the Great White South. With airplanes, this year, we established one point from which observations may be taken with advantage. But there is still more than 2000 miles of coast line between Hearst Land and the Ross Sea to be discovered, and it is somewhere in this area that a station of the utmost importance to Australia and South America must be placed.

For 14 years, the whalers have maintained on the shores of Deception Island a factory for the treatment of whales and they know by experience that their engines and machinery do not rust nor become affected in any way by the extreme temperatures of the winter season. The wings and fuselage of our machines are well covered with waterproof canvas, the engines are well greased and oiled and three days after we return to Deception Island we expect to have everything in readiness to continue our geographical work in the south.

We will take our two machines and start early to avoid the difficulties we encountered this year through the melting of the ice. We will fly south from the most westerly point of Hearst Land.

Flight Most Hazardous But of Prime Necessity

This flight will take us over the western side of Graham Land Islands, instead of the east side along which we flew this year. It will be a hazardous flight because our machines will be heavily loaded.

The first 200 miles will be made over ice-strewn water and for 500 miles between high, rugged mountain peaks affording no possible place to land in safety.

But our planes will be equipped with skis and I am looking forward to locating forced landing grounds on the huge tubular ice bergs which may be found in the Degerlache Straits.

The fact that the Antarctic continent in the American sector is low near the coast presents an additional flying hazard in case of trouble with our engine, although it may afford us better weather. I believed, before our flight this year, that it would be possible for a party to continue on foot along the Antarctic coast line but our observations showed that this would be a very difficult undertaking.

DEEP CREVASSES

The ice near the edge of the low land is so terribly crevassed that it would be impossible to follow close to the line of the coast and it would be necessary to travel some distance inland or on the floating sea ice.

If we traveled on land, it would be impossible to replenish our food supply. Traveling on the sea ice, where it might be possible to obtain seals and penguins, would be extremely hazardous because, from time to time throughout the year, the sea ice breaks free from the land-fast ice and drifts away, continuing possibly into the open ocean and disappearing.

Our next expedition will certainly be accompanied by more risk than we expected in the beginning of our plans, but the information that we have gained convinces us that the risk is well worth while.

SEES SUCCESS

With the assistance of competent men who have been with me this year, and who have proved their mettle so often, I am looking forward eagerly to the time when we can again operate in the Antarctic regions.

When we reach the Ross Sea, which should be in December next, we expect to communicate immediately with the whalers so that they may come to us. We will return with them to Tasmania where we should arrive in March or April of next year.

Our long flight should complete the geographical work which we have planned. With that accomplished, we will have to face the greater task of organizing an international bureau to control the prolonged investigation of the areas discovered. This is a question which will have to be considered by the scientific societies of various nations and by the international scientific and exploration organizations.

But we are going back enthusiastically to open the way farther to the south!

Martin to Coach

Middletown, Ct., March 14—Fritz Martin, an old Oberlin College track star, will coach this year the Wesleyan track team which last season won the "little three" championship. In his day, Martin was considered the fastest college short-distance runner in Ohio.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and sourness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude methods, never continue to suffer, when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this premier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Now that the Bruins have clinched first place in the American division, the regulars will be given a much needed rest.

The subs will be given a chance to display their wares against the Cougars tonight in Detroit.

They will see far more than their usual amount of service against the Pirates at the Garden on Saturday night.

The Chicago Blackhawks got a great laugh out of the fact that the Bruins run in a total of 11 goals on them. They have been through a tough and most discouraging season and they could see no reason for taking such a defeat to heart.

If the Bruins can produce the calibre of hockey against Les Canadiens they played against Chicago, and the New York Rangers, there is good cause for the prediction that the Stanley Cup is on its way to the Hub of the Universe.

The Rhode Island sports fans are going to pay homage to Judge John S. Dooley in Providence next week. Judge Dooley is largely responsible for the success of sports in Little Rhody, so the fans have set aside next Thursday night as "Judge Dooley Night." And a good time will be had by all.

Norman Shay, who was let out by the Philadelphia Arrows, must be getting quite a kick out of watching the Quaker City team skid to the bottom rung of the Can.-Am. ladder.

Shay kept the Arrows up in the race, but a clique was gunning for him and as soon as he dropped a couple of games the needle went in and he went out. And so did the Arrows.

Manager Eddie Powers has been under the weather for the past week or ten days, but he pulls himself together long enough each day to send his Tigers through practice sessions. Eddie has been in the game too long not to realize that the hardest fight the Tigers ever engaged in will be staged from now until the season ends a week from Saturday.

If the New Haven Eagles make the Can.-Am. playoffs, and there is every reason for believing they will accomplish this feat, they are going to be a tough team for either the Tigers or Providence to beat. Since Ken Randall was relieved of the managerial duties of the New Haven club the team has taken on a new lease of life.

Bill Stewart will officiate his first National Hockey League game in Boston next Saturday night. Bill has been working off and on for the N. H. L. in New York, and he has given complete satisfaction. Stewart is one of the best referees ever developed in the States, and he is deserving of a regular N. H. L. berth.

Now that Bill Stewart has had the stamp of approval put on his refereeing, it would be to the advantage of the N. H. L. to give Bill Shaver a chance. Like Stewart, Shaver calls them without fear or favor, and never allows a game to get away from him. Both Stewart and Shaver are far superior to some of the N. H. L. officials seen here this season.

It would not be surprising if Bobby Giddens of Harvard took a fling at professional hockey, now that George Owen has blazed the trail. Giddens played on the wings with Hec Kilrea in the Ottawa City League before he went to Harvard, and at that time he had the call over the Ottawa winger.

Dr. Charles Whelan, the former Tufts and Boston University football coach, and an ardent all around sport fan, is of the opinion that a three-game Bruin-Tiger series would pack the Garden.

Sid Silberberg will receive a tryout by the Tigers when he has finished at Boston University. Silberberg is a smart goalie, and there is no reason why he could not be developed into a star.

JUMBO INFIELD IMPROVING

Tufts baseball team candidates took advantage of the warm weather to get an outdoor workout. About 20 men tossed the ball around on the old campus for an hour.

Coach Nash apparently has little to worry about in regard to the fielding positions. The infield is improving, and is well taken care of except first base, which will be fought for by Nick Fitzgerald, Appianni and Pederson. The latter, an old Dean star, looked well in the outdoor session.

Phillips on second, Capt. Leonardi on third and Norm Ingalls at shortstop make up an infield that appears to be both capable and experienced. If Ingalls does not perform in the expected manner at short, Fred Ellis may be moved in from the outfield.

There are any number of experienced and capable outer gardeners available. Fitzgerald, Ellis, Bev Ingalls, Tobey and Herrmen have had previous experience, while Ockert, captain of the frosh team last year, is probably as good as any in the lot.

Godfrey, another sophomore, has demonstrated that he possesses more than ordinary talent.

Sherry Magee Dead; Was Baseball Star

Philadelphia, march 14—Sherwood Magee, one of the most colorful major league baseball players the game has ever known, died at his home, 1152 North Sixty-fifth st. a victim of pneumonia, contracted a week ago.

He is survived by his widow, Eda; his daughter, Charlotte; and two sons, Irwin and Robert. Magee umpired in the National League last year and had been reappointed for this season.

The physician who was called at once, pronounced the former baseball star a victim of pneumonia. He played ball for the Cincinnati Reds, Boston Braves and Phillies.

Worcester on Top

Four Relay Marks Go in "Regi" Finale

Four records were broken in the finals of the Regimental games held in the East Armory, two being Regimental game figures and the other pair district school marks.

English high defeated Latin in 1 minute 48 4-5 seconds, setting a new Regimental mark. Commerce took second, in 1 minute 50 2-5 seconds. The Commerce juniors broke the other Regimental mark. Two Jamaica Plain fours made the other records.

GERMAN LLOYD LINE LEADS

That the New England traveling public appreciates the facilities offered to them by the North German Lloyd is plainly indicated by the fact that during 1928 the New England territory showed a larger increase in bookings than any other in the entire United States and Canada.

This is especially gratifying inasmuch as the official statistics of the Transatlantic Conference for the year 1928 show that, compared with the previous year, the North German Lloyd has a larger increase in the number of passengers booked than any other line. The fleet of the North German Lloyd was able to carry 1719 persons more to Europe and 6512 persons more from Europe.

In view of the fact that the best advertisement is a satisfied customer, the officials of the North German Lloyd feel that this very large increase is the most eloquent compliment which the traveling public of the United States and of Europe could pay to its ships and service. The coming completion of the giant twin fliers Bremen and Europa will enable the North German Lloyd to show a very much larger increase during the present year.

Bobby Jones Asked to Play at Pinehurst

Pinehurst, N. C., March 14—An invitation has been extended to Bobby Jones, national amateur champion, to play golf with the American Ryder Cup team here on March 25, the day before the North and South open.

If Jones consents to play, he will round out a complete list of national champions.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

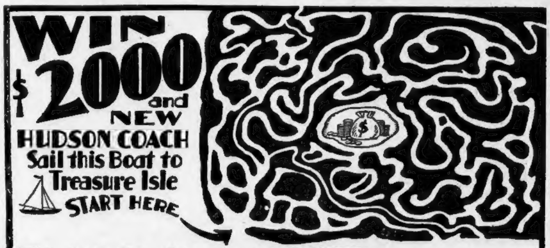

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

PLANS FASTER TRAINS TO FAR NORTHWEST

A fast through train between Chicago, Seattle and Portland, which will make the most drastic reduction in passenger time ever made in the northwest, a cut of approximately five hours, will be inaugurated by the Great Northern Railway this summer. W. P. Kenney, vice-president, announces in a telegram to John H. Kenney, New England passenger agent Boston.

The fast schedule removes the disparity between the running time of the extra fare trains to California and the passenger service to the northwest, Kenney said.

The Great Northern fast train will not be an extra fare train and will make the 2200-mile run to Seattle and Portland in about 63 hours. The present time of the fastest passenger train is 68 hours.

The new through service will save a business day to passengers both westbound and eastbound.

The fast train will leave Chicago in the evening and reach Seattle and Portland the third morning instead of third evening as now.

Eastbound the new schedule provides for departure from the coast cities in the afternoon instead of evening, reaching Chicago the third morning instead of third evening as at present. The morning arrival will afford ample time to make all important eastern connections or to spend a full day in Chicago.

From a scenic standpoint Kenney pointed out that the new schedule will be a decided improvement over the present as it will afford daylight trips in both directions through the Minnesota lake region, Marias Pass on the Continental Divide, Glacier National Park, which the Great Northern skirts for nearly 60 miles, the scenic mountainous regions along the Pend d'Oreille and Kootenai rivers, and the Cascade Mountains through which the Great Northern is electrified, the new eight-mile tunnel, which is the longest on the American continent and the Columbia river gorge.

The Great Northern for more than 20 years has handled the government's fast mail train between St. Paul and Seattle which is said to run on the fastest schedule of any long distance train in the world.

LACK OF UNITY MARS RADIO FEATURES

By FRED TOYE
Radio Editor

ONE OF THE pressing needs of radio is the standardization of its entertainment forms. In public entertainment we have definite and easily identified types of presentation, such as drama, farce, burlesque, concert, lecture, recital, vaudeville, circus, athletic meet, opera, musical comedy, review, operetta, movies, talkies, ballet, and even, and by no means least, the steam shovel digging a downtown cellar. In radio there is almost no attempt to standardise. Half of the time the listener doesn't know whether he's going to listen to a kammerkonzert of Mozart works or the katzenjammer katerwauling of Tin Pan Alley. Night after night, important broadcasters, serve up a goulache of almost everything to be found in the musical library from the First Movement of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony up to the dizzy heights of "Turkey in the Straw."

ALL THINGS TO ALL MEN

YOU MAY SAY what you please about the charm of the unexpected, but the good old public still enjoys best the placid routine of the conventional. When we want jazz, we want jazz, without apologies in the way of interpolated classics. When the listener yearns for just a little love, a little Liszt, he doesn't want the spell of the "Love Dream" shattered by a tenor rendition of "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls," however fine it may be. It would appear that someone in the ranks is trying to make radio, "all things to all men," and it can't be done.

CONFIDENTIAL GUIDE

7:30—WEEI — Coward Comfort Hour. Sanders' "Tumble Down Shack in Athlone" in honor of St. Patrick.

8:00—WNAC—Sweethearts. Love songs and serenades.

8:30—WBZ—Champion Sparkers. Dance tunes and the usual vocal solos.

8:30—WNAC—Then and Now. Songs of yesteryear and yesterweek.

9:00—WNAC — Aunt Jemima. Southern melodies and negro plantation atmosphere.

9:00—WEEI—Seiberling Singers. Ernest Ball's "Just a Little Bit of Heaven" in honor of St. Patrick.

9:30—WNAC—Sonora Hour. Musical program of good quality featuring Helen Oelheim, contralto, and the Picadors Orchestra in a popular program.

9:30—WBZ—Maxwell House Coffee Concert. Always an ambitious program well performed.

10:00—WNAC—The Columbians. Orchestra and quartet and dance rhythms.

10:00—WEEI—Halsey Stuart program. Financial advice entirely surrounded by music.

10:00 — WBZ—Mallory Hatters. Popular tunes.

10:30—WNAC—Musical Episode. All about the late Jules Massenet. The composer of "Manon" was a famous American soprano's big moment, but that isn't the episode which will have an airing tonight.

10:30—WBZA—Farm Bureau program. Hon. Arthur Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture, makes his bow to the farmers of the land. The N. B. C. announces somewhat hysterically that the new cabinet member will thus make direct contact with more than a million and a quarter of his future clients.

VIRGINIA VALLI TO BE STARRED IN FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

CHICAGO, March 14—Like the inevitable taxes—or even death—rumors of amalgamations pursue one. Here in Chicago, where stockyards are more important than movies, one hears the gentle rumor that sooner or later Tiffany-Stahl will combine forces with a well-known company and pool resources, financial and otherwise.

Nothing definite to base my conclusion on—just a whisper here and there. What is definite news concerning this company is the tale that comes to me of a new picture called, "The Rise and Fall of a Woman," with Virginia Valli as that woman.

The story, by Frances Hyland, is that of a bank president who falls in love with a street walker. Tiffany-Stahl were so earnest in their desire to get Miss Valli for the woman's role that she was signed as a star. "The First Zeppelin" will be put aside in favor of "The Rise and Fall of a Woman."

• • •

ONE of the best pieces of news that has come to my listening ears since I left sunny California is that Dorothy Sebastian is at last being given a chance. I may be prejudiced, but I think Dorothy Sebastian in the right role would bring glory to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as well as to herself. She is to play the part of a woman-hypnotist in "The Green Ghost" and my boy friends in California tell me it's Dorothy's first talkie and the first big part she has had since "Dancing Daughters" and "A Woman of Affairs." By my boy friends I mean Howard Strickling, John Sherman and Pete Smith, the three musketeers who send out publicity concerning Metro and his activities.

• • •

I HAVE always said and I still say it right out in print—that one of the finest photographers I know is a woman. I speak of Ruth Harriet Louise, who has made Marion Davies, Norma Shearer and other M. G. M. beauties even more beautiful, and who brings out all the most interesting characteristics of the John Gilberts, the Ramon Novarros and the other M. G. M. favorites.

Ruth Harriet, it seems, has a brother by the name of Mark Sandrich. He, too, has talent, and is using it by making features—film, I mean, for Sam Zierler of New York. Nat Carr is being starred in these Sandrich operas and those who have had a look at them say that the boy shows promise.

• • •

SOMEWHERE back in my untrammeled youth I seem to recall a musical comedy called the "Girl From Havana." I may be wrong. In any event the Fox company have assigned Edward Burke and John Stone to write a story with the tentative title of "The Girl From Havana." The two writers are being sent to Cuba to get first hand material and correct atmosphere. I suppose if there is, was, or will be a musical comedy by the name of "The Girl From Havana" the Fox company either own the film rights to it or they will change the name of their movietone. Film companies are usually metriculous about such things.

Changes from Nolo Plea to Not Guilty

New Bedford, March 14—The first striker to refuse to plead nolo in the wholesale disposition of cases growing out of the New Bedford strike by this procedure appeared before Judge Dillon in superior court here.

She was Miss Amy Shrehter who was a publicity representative of the National Textile Workers' Union here during the strike. She was called to the bench and after a conference with the judge, permitted to plead not guilty. She furnished $200 bail and the case was continued to June.

Lexington Woman Enters Divorce Plea

Mrs. Christine LaMonica of Lexington went through two marriage ceremonies with her husband, but even that wasn't enough to make the marital voyage smooth, it was revealed when she filed suit for divorce against him.

The suit, filed in Middlesex probate court, charges the husband, Joseph LaMonica, now of New York, with cruelty and with neglect to support her.

Steal Silk Stockings

Thieves stole six pair of silk stockings valued at $12 from a backyard clothesline of Mrs. Francis Martin of 127 Columbia st., Malden, it was reported to police of that city.

Seek Relatives of Poisoning Victim

Hingham police were trying to locate relatives of John Twoomey, a middle-aged man, who died at the home of Samuel Killup, Beal st., Hingham, from poisoning caused by a tooth. He had been living temporarily at Killup's home, and working as a farmer. It was believed he had a sister living in Dorchester, near Fields Corner.

A Gilt-Edged Security

Congress Has Bought One in Nicaragua at Bargain Rates

By spending $150,000 to resurvey the Nicaragua Canal route, Congress has bought a gilt-edged security at bargain prices. Notwithstanding the qualms of Senator Dill, its lone opponent, the investment should yield big returns in cash and bigger returns in goodwill.

This is why:

Nicaragua, backward and bandit-ridden, is the SORE SPOT in our relations with the rest of Latin-America. Whenever we send Marines to keep the peace in that republic we hear a hymn of hate from the Caribbean to Cape Horn. Our southern neighbors arise as one man to denounce "the Colossus of the North." They think we want to gobble up not only Nicaragua, but all the territory in sight.

Of course, as President Roosevelt said:

"We have about as much desire to gobble it up as we have to swallow a porcupine wrong end to."

We play policeman there to PROTECT American and foreign lives and property. If we don't, European nations WILL.

To us that seems a VALID reason for intervening now and then in this troubled area. To Latin-Americans, unfortunately, it does not, and all the goodwill trips of all our Presidents-elect for the next fifty years will not convince them that it is valid.

The only way to be friends with Latin-America is to stop intervening in Central America, and the only way to stop intervening in Central America is to REMOVE the need for interventions.

This sounds difficult, but it is EASY.

It can be done by BUILDING the NICARAGUA CANAL. As shown in Panama, the prosperity a canal assures this region will do MORE to stabilize it than half a dozen marine corps. The minute Nicaragua settles down to order and industry interventions will cease and so will Latin-American suspicions.

Goodwill results from BIGGER and BETTER BUSINESS, not from bigger and better bandits. Even a Railroad Senator should see that.

Age and Youth

The Latter Cannot Compete Fairly With Experienced Man Over 40

Large employers of labor were recently quoted as saying they had practically no prejudice against employment of men over forty years of age.

What is the attitude of the small employer of labor? Since the use of automobiles has reached a point where there is a motor car for every family, it may be said, in a general way, that almost every citizen has become an employer of automobile mechanics.

Here, with the exceptions which accompany all rules, is an excellent illustration of the comparative values of age and youth.

The boy comes forward when you stop in the garage for emergency repairs. He is strong, active, alert and equipped with the necessary tools. He wants to know what is wrong with your car. That is exactly what you want to know. He looks at the carburetor, tests the spark plugs and makes a few other preliminary observations.

If the motor is obstinate he summons another employe. The next man is stoop-shouldered, anaemic, wears glasses, looks as if it would be a great effort to loosen a nut with a monkey-wrench and appears altogether inefficient to wrestle with heavy machinery.

The old man listens to the motor, peers about among the wires, gasoline pipes and other mysteries and, after a few minutes, sets to work. He asks the boy to get the crank-handle and turn over the motor with his strong right arm so that he can follow the timing.

That is all he wants of the boy—a right arm. He has been around garages so long that he has often worked on your make of car, has frequently encountered exactly the type of difficulty you are in and has learned the shortest cut to a remedy.

The physical strength of youth has a long road to travel before it can outstrip the knowledge acquired by years of experience. The garage mechanic of forty is just graduating from his training school. Similar conditions will be found in many trades and vocations.

Happy and Wed

Reporters Should Have Questioned the Wives; Perhaps They Cannot Keep a Secret

In one sense, the wholesale marriage anniversary celebrated under the direction of the Rev. Alexander Alison in Bridgeport was unsuccessful. He assembled scores of men and women whom he had married. They danced and dined and a good time was had by all.

But when reporters sought to learn the secret of happiness in marriage, the happily married couples could not tell it. One banker said it was a matter of building on a firm financial basis, but he was talking shop.

The pastor's son said that lasting love was the answer, but it did not answer anything. Another benedict said that after ten years of marriage he found that happiness was to be obtained by playing simple home games. Like solitaire?

Still another believed that connubial bliss might be assured by keeping up one's interest in church and community, but it would have been more gallant if he had added his wife to the church and community.

So, little or nothing was learned about the eternal secret from the marriage convention. Yet the fault may rest with the reporters. They should have asked the wives instead of the husbands, for women cannot keep a secret—or so 'tis said!

Artificial Sunlight

Use It Cautiously

Congress orders three "sun lamps" that extract actinic rays from electric light and are almost as good as the sun's own rays.

This "indoor sun tan" will cause the mockers to mock.

But water itself is no more important to health than the sun's rays, and nobody objects to having running water in the Congressional Building. The important thing is to use artificial "sun rays" with caution. Unwisely used, they can be dangerous, especially to children.

Spring

By FRANKLIN COLLIER

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHY is it that a man is never quite sure of his love for a woman, until he ceases to be sure of the woman?

To lose a true friend is a greater tragedy than to lose a front tooth. Neither can ever be replaced by anything half so substantial and dependable.

Half the world is struggling to find work, these days—and the other half is struggling to dodge it.

Small people are governed by their prejudices. Great people are led by their enthusiasms. Small people are eternally defending their "dignity." Great people wear their dignity as unconsciously as they wear their hats and their shoes.

One of the things that no man will ever understand this side of Paradise is the way in which a woman's mind works. Because a man's thoughts flow according to a chart, but a woman's imagination works on a hair-trigger and responds to the touch like a polo pony.

Marriage will always be a matter of sheer luck, as long as one girl has the good fortune to meet all the clean, solid, eligible men—the kind you can safely take home and introduce to your mother—and another girl meets only the kind of gentlemen who prefer blondes.

Falling in love is the Great Intelligence Test—in which most of us register about one-half-of-one-per-cent mental efficiency.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

SO many plans we make each day; a bit of work, a bit of play, a task we have delayed, too long, a pause to listen to a song, a visit to a well-loved friend, an hour for dreams at long day's end. So many plans we make, but few of all our careful schemes come true; another takes the work we chose, we miss the dream-filled hour's repose; the toil and play that life assigns are far from those of our designs. So many plans, yet wise are they who put each cherished dream away with but a fleet-comes to hand, and find in any role the day may bring some joyous promise blossoming.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT'S the old story. He has seen someone else he likes better and he wants to be on his way.

"But I'll never give him a divorce," writes an indignant wife. "We have been married eight years and no other woman is going to take him from me. I'll fight for him if it takes all my life. Don't you think I am right, Miss Robinson?"

How long would I fight to keep a husband?

NOT ONE SECOND, LADY.

The minute he wished to leave me he could be on his way, with my blessing.

I would try for years to serve the man I loved.

I would try for years to understand him and play the game with him and make it fine adventure out of our partnership.

I would strive unceasingly to win his respect, love and trust.

But I wouldn't try to hold him for an instant if he really wanted to be free.

THE MAN OR WOMAN WHO WANTS TO BE FREE HAS A RIGHT TO BE FREE.

We do not own our husbands or wives.

No vows, however sanctified, can make them our property.

No laws should give us power to bind them to us.

"But the courts often refuse to grant divorces," you aptly retort. They do, indeed. But what of it? That may make such refusal legal, but it does not make it right.

There are still laws on some of out statute books which permit a husband to beat his wife, provided the stick be used "be no larger around than his thumb." That make such a beating legal. Does it make it right?

Our courts are only as wise and ethical as we who make them. The decisions of our judges can only be as progressive as we permit them to be. And the average voter is still far from being civilized in spots. Our laws and institutions are filled with evidence of our ignorance, superstition, greediness and spite. Our refusal to grant divorces is one of these evidences.

No law should tie an unwilling woman to a man or an unwilling man to a woman.

No power on earth can make such a union happy or even decent.

People should, it is true, be held responsible for the children they bring into the world. The government itself should see that a man is "held" to that responsibility. It should be impossible for a father to avoid supporting his children by stepping into another state, as he now can do.

In this department of marriage we need much wider and more stringent laws. But divorce should be freely granted to those who ask it. And the men with for divorce should suffice, without the introduction of evidence which, in nine times out of 10, is false and trumped up.

After all, what pleasure or profit is there in holding a husband or wife who doesn't want to be held?

Drag that around? NOT I.

And I hereby announce to any husbands I may have at present or accumulate in the future—if you want to go, boys, the air is yours. ON YOUR WAY!

New York Day by Day

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, March 14—Manhattan is rivaling Paris as a perfume center these days. The new shops opened recently are as flamboyantly fancy as those gorgeous mirrored hutches on the rue de la Paix. Dozens of cooing French saleswomen have been imported to add "atmosphere."

While most shops bear French names, it is said a large number are financed by American capital. The perfumer has found America one of the most profitable of all countries for sale of his wares. Perfumes are not only designed for men and women, but children and babies as well.

All the French sale subtleties are in evidence in the amazing number of shops along Madison, Park and Fifth aves.—the atomizers filled with free scents, the enticing and magnificent bottles and the marvelous window displays. The profits are said to be enormous.

Twenty years ago the perfume shop was unknown here. Perfume was purchased chiefly in drug and department stores. Today manufacturers are renting the choice corners and bringing over famous decorators to outfit them in dazzling splendor.

There are places that "blend fragrant infectious of your own personality," and one silvered shrine boasts 200 Social Registerites who have odors prepared for them especially at a cost of $40 an ounce. Three so-called smart periodicals derive the biggest revenue from perfume advertising.

The "parfum vogue" is another released suppression following the war—like jazz. Prices have risen to astounding proportions. A lady with a $5000 yearly perfume bill is not unusual. Even in Paris the $2 bottle of perfume of other days is now $25.

The exquisite odor today marks the smartly dressed woman with a verve and distinction as much as her clothes. She has her perfume for morning, afternoon, evening, the bridge table, the play, and so on. Thus the making of perfume has become another American racket.

THE Bowery has noted the passing of Slippery Max, once proprietor of "The Sink," an infamous beer dive. He introduced the custom of serving a large schooner of beer, with straws for two customers, at 5 cents. Sucking beer through a straw did something. Those who indulged were likely to walk out on their hands or in some other quaint fashion.

ANOTHER rendezvous of those days was "The Doctor's," whose clinic was a swing door saloon a few blocks north of Park Row. The Doctor, himself, was an odd figure among the blowzy bums who frequented his laboratory. He was a fellow of a Royal Surgical Society who fell through drink, but with a monthly remittance was able to maintain his sawdust sanctuary. In the late evening, when he became mellow from his "prescriptions," he would deliver a profound lecture on the physiological evils of alcohol, conclude by setting up a free drink on the house and stumble off upstairs to slumber.

A PLUMBER, deservedly indignant at stage jests at his craft, sends a 200-word telegram that in 30 years of plumbing he has never known a plumber to forget his tools when called on a job. But why pick on me? I'm not only skinny picking, but I never gossip about plumbers.

IN a nice mild way, however, I have often wondered if a plumber regires all the tools he brings when you phone him you need a washer on a bathroom tap. I don't care a whole lot, but asking fills a line or so.

I HAVE also received a duck of a note from a chorus man who says he has never heard a chorus man lisp. "But I know three newspapermen who do," he adds, the meanie.

AND a boulevardier sighs in print that all the chorus girls he knows are no longer frivolous and gay, but sedate and dignified. He should cry in his chili, the mug! All the chorus girls need to know are in the Old Ladies' Home.

Waves in the Ether

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"In this day of radio wonders I am certain that there are many people who have no very clear conception of the Hertzian wave theory. I freely confess that it is too deep for me.—C. S."

THE "depth" is deceptive, like that of a tree-shaded pool of water, which may look bottomless, although in reality but a few inches deep. Nothing is incomprehensible in science, if you keep metaphysics away. The greatest of all deceptions is that of the metaphysician who thinks anybody understands what he is talking about There may be a little sentiment on the hook of his speculations, but it is a trout that he cannot land on this side of Jordan.

Physical science itself has to make many assumptions which it cannot verify, except that the way seems to fit the lock. At the bottom of the universal radiation theory, now holding science in its hug, is a conception that lately has taken two opposed shapes. In one, the oldest, it pictures the universe as containing a medium called the ether of space, which is filled with undulations producing effects on our senses known as light, heat, etc.

It is no more difficult to understand such undulations, or waves, than it is to understand waves of sound in the air. The question of the means by which they are originated may be more puzzling. Investigation is still busy upon the details of that problem. But we need not now bother ourselves with it. We may simply assume that the waves arise in and are transmitted through the ether. Like sound waves, they are of various lengths, or frequencies of vibration. Their great source in our solar system is the sun. But they may be set going by other means We may create ether-waves by turning on a lamp, or by causing a shock in the ether by interrupting an electric current, or making an electric spark. The light-waves in general come from the sun. The Hertzian waves come from such shocks as those just mentioned.

The characteristic difference that distinguishes the various forms of ether waves is their frequency, or its correlative, their wave-length. It is the same with sound-waves, although they are produced in material mediums like air, water or a solid, instead of being conveyed by the ether. The idea of octaves is applicable to both. In sound the range of vibration from a given frequency to a frequency twice as great is called an octave. So with ether waves, as illustrated by those which produce the effect of light. The slowest undulations that the eye perceives are those of red light—say 375 trillions in a second. The fastest are those of violet light—say 750 trillions in a second. That covers one octave. The ear has a wider range, since several octaves of sound-waves are perceptible to it. (But do not forget the essential difference between sound waves and ether waves.)

Now, Hertzian waves only vary from light waves by an enormous difference in frequency. They are many times slower, and, therefore, longer. They also cover about 28 octaves, instead of only one. The longest light-waves measure about the 50,000th part of an inch; the longest wireless (Hertzian) waves are many miles in length, and the shortest many feet, although there are shorter Hertzian waves not used in wireless, less than an inch in length.

On the other side of the light-waves the frequency increases and the wave-length decreases until in the recently discovered cosmic rays we come to undulations reaching a thousand billion billions per second. Between these and the light gamut lie the X-rays, which are of immense frequency, but still much slower than the cosmic rays. And all these infinitely varied waves are apparently transmitted through space with one and the same velocity, identical with the velocity of light.
